

THE NEGRO IN EUROPE.

His Color Sometimes Secures for Him Precedence Over the White Trash.

When I was first at Vienna, some years ago, I remember that the court and constant playmate of the young Archduchess Valerie, daughter of the Emperor, was a young negro named Malmor, who had been employed in the Egyptian department of the International Exposition of 1876, where he had taken the fancy of the Emperor to such a degree that she attached him to her household.

Notwithstanding his color and the inferiority of his rank, he was treated with a greater consideration and familiarity than admitted to much more intimate, not only by the Emperor, but also by the Empress, than if he had borne one of the most illustrious names in the Austro-Hungarian nobility.

At the coronation of the Emperor and Empress, I remember that the King of the Belgians, who was present in the King's suite, and in the presence of his whole court, invested three full-blooded negroes from the court of the Emperor with the dignity of knights of the Order of Christ, and one of the principal personages of the King's suite, an aged negro who had been with the Queen ever since her marriage, and who was chief of Her Majesty's attendants.

The man of color enjoys a favor and consideration that the white man does not. I have never visited Europe who will find it difficult to comprehend. It is much more of, petted, and admired, especially by the fair sex. Before we had been long in London I found that my negro attendant, who was acting for me as valet and chamberlain, was making money at a rapid rate and in a somewhat peculiar manner.

Some of my readers may be aware that the soldiers of the London garrison supplement their scanty pay by taking servant girls out for a walk in Hyde Park on Sunday afternoon. On that day the girls deck themselves out in all their finery, and aping their employers, promenade in Hyde Park, usually up and down the banks of the serpentine.

Man does not like to be alone, and still less does he like to be escorted. The girls feel the necessity of a suitable escort, not so much for the sake of conversation as the girls of the continent, and consequently it is that they secure the services of a soldier, who promenades them in the park for a couple of hours for a stipulated sum after which he escorts them home and leaves them at the back door of the house where they are employed.

There is a regular fair in Hyde Park, on a Sunday afternoon. While my black servant, Mike, was in London he seriously interfered with this source of revenue of the British army. It seemed as if all the cooks and servant girls in South Kensington were about having him walk with them on Sunday, conscious of the fact that his color would attract more attention than any other than an ordinary trooper, or even a sergeant of the Horse Guards.

So active was the competition that I have known Mike to be paid as much as six or seven shillings for promenading with stout and matron-looking couples for a couple of hours, along the Victoria Park, on a Sunday afternoon. In Paris the attention of the fair sex to my colored attendant was such that he had a source of considerable embarrassment to me, and I had great trouble to prevent them from completely turning the boys' heads. They served, however, to convince him that he was immeasurably superior to all other men servants of the white race.

Hence a regular fair in Hyde Park, on a Sunday afternoon. Mr. Huddart is the founder and managing director of the new line of steamers connecting Canada and Australia via the route of the Star, and daily holds informal levees at his office in Hillier street, City, so numerous are the callers to congratulate him on his having instituted and successfully developed such an important and long-needed service.

Mr. Huddart is present with the Pacific Mail, and permanent communication between the two great Pacific communities that live on opposite sides of the Pacific Ocean. It is not without reason to rejoice in the new departure, for Mr. Huddart's Pacific service means a shorter and more comfortable voyage, and splendidly-equipped steamers, and the entering into contracts in this connection is one of the most important of Mr. Huddart's present visit to England.

WHERE CZARS ARE CROWNED.

The Kremlin, Spasna's Sacred Palace and the Head of the Empire.

The very heart of Moscow and, indeed, of all Russia, is the world-renowned Kremlin, the nation's sacred palace. Many years ago the czar resided within its wooden walls, closely surrounded by his relatives and nobles. The wooden fortifications proved inadequate to resist the furious onslaughts of the savage Tartars and 500 years ago they were replaced by stone ones, and now, too, the imperial family have abandoned Moscow and spend most of their time in St. Petersburg.

But this is still the holy city and to the Kremlin churches must all the czars come to be crowned, writes a correspondent of The Sunday School Times. The grand coronation procession must first enter the Church of the Redeemer to offer prayers, then go to St. Michael's, and finally in the Cathedral of the Assumption, the most sacred edifice in all Russia, the czar places the crown upon his own head, for no one else is held worthy to perform such a duty.

palatial citadel, the Kremlin, when seen from a distance is a most brilliant and dazzling sight; walls, roofs and spires and cupolas, with masses of red, green, white, gold and silver unvarnished by time, for all the colors are renewed as fast as they are faded. Just outside the walls is a fine group of bronze statues representing a peasant appealing to the Emperor for justice.

Over this is a picture of Christ, so sacred that no one can pass beneath it with covered head; even the czar himself conforms to this custom. The image is said to have preserved Moscow from invasion several times, and it is believed that no enemy can enter through it without the permission of Christ, who is supposed to have preserved Moscow from invasion several times, and it is believed that no enemy can enter through it without the permission of Christ, who is supposed to have preserved Moscow from invasion several times.

Here the czarina and daughters of the nobles resort when they wish to escape the frivolities of the world, and in the crypts are the tombs of many Russian emperors who died before the time of Peter the Great. Since then they have been buried with their husbands in St. Peterburg.

DEFORE breakfast take up D yesterday's World and again look over our list of Friday Specials. The prices are the most tempting we've offered, and that is saying a good deal.

What we're doing for shoppers in mantles will command interest at this time of year, for the brush of cold weather has sent everyone mantle hunting who is not already supplied. It's easy for a house to declaim that they are selling mantles lower than anyone else, but an examination of the prices placed on the

of this house show that with us no one else is in the running. A night of slush and rain will test one's footwear. If it's thin it's a good forerunner of grip. Our footwear stocks are splendidly assorted, containing everything required for man, woman or child. We sell at price that saves money for all.

Do you reside out of town? Our mail order system secures goods for you with every promptness. Write. R. SIMPSON. S.W. Corner Yonge and Queen-sts., Toronto.

OAK HALL. There's a disappointing difference often between the appearance of the goods which the tailor shows you, and its appearance after he has made it up in a suit or an overcoat for you.

OAK HALL. You may have to visit the tailor several times before he finally succeeds in shaping the suit or the overcoat to sit well on you, and men have been known to inwardly swear at their tailors for weeks while this trying-on and refitting process continued.

OAK HALL. The tailor who makes one suit or one overcoat, while Oak Hall sells a hundred, must charge accordingly. You pay cash, but a majority of the tailor's other customers get their garments on time, and there are losses.

OAK HALL. There are many good reasons why even the most conscientious tailor must charge you 25 to 40 per cent. more for the clothing he makes than you would have to pay for a suit or an overcoat, every white equal to the best tailor-made at Oak Hall.
