

statement is required whenever federal agencies propose to take any major action which may affect the quality of the human environment. Potential obstacles are created due to the volume and complexity of environmental impact statements, and the subjective nature of their assessment.