THE GOVERNMENT KNEW

The evidence of the different witnesses appearing before the railway commission shows almost beyond doubt that Mr. Cornwall's company requested a guarantee of the provincial government of $13,000 for a good 250 miles long at 4 per cent. In his evidence yesterday Mr. Cornwall said that though the government had been asked to make a guarantee of some amount, he did not know that any figure was mentioned. That seems rather unlikely.

However, the other witnesses are somewhat more definite in their statements. So we have this unusual business condition. The government was offered this very railway upon guaranteeing $130,000 a year, and declined it. But the government yielded to the blandishments of Mr. Clarke and when asked to make the guarantee $370,000 a year yielded without a murmur. Why?

A CALGARY HOTEL

The first move was made yesterday towards organizing a local company to build a large hotel in this city, something which is very much needed. Calgary is losing very much because it has not adequate hotel accommodation. The stay-at-home does not realize the volume of business that Calgary is really losing. Men who travel about know that Calgary's inadequate hotel accommodation is known practically the world over. Tourists shape their course so that they can pass Calgary by because they are told that they are not sure to get good accommodation if they stop. Men with money to invest, we told, hesitate to come to this city to look it over, because they are told that there is no certainty that they will not be forced to sleep on the sidewalk.

The man who comes here intending to locate and do business, finding himself sleeping all night in a chair, sits himself in the morning filled with resentment. He does not look upon the death of accommodation, so much as the result of a great rush to Calgary as the lack of enterprise of Calgary people.

The C. P. R. has delivered the ultimatum. It seems that there is nothing to be done but to organize the enterprise themselves and build the hotel. It can be done, and it should be done.

EDMONTON IS RIGHT

Edmonton is making an effort to discourage the settlement of colored people in that vicinity and is right in so doing. It seems that there is a large settlement in that part of the country, and as the Edmonton people say, it is becoming alarming.

We do not want any settlers in this part of the country who cannot be assimilated and become strong, sturdy Americans. The negro is one race which cannot be assimilated. This country will be better without his presence. He should be asked to stop away.

This is not race prejudice, but it is common sense. The negro is not adapted to this country. History shows that he does not make a good farmer. He is not a good colonizer and he just doesn't fit in with conditions here.

The Albertan has no sympathy with the anti-racial feeling in the Southern States. At the same time we do not want any mixing of the colors in this province. This is a white man's country and we do not want any black, brown or yellow coming in.

The colored man, whatever the shade or that, should be induced to give this country a wide berth. There is no place for him. He is objectionable. He retards progress. Edmonton is right. Keep out the colored man.

THE CALGARY UNIVERSITY

Some have a reasonable hope that the Alberta university will yet be located upon the hills about this city. It is not impossible, but there is no very great probability of it. As long as Premier Rutherford holds the reins of office, the university will remain under the shadow of his own vine and fig tree. With the retirement of the premier, there is a reasonable hope that Calgary might succeed in getting the university.

But the gentlemen who are interrelating themselves in getting an Alberta university would be very unwise to depend upon any change in the site of the university of Alberta, or be influenced in any respect by any such hope.

They should proceed as they have begun, in a vigorous manner to lay the foundation of a big organization, to prepare for a large independent institution. If the change is made and this city comes into its own, that will be well and good. But if the selfish policy of the premier is to have perpetual results, why Calgary university will proceed as planned.

It is possible that a provincial university has certain great advantages, yet a privately managed university is not without certain advantages, perhaps quite as great. It is doubtful if Calgary would object to the suggested transfer. In fact possibly it would work for such a transfer. But that should not influence the Calgary people from bending every effort to organize the university.

EDITORIAL NOTES

As yet no Macleod man has been known to give an interview declining the nomination there for the vacancy in the provincial legislature.

It is doubtful if any other legislative institution on earth is making the same vigorous effort to show the public that it really amounts to something, as the Dominion Senate is making.

How the parties are dividing! In Macleod they are talking about a Conservative candidate, a Bennett Conservative, an Independent Conservative, a Liberal, a Rutherford Liberal, a farmers' candidate and a few others.

