A CRY TO THE SACRED HEART.

pitton my friend, O Snared Heart!
I need Thy love nuch more
Than e'er before;
Than e'er before;
Frome by one I've let the yeers depart
And vainly thought to find
That others would be kind;
That others would be kind;
Strow in sorrow, asking sympathy
J come to Thee.

R Thou my friend, O Heart Divine!
Recause of my deluy
Torn not away,
Torn not away,
yo childe me for this fickle heart of mine;
And take me back at last
And take me back at last
There faithfully and find a place
To the embrace.

Mon my friend, O Heart of Love!

The love seek again
The love of men,
The love of men,
The love of men,
Though ancient, ever new,
O Benuty true.

Jue have I found Thee!"—Turry to the end'
And be my Friend!

GREAT MARCHES.

A well-known journalist of Montreal, Mr. W. J. Let me tell you of some of the won-derful things I have seen. Once I put a little hay in a tumbler, covered it with water, and set the glass in a warm place for a day or two. Then, with a medicine dropper, I put a drop of the water on a glass slip, covered it with a very thin glass wafer the size of a cent, placed it under my microscope, adjusted the focus, and what a sight met my eyes. Dozens and dozens of what looked like animated drops of jelly were darting here and there, bumping against one another, or doging one another like school boys at recess. Perhaps among the crowd of smaller ones would dash a Polish a mahogany dining table with a much bigger fellow. I fancied it might be a big brother, older than the others has been poured. deference he seemed to exact. Then, in another part of the drop of water the little ones formed almost a circle, and presently in the center of this came a big fellow-be must have been 1-100 of an inch long-who began revolving slowly. 'P. T. Barnum," I thought to myself. That is exactly the way I have seen him address an sadience surrounding a circus ring." But I can never know what he told the small ones, for not even the "little ghost of an inaudible squeak" reached my eacs. Besides these little creatures, I could see what looked like dark specks darting above. Determined to find out what these were, I used a stronger magnifying glass, and looking through it the specks proved to be other little swimmers such as I had just been examining; and the latter of course, larger. But now there were still other specks darting about, so a still stronger glass was used, with the same result. Magnify as I might, I could not a reach a point where there were not some moving atoms needing magnifying. I have since learned that no glass has ever been thing closely studded with tiny anchors. As anchore are mainly used in water, of what value can these miniature ones be? We are looking at a bit of the skin of Roberts, V.C., from Cabul to Candahaz the sea excumber (Synapta girardii). In in the year 1880, bud its origin chiefly in shape this animal is more like a worm the disastrons defeat which happened to than like anything else, and it removes from place to place by means of suckers. When it wishes to remain quiet the anchors, which have been closed over perforated, chalky plates, are extended out-ward from the body and fasten the little creature securely to the sand or mud. The sea cucumbers found on our coasts are small, seldom over four inches in length, though larger kinds abound in the Bay of Fundy and upon the mud-flats of Florida. The Chinese call a larger species "Trepang," and when dried and preserved in a peculiar way is considered a great delicacy. When I look at this side I worder if man first got his idea of an anchor from this little creature. Yet anchors were in use long before wicroscopes, and the little anchors are much to small to be seen by the unaided eye.—St. Nicholas.

WINTER IN THE HOLY LAND. DAST ALL PRECEDENTIAL OVER TWO MILLIONS DE The Period of the Year that is most Dan-gerous to Health.

October, November, and nearly the whole of December are very mild and agreeable in Palestine, and any rain falling in these months revives the soil, after the scorching of the summer heat, and refreshes man and beast, creating, in fact, a temporary spring. The weather begins to be unpleasant about the end of December, but the winter, with its cold, storms, rain, and snow, only commences in January, continuing, with fine days interspersed, till February, when bright weather becomes more frequent, and sometimes lasts for a week. About the end of the month, however, a second winter begins, with heavy rains, the cold and stormy days and nights being keenly felt by the population, since their houses give little protection against such an evil. For old people, especially, this after-winter is particularly dangerous, the rough weather that has preceded baving already lessened their powers of resistance. It lasts, generally, about a week of March—and this interval is called in Syria and Palestine, "the death-days of old folks." It closes the season in which the over-ripe fruit is shaken from the tree of life, a time lasting in all, one may say, from thirty-five to forty days. During these the almond-tree blossoms and the grashopper creeps out, thus apparently giving us the correct translation of the words in our version," "The almond tree shall flourish, and the grass-hopper shall be a burden. The blossoming of the almond, however, may not be taking as marking the days most fatal to old age, but as itself a beautiful emblem of the end of life, for the white flowers completely cover the tree, at the foot of which they presently fall like a shower of snow.—Catholic Mirror.

Contentment in Life.

We are in the world like men playing at tables; the chance is not in our power, but to play it is; and when it is fallen we must manage it as we can, and let nothing trouble us except when we do a base action, or speak like a fool or think wickedly. These things God hath put into our prayers: but concerning those things which are wholly in the choice of another, they cannot fall under our deliberation. My fear may make me miscrable, but it cannot prevent what another hath in his power and purpose and presperities can only be enjoyed by those who fear not to lose them. Therefore, if thou hast lost thy land, do not also lose thy constancy; and as thou must die, do not die impatiently. For no change is evil to him that is content. No man can make another man to be his slave unless he bath first enslaved himself to life and death. No pleasure or pain to hope or fear; command these passions and you are freer than the Parthian kings.

See to Our l'aults.

If a man's own sin is held up before l him, a little disguised, he says, "How ugly it is!" And if only for a moment he can be persuaded that it is not his own conduct but somebody else's that he is judging, the instinctive condemnation comes. We have got two sets of names for vice—one set which rather mitigates and excuses them, and another set which puts them in their real hideousness. We keep the palliative set for home con sumption, and liberally distribute the plain-spoken, ugly set amongst the vices and faults of our friends. The same which I call in myself prudence I call in you meanness. The same thing which you call in yourself generous living, you call in your triend tilthy sensualism.
That which, to the door of it, is only righteous indignation, to the onlooker is passionate anger. That which, in the practiser of it, is no more than a due regard for the interests of his own family and himself in the luture, is, to the envious lookers-on, shabbiness and meanness in money matters. That which, to the liar, is only prudent diplomatic reticence, to the listener is falsehood. That which, in the man that judges his own conduct, is but "a choleric word," is in his friend, when he judges him, "flat blasphemy."—Dr McLaren.
