W. ONTARIO NEWS WILL BE FOUND ON

He was noticed by the residents of a near-by house and taken in. Dr. Moore house was sent for and he expressed the opinion immediately that O'Grady was eriously injured. Mr. Chapman was notified and he telephoned the ambulance and had the injured man removed to his boarding house, at 527 Dundas street. Dr. Cline, who took charge of him then, had him removed to the hospital Saturdav and he and Dr. Stevenson decided to perform an operation to remove the hard lump that had formed in his stomach.

O'Grady had always been a steady hard-working young fellow of the best character, and all the employes of the store are feeling very sympathetic, as he was a general favorite with every one. Speaking to a reporter to-day, Mr. Chapman said that the only way he could account for the bridle coming off was that the check must have been loose, and when the horse stooped to graze while the boy was in with the parcel, the check fell over the horse's head, and when he lifted his head the rein probably caught on the animal's foot and pulled the bridle off.

The horse was stopped by Mr. Fitsgerald at the corner of Dufferin avenue and Maitland street, where it had slack-ened speed, and was headed for home. The funeral will be held this morning from the residence of Mr. F. Finchamp, 527 Dundas street, to St. Mary's Church, where high mass will be celebrated, thence to the Catholic burying grounds

Obliging Messenger Relieved of Big Roll by Gang at

Montreal

From Our Own Correspondent. MONTREAL, June 30 .- By a clever trick on the part of sharpers, Herald Murray, messenger in the employ of H. & A. Allan, was relieved yesterday of $1,000, which had been drawn to pay the office staff their weekly salaries. When the messenger left the Merchants' Bank at noon he had $1,500 in bills in an inside pocket and several thousand dollars in a satchel, which was the wages of the dock laborers. He noticed nothing wrong till he reached the office, and there missed the money. He then remembered a little ruse of which he had been the victim.

When he reached the office he saw three well dressed men fumbling at the revolving door and apparently at a loss how to get in. He showed them they were turning the door the wrong way, and as he began to explain the mechanism they all closed in, and in that move. it is likely the money was stolen.

Mr. Murray remembered seeing one of the men at the bank, but only afterwards did he see through their little game, and never suspected them, as they were so gentlemanly in appearance. The messenger has carried thousands of dollars for the firm and took the loss keenly, but he was assured by the Messrs. Allen that there was no need of worrying, as they did not blame him. The police were called in, but have been able to find any trace of the thies
