

Behold, my fair, where'er we rove,
 What dreary prospects round us rise !
 The naked hill, the leafless grove,
 The hoary ground; the frowning skies !
 Nor only through the wasted plain,
 Stern Winter ! is thy force confess'd ;
 Still wider spreads thy horrid reign,—
 I feel thy power usurp my breast.
 Enlivening Hope and fond Desire,
 Resign the heart to Splœn and Care ;
 Scarce frightened Love maintains his fire,
 And Rapture saddens to despair.
 Tired with vain joys and false alarms,
 Snatch me, my Stella, to thy arms.
