As reported in these despatches, he laid before the Council copies of two protocols which had been drawn up at Vienna in the presence of the Emperor Francis Joseph, providing for an offensive and defensive alliance between the two Empires. The Austrian Emperor signed the protocol with the reservation that it was not to be binding aroun him until it had received the servation that it was not to be binding upon him until it had received the signature of the German Kaiser. Prince Bismarck, in laying these papers before the Council, said that he recognized the gravity of the situation, and acknowledged the propriety of taking the representatives of the people into his confidence. The proposed alliance might, it probably would, be resented by the Great Power in North Europe, and this resentement might North Europe, and this resentment might be so violent as to lead to war, but, the Chancellor added, the Council should weigh all the conditions of the situation and act for the best interests of the Fatherland. "As for myself," he said in conclusion, "I am so convinced that the proposed alliance is so vitally necessary for our safety, that I am resolved to make its acceptance by eur Emperor a condition of my remaining in office. If he refuses to sign the protocols, I shall at once resign my office, and retire to end my days at Varzin." The Council gave their approval to the protocols immediately. Afterward Count Stolberg, Minister of State, proceeded to Baden, where the Emperor is now sojourning to ask his sanction. Under now sojourning to ask his sanction.
