

masterpiece, were the generous gifts of a grateful people. And now came the Mission to crown the work and gather in the dispersed sheep of Israel. Who that witnessed it, pastor, missionaries or people, can ever forget the demonstration of faith, a full attendance every morning at five o'clock, another at eight; at night, packed seats, thronged aisles and crowded galleries? The groups besieging the confessionals all day till close on midnight; the numbers going round the Stations; beads, scapulars, crucifixes blessed; finally, the enthusiastic acceptance of the practices of the Holy League told the tale of awakening faith. Yes, St. Lawrence's parish came to remain; it rose to live and to flourish, to be the joy of its pastors.

ST. PATRICK'S, HAMILTON.

The priests of the influential congregation of St. Patrick's, witnessing the magnificent fruits produced by the Holy League in the Cathedral centre, were long awaiting an opportunity to establish it in their beautiful church of the South end. A Triduum was opened on Easter Sunday evening, with a view not only to start a league centre, but also to prepare the people for a mission, shortly to be given at St. Patrick's. It was well attended throughout, a large number profiting by the opportunity to perform their Easter duty.

An influential body of lady Promoters was organized, who began the work of enrolment, with such bright promise, that one hundred lists were called for. Though the Men's League was organized on a week day evening, fifty representative men came forward to receive the badge, amongst them the most eminent professional men of Hamilton. This number will form a nucleus around
