Last Night.

DEFEAT FELDIANS IN OVERTIME STRUGGLE.

Over a hundred fans who were gathered at the Prince's Rink last night witnessed the hockey match between the Guards and the Feldians in the semi-final of the 716-Cup. The game was well rewarded for its presence; because the excitement of hockey doled out was by far the best played game of the season. Although the match was marred by penalties on both sides, still the game, taken on the whole, was a clean, while good combination and individual dashes featured the play from start to finish. The match had matters practically all even in the first two periods, but a goal lead after the first, and a goal to spare after the second, looked good enough to the Guards, after 12 minutes of play in the final period with the score 4 to 2 in the Feldians favor, the Guardsmen took on a new lease of life, and bombarded the goal area for some minutes, the result that the champions scored two goals in quick succession. The blue and white aggregation followed their efforts in the dying moments of the match by scoring a one goal lead, but the goal judge failed to see the puck lodged in the net by Herd Hunt, and of course no goal was recorded. Referee Tobin decided the goal judge on the play, the decision could not be granted the judge for some minutes. It was decided that no goal had been scored. At the instance of Manager of the Guards the Goal Judge removed from his position and was replaced by Brown of the Terras. The play continued for a few seconds, but the all over scored, leaving the stand 4 goals all, which thus constituted a play-off to decide the game.

OVERTIME.

The teams faced each other and played away from one end of the rink to the other. Good hockey was played by both sets of forwards, while players shot from all angles on opposing goal-keepers, but the blue could not be beaten. The result of anything, had the best of the match in goal made a difference. After five minutes of play in the overtime period the score crossed over without scoring a deep breathing spell ends changed, and in less than a minute the Guards took control of the puck, dashing down the boards he found on behind his opponents when he made a perfect pass to Herd Hunt in front of goal, who deflected the rubber in the twines. The Feldians pressed hard to equalize, but Herd Hunt and Tobin were several determined attacks on the Guards goal, and on one or two occasions came within an ace of scoring. Two minutes later the Guards took control, and Herd Hunt found on Clouston, found the net No. 6 which proved to be a goal.

HAD A NARROW

ESCAPE"

After realizing until a few days ago how risky it is to have a cold in the chest, I was always had such good health. I was cold either in the head or in the chest, while unpleasant, never made me any worry. Outside an occasional cold, I had never known myself to be laid up even a day in all my life, until December. One afternoon I was still and no matter how I got to the stove, I couldn't get warm. This chill was followed by a cold in my chest. As usual I neglected it and it got worse and worse. I had to go to bed and stay there for the doctor. His examination showed that I had pneumonia and a bad case at that. By the time the doctor came to see me, my children and some friends, I managed to pull through, but the doctor told me I was in a narrow shave. And here's my troubles began. While I was now out of danger, I was still weak from the effects of the pneumonia. Although I had lots of life and energy before my illness, I was now worn out and I was not sleeping. I slept fairly well because I was exhausted, but my sleep didn't refresh me, while I appeared to be asleep, I was conscious most of the time of what was around me. Although all of the tempting dishes were served for me, I had no relish. This sickness had almost undermined my health to such an extent that I was as weak as a kitten. I was arranged as nothing I took to do me any good. I was told that a friend wouldn't build me up, a friend said one day, "It was a world of good, I was really run down and you can't expect to get well if you don't try it." I don't know how well I took to this friend's advice. I was perfect health again, as I was full of life and energy as I was ever been. I can conscientiously say, if you have tried it, that it is the only good, return empty bottle to him and he will refund your money.

good enough win. The all over well sounded, leaving the Guards the victors by a score of 6 goals to 4.

NOTES ON THE GAME.

The Feldians played their best game of the season, and really deserved a win. They gave the Guards a hard tussle for the points all the way, but failed to have the endurance towards the close of the game.

The Guards made a most spectacular come-back in last night's play. They certainly did turn defeat into victory.