The Calgary university is starting on a good and thorough basis. It is being organized by people who feel that the city needs such an institution and encouraged by people who feel a personal need of such an institution.

Premier Rutherford informs the visiting ministers in Edmonton that the commission will establish him in the confidence of the people, which is an other indication that the commission will keep going for a considerable time.

Sages say that the dark cloud that is worrying Edmonton so much is not the coming of the colored population, but the dusty atmosphere caused by Leithbridge eclipsing Edmonton in the race for second place.

The Edmonton Tories called loudly for McCarthy for leader of the party of the province. But if Mr. McCarthy waits for the Edmonton Tories to crown him or do anything else that counts for anything, he will wait until the patriarchal age comes again and then for some time later.

The sage Presbyterian ministers can see about as far in educational matters as any person else and displayed that caution for the Scottish nation and the Presbyterian church are famous, when they decided that they would not go into details in the theological about the location of the theological college.

A cold Frenchman came flying right into Britain and carried off the $50,000 long distance prize, which seems to have caused the greatest amount of consternation that has occurred in aerial circles since certain illustrious persons in years gone by saw the witches riding through the air on broomsticks.

Of course the provincial university is not enriched very solidly in Stratford, and there is a possibility of it being removed some day, but it would be just as well or probably a little bit better for Calgary to go right along after the Calgary university, as though it were bound to the party completed basement with chains of steel.

JAPAN PEACEFUL
NO THOUGHT OF WAR

Prominent Japanese Prince Passing Through Canada on the Way to Great Britain.

Victoria, B. C., April 28.—Prince Tagawa, of the Tagawa family, which so long ruled Japan, and sixteenth heir of the Shogun Iyeyasu, who would have sat in the place of Emperor Meiji in the throne of Japan now had the war of the restoration fought when he was a boy of five years of age, arrived by the Awa Maru this morning on his way to the Anglo-Japanese exhibition in London, where he will join Prince and Princess Fushimi.

He will leave Seattle on April 29, his plans being to proceed to Chicago and thence to Pittsburgh, where he is visiting the Carnegie steel works. From there he will proceed to Washington, and after a short stay will go to Philadelphia and New York, from where he will sail for Liverpool on May 11th by the steamer Mauretania.

In an interview, Prince Tagawa said all the news of the war between America and Japan was one of friendship, "From time to time," he said.

"The newly gained phrase, the Japanese are peaceful, is in the foreign newspapers of Japan, but I personally cannot imagine such a thing taking place."

"America has assisted materially in Japan's progress and civilization, and is her benefactor with whom the best terms of cordiality and friendship exist."

"I sincerely hope, therefore, that the friendly relations which are happily existing between our two countries will remain unchanged for many years, and indeed I am convinced this will be the case."

"The object of my present journey is for pleasure to visit the Anglo-Japanese exhibition and to look at places of interest on the way."

"I have no other object in coming to America beyond desiring to see for myself the immense developments which have taken place there, and also to revise my recollections of the time when I passed there before I returned to Japan after being educated in England via America."

"My present journey has absolutely no official or political significance, and I am taking it in quite a private capacity, and only for personal enjoyment."

The development of Manchuria and Korea is proceeding, but beyond stating that the visiting prince declined to discuss the situation there nor would he speak in regard to the recent changes in hand ownership or, in fact, touch on any political or other matters of interest beyond his journey.

He was born in 1863 and is president of the Japanese house of peers.

ANOTHER LINK TO
CHAIN OF EMPIRE

One of Royal Commission Refers to Trade Relations Between Canada and the United States.

London, April 28.—In speaking before the West Indian club today, Sir John Dickinson Foy, one of the royal commissioners appointed to investigate trade relations between Canada and the West Indies, emphasized the necessity of sugar merchants in the latter country employing modern methods. In reference to the prospect for reciprocity between the islands and Canada, he helped the West Indies, as a whole, would come into the scheme. He believed that the people of Canada and the islands realized the rare possibility was not to be missed to improve and increase their trade interests and to unite two important parts of the British Dominion, and add another binding link to the chain of the empire.

