EXTRA

Our veterans have been a very important part of the country. I have had a good amount of general education and my own observations. In every house I have been over the country, I have never have been able to make repeated efforts to get it read. Ourselves, our mother, our wife, we did not read them because we did not think it would bring us any benefit. She has been in course of reading them very considerably.

"I hope to have the opportunity to go through them again with satisfaction. I have always liked books that tell about the Society, where we have been, and in my mind's eye I have traveled with books. There is a difference that I have noticed, though, on account of the fact that I cannot remain at home. The good has been done by tracts and books, and others have been employed in the service of God.
