

he was appointed to a Lieutenancy in the 42nd Royal Highland Regt. Having, in 1813, married Janet, daughter of Capt. Hector McLean, also of the 42nd, in 1820 he brought his wife to Flamborough, in the County of Wentworth, U. C. The winter trip from York to Flamborough is described by Mrs. Wishart—on the 6th Dec., 1820: "We met Major Simons coming to meet us in a sleigh with three of his children. He insisted that we should go to his house and remain there for a few days, etc. . . . I attended the St. Andrew's Ball at Dundas. A Mrs. Crooks and I led the way with Major Simons into the ball-room, where we danced till seven o'clock the next morning. I had the honour of dancing with the highly accomplished Capt. Brandt," etc.

Colonel Wishart died in West Flamboro on the 10th Dec., 1823, at the age of 31. In 1838, his son, Kenneth McLean, received an Ensign's commission in the 7th Gore Regt. The lands first acquired by Alexander Wishart are still in the occupation of the family. The descendants of Hector McLean preserve with pride a small silver "stirrup cup" presented to their ancestor by Prince Charlie, the night before Culloden. The cup bears the inscription "C. S."

WILLIAM MUNSON JARVIS.

William Munson Jarvis, Lieutenant-Colonel of the Fifth Gore, and also sheriff of the Gore District in 1830, was a younger son of Mr. Secretary William Jarvis—so prominently connected with the beginning of the government of Upper Canada—and his wife, Hannah O., daughter of the Rev. Dr. Samuel Peters, of Connecticut. William Jarvis had been an officer in Simcoe's "Queen's Loyal Rangers," and after the war returned to England with Colonel Simcoe. Dr. Peter's history of Connecticut, published at the close of the revolution, is now conceded to contain a true picture of New England before the rebellion, though the first edition was put under the ban on its arrival in the States, and burned. W. M. Jarvis was born at Niagara in 1793, then the seat of government. With his brother, Samuel Peters Jarvis, he took an active part in the War of 1812, and at Lundy's