THE LORDS BOW TO THE INEVITABLE

They Submit to the Budget and Merely Grumble a Little—Now up for Royal Assent.

London, April 28.—In a quiet session lasting two and one-half hours this evening, the House of Lords, without division, passed the final stages of the finance bill, which now awaits only the royal assent. There were few perorations in the gallery, and a small attendance of peers.

"Marvelous Recovery"

Montreal Man So Ill With Dyspepsia Thought He Would Die

Cured by Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

No more convincing evidence was ever put on paper than the following letter from one of Montreal's well-known citizens, Mr. D. R. LaRose, of 338 Joliette Street.

"Permit me to write you a few words concerning Dr. Hamilton's Pills. I suffered from dyspepsia and indigestion for five years. I suffered so much that I could hardly attend to my work. I am now using the second box and I feel so well that I want to tell you of my famous pills. I recommend them to every person who is suffering from dyspepsia. Your grateful servant, D. R. original draft, which I have also brought here for you to see, you see the date of it at the top in large letters, and the figures are December 31, 1906, which is before the present city government came into being. When you examine the original further, you see that it also bears plainly the date when the audited voucher, which established the claim as a legal liability of the city, was recorded in the controllers' office, namely, December 29, 1906. This date was so printed in the newspaper copy, as you perceive. In plain words, the state prison felonies, namely, forgery and falsification of a public document, were committed by the publisher of this publisher and editor to wrong the mayor of the City of New York.

In a day or two after, when he had heard that some members of the grand jury were taking notice of the matter, he published an excuse, that the dates were so faint in the original draft that the photograph did not reproduce them. Now, just look at this original draft again. The date at the top, as you see, is in larger and more pronounced letters, and figures than any other part of the draft.

"I had the draft photographed as a test that the dates would take like all the rest, and here is the photograph. You see that shows the dates as plainly as any other part of the draft. He is speaking his mind must be a hoarse wilderness. Never will the voters anywhere put such a man in office."

"The annual joint dinner of the American Associated Press and the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, was thrown into long and riotous disorder, tonight, when Thomas T. Williams, business manager for Wm. R. Hearst was refused permission to speak, as he rose to reply to the sitting criticisms Hearst day after had just made of Mrs. Hearst's part in Journalism. For twenty-five minutes the uproar continued, when men stood in their chairs and women craned their necks from the balconies of the banquet hall."

"Mr. Hearst is not here, I am his friend, and have a right to be heard," shouted Mr. Williams, climbing on to the speakers' table, and shaking his fist in the face of the mayor.

"Put him out," "Shut up," "Free speech," came from all parts of the hall. "Trustmaster, Nat C. Wright, of the Cleveland Leader, hammered in vain for order, while Mr. Williams stood impassive, but obstinate, and waited with folded arms to be heard."

"This is a disgrace to the press of the United States, it must end," shouted Adolph S. Ochs, proprietor of the New York Times, as he stood on his chair behind the toastmaster, and begged for a word.

"Mr. Williams, I promise you, has less than forty words to speak. Let me say them for him."

"No, no," yelled the diners. "Mr. Williams says," began Mr. Ochs.

"No, no," broke in the diners. Mr. Ochs sat down while the orchestra thundered Dixie, but Mr. Williams still kept his feet, and a semblance of calm was not restored until Rev. Newell Dwight Hillis, of Brooklyn, with a staid and religious speech, brought laughter that drove out anger. The 700 guests at the dinner began to hear about the privileges right after the dinner had been brought in."

"We are beginning to judge what we read as we judge what we hear, by the character of the person who utters it," was his summing up of the situation.

George Ade, the humorist, himself a practical newspaper man, drew rounds of laughter with a humorous speech on the trials and tribulations of the editor. Throughout the dinner cable messages of greeting to the American press were read from rules and standards of Europe.

time is not far distant when some of them will be there.

Power of Editorials

Dr. Woodrow Wilson of Princeton, spoke on the power of the editorial. The power, President Wilson believed, is growing less all the time, because of the multiplicity of newspapers and their opinions.

"We are beginning to judge what we read as we judge what we hear, by the character of the person who utters it," was his summing up of the situation.
