Thomas' Phosphate Powder
(ALBERT'S BASIC SLAG)

IMPERIAL TESTIMONY

Great Britain

"Confining our attention to the use of Phosphates in orchards only, it would appear that too Thomas Phosphate Powder has a distinct advantage over other sources. It gives out the element required slowly, yet with sufficient readiness. It does not throw all its contents of Phosphoric Acid into the soil the first season; hence what may be termed its staying power has a distinct and great advantage."

Referring particularly to Bone-meal, they say: "Unfortunately the amount of Phosphoric Oxide liberated per season by Bone-meal is excessively small. In fact for a phosphate manure it does not work quickly enough. The sum of the whole matter may be put thus. Superphosphates work too quickly, plain ground bones work far too slowly. Thomas Phosphate strikes a medium between the two."

"I have been using Thomas' Phosphate Powder for three years past with good results. I used it in seeding down land with clover in my young orchards alongside of ground bone in alternate spaces and the comparison was very favorable to Thomas' Phosphate Powder, giving me double the amount of clover where the Thomas' Phosphate Powder was used than where I used the ground bone. I used equal values of each. I can heartily recommend it for seeding down purposes, and intend using it on every future occasion."