Hats off to Munn and Herd; they responded nobly in the pinch of the game.

For the Feldians "Bert" Tait was their shining light all evening. Bert turned in a beautiful exhibition of hockey, he stick-handled well, and he scored two of the prettiest goals seen this season.

Robertson for the Guards appeared to be all their "daddies" last night. "Robbie's" individual dashes were very spectacular, which brought forth rounds of applause.

All the boys are now playing true to form, and good hockey will be witnessed in all the remaining games.

The Terra Novas and St. Bon's cross sticks tonight in the second game of the series. A spirited contest will no doubt be the outcome.

Jack Paterson was missing in the Guards line-up last night, owing to the death of his uncle.

Bill Clouston played a star game, both on the defence and in the forward line, and taking into consideration the soreness of his left hand, he played one of the best games of the season.

Ewing, Payn, Alderice and Winter, back-checked the Guards to a standstill in the early stages of the game, but lacked the punch towards the end.

Taxation And Expenditure.

Governments, like individuals, can only spend what they receive. The greater the expenditure, the greater the taxation—a simple case of cause and effect. No government that has the welfare of the people at heart should undertake any expenditure except the where-withal to meet it is in sight. To plan to spend simply means that wise provision should be made to meet it without adding to the burden of taxation. The essence of political economy is to keep the expenditure within the receipts. In this little Colony, taxation has ever been on the increase until no man can but honestly admit that the limit has been reached—it is a question now of general impoverishment or the presence of a modern Moses to meet the demands of the times and the rehabilitation of the whole civil list. It would be a necessary matter, before considering further increase in taxation, to know among other items of expenditure, the total cost of the management of the Postal Department. The accounts of expenditure of that Department are so involved that one gives up the attempt to follow them, and the only guide would be for the expert of the Department to explain all and sundry of the items of the list. No man can say that the Posts and Telegraphs are run on economic lines, and that the service is not costing thousands of dollars more than it should.—H. Grace Standard.

Greater Achievement Through Electric Service

Out of the great central power plant, electric energy leaps to do your bidding, in home and industry, lighting houses and streets, driving sewing machines and lathes, turning the wheels of transportation. Yet before the advent of this great power, generated for every conceivable use, women laboured at their household tasks from dawn to darkness; through the same hours men struggled to produce the world's goods.

How different now. Households are lighted, rooms cleaned, clothes washed, food prepared, by clean, silent, invisible energy, created miles away by the central power station. Men are transported to their labors, the heavy tasks are lightened, the scope of productive activity becomes boundless; gifts of a new era. The magic to electricity.

Keep ahead of the times, encourage this new industry on which so many other industries depend, not merely by using its product; electricity; but by investing in successful hydro-electric company stocks, put your spare funds to work for you and incidentally help build up new industries and increase your country's prosperity.

Prosperity will never come of its own accord. The time to act is now. Buy Tait's Electric Company 7 per cent. Preference Shares. Particulars, Prospectus, etc., on application to the Company's Office, Telephone Building. feb19,21

Tug Hugh D. Disabled.

LOST RUDDER RECOVERED BY DIVER.

Yesterday whilst cutting out the sealing ship Neptune at the Southside, the tug Hugh D. met with a mishap through a pan of ice being forced by the sealer against the tugboat's rudder. The contact smashed the tiller and when later the tug hauled into Job's North Side wharf, the rudder, owing to being hit by the propeller, dropped off its pin and sank. During the evening Butler's diver went down and recovered the rudder, but the Hugh D. will have to go on dock to have it replaced.

The Secretary informs us that the Races, with the list of prizes, will be advertised in due course. It is not, however, likely that the meet will take place before March.

Why Boots And Shoes Have Heels.

The original idea of heels was to increase the height and so lend an air of dignity to the wearer. In some of the oldest monuments known we find heels shoes, some, indeed, of such exaggerated proportions as to be almost stilt. These were, however, reserved for the "upper classes," the people whose business it was to look dignified.

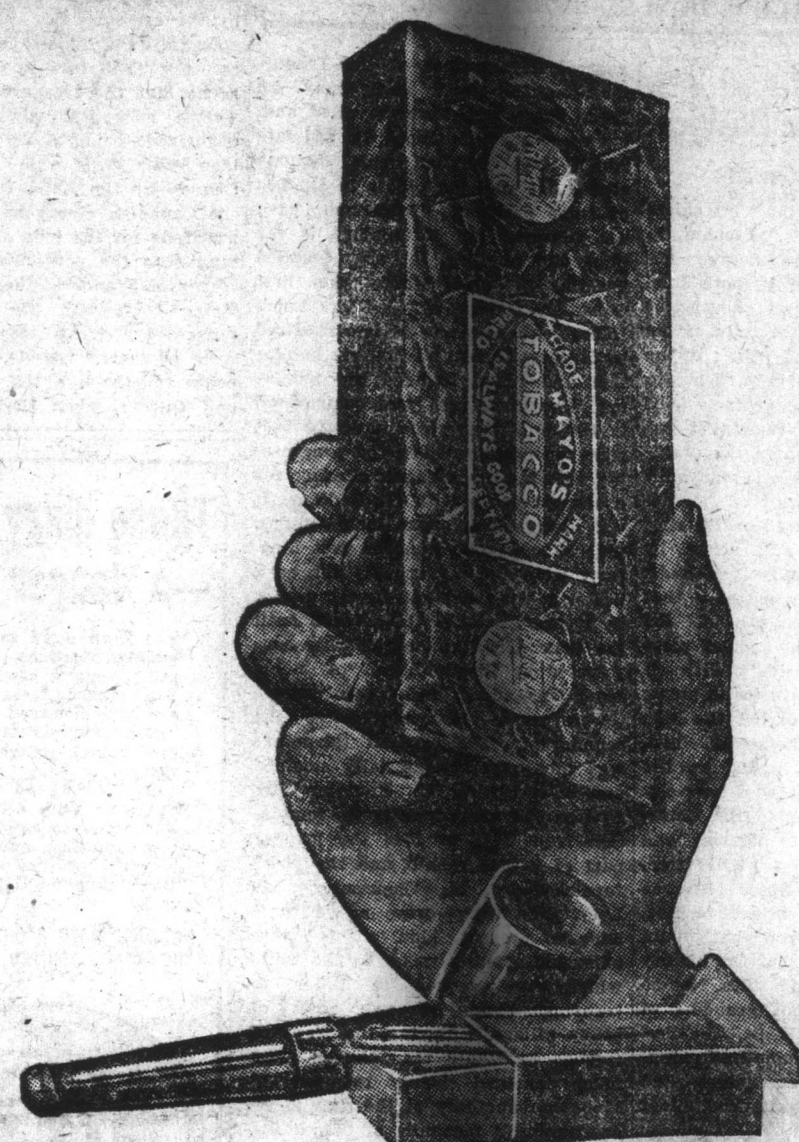

Ordinary folk in those days mostly wore sandals or heelless shoes. But with the coming of the roads and hard pavements the advantages of the heel, if only as a sort of shock absorber, became obvious, the flat soles that answered perfectly on sands or soft earth being uncomfortable on a hard surface.

In a sense, the ordinary heel evolved itself, since the flat sole naturally wore out fastest at the heel, and a succession of patches developed into a heel.

BETTER ROADS.

One hundred and thirty-six years ago, or in 1736, Robert Burns wrote the following epigram on rough roads:—

"There is one honest, brokerage house, it advertises: 'Let us place your name on our waiting list.'"

I'm now arrived—thanks to the gods!—
Thro' pathways rough and muddy.
A certain sign that makin' roads
Is not this people's study.
Altho, I'm not with Scriptures
grand,
I'm sure the Bible says,

That heedless sinners shall be damned
Unless they mend their ways.
