DIXON, WHOSE FIRST AROUSED STATES, TELLS WHY HE WAS SHOT

His Experience Hurried U. S. to Action in Mexican Situation—Was Released on Summary Demand. DIXON—SPECIAL. EL PASO, Texas, July 28.—While describing his own story, to the correspondent of The Toronto World, relating his experience when shot last week by a Mexican federal soldier in Juarez, Charles B. Dixon, Jr., U. S. immigrant lawyer, who went with pain tonight at the Providence Hospital. The wounded man, whose instant release was demanded by the United States and obtained, is emphatic in his belief that he was the victim of a "frame-up" on the part of Arthur Walker, a negro, against whom the immigration service was investigating a white slave case. His signed statement follows: "A telephone message came to the office from a person representing himself as the proprietor of the Jockey Club, who had information in the past to the service, saying the negro wanted Arthur Walker, who was in Juarez, and intended to cross over that night to go into the interior of the United States. I went over to Juarez and went to the Silver King Saloon, the place he stated he would meet me. I asked the proprietor if Arthur Henderson had telephoned from there to the American side for Clarence Gantley, the telephone number having been given by the man. He said no one had called for Mr. Gantley from there. I walked outside the saloon and started away, but was overtaken by a negro, who asked me if I was Henderson. I replied, no, but said I had come to see the information that had been professed by telephone. He stated that Arthur Henderson had left the saloon when he came over to the Jockey Club saloon, which is in the southern part of Juarez, and off the street leading to the Jockey Club, leaving me just before I reached the door. I went into the Jockey Club and asked the proprietor if Henderson was there. He said yes, in the room where I had been. I noticed this would take me where I could not be seen from the street. I started back toward the street, but not as far as the patio, when I heard several voices in the room to which I had been directed. "Afraid of a Decoy. "The location of the room and the ex-

ANGELIC ENERGY PRESS CAMPAIGN

Plan to Build Up Churches in Sparsely Settled Districts of West Proves Successful. The Archbishop of Canterbury's idea of distributing Anglican clergy throughout the sparsely settled districts of western Canada, an idea that was put into operation about two years ago, has proven itself highly successful and a number of additions to the ranks are to be made as soon as the necessary arrangements can be concluded. Canon Gardner of Yorkstone, Eng., who was in Toronto yesterday, on his way back to England, made the above statement when seen by The World at the Queen's Hotel last night. He had been sent to Canada by the Archbishop of Canterbury in order to make a report on the matter, and he says that this report will be very favorable. About 20 of the English clergy sent out are now in the Northwest carrying out the archbishop's plan. Some of them are travelling in pairs. When a district has become sufficiently well populated a church is erected and a regular parish established. "The exceptionally large number of immigrants who have been coming to Canada this year," said Canon Gardner, "is what is causing the determination of the church in the old land to send out an additional contingent of clergy to cope with the rapidly growing need for such work in the western provinces here."

WILSON WILL NOT RETURN TO MEXICO

Continued From Page 1. The submission of all points involved to mediation would follow. Let Factious Fight On. If then the offer of advice and the suggestion of mediation fail, the next step would be to remove the present embargo on the shipment of arms to Mexico, which officials declare is now impartially enforced. All sections would be given an opportunity to obtain acquittals of war and fight their troubles out among themselves. The preponderance of sentiment is that this would prove the most desirable solution of the problem. It is held that the strongest faction would be enabled to triumph and thus form a more permanent and stable government than that of other factions. Objection to recognition of the Huerta faction, or belatedly of all the factions, is based on fear of the actions and fight will be an admission that a state of war exists, and thereafter no claims for damages would be payable by the government. The trend of sentiment is that the holding of an election would not be desirable as final fight between the belateders. An election in Mexico is regarded as more or less a formality. It is held that to follow this method of settlement, as was the case when Madero was chosen, would be preferable to the strongest man win in fighting and establish his government, before being elected President. Wilson has requested members of congress to minimize discussion of the Mexican question. He believes continual public agitation only serves to make the situation worse and make settlement more difficult.

MADE BOAT TOP TO CATCH TRAIN

Hon. Stewart Wortley Crossed Niagara River in Order to Join Rest of Parliamentary Party. That an Englishman is ready for any emergency, even the not in his native land, was well demonstrated by Hon. Stewart Wortley, a member of the British parliamentary party now passing thru Canada. Altho a privy councillor, this member of the party proved that a trip across the Niagara River in a rowboat would not daunt him when necessary to carry out his plans. Hon. Stewart Wortley and Mr. and Mrs. Hamar Greenwood did not proceed thru with the rest of the party when they left Toronto at noon yesterday. Mr. and Mrs. Greenwood desired to see the Toronto-Newark baseball game at the island in the afternoon, and Mr. Wortley decided to take the trip across the lake to Niagara Falls. After this trip planned to take the C.P.R. train from here to Port Arthur last night and catch the rest of the party at that city. As a matter of fact, the program was nearly upset, for the journey to the Falls was made successfully by the English privy councillor, after boarding the Niagara-Toronto steamer for the return trip last night he made the discovery that he would not reach Toronto in time to catch his train. "Seeing a man in a rowboat near the dock, the possibility of crossing the river and reaching Toronto in time by making a number of quick train connections was suggested to him, and at once got off the steamer and arranged with a man to row him across. Mr. Wortley afterwards described the trip across the Niagara River as quite an exciting experience, and one he would not soon forget, but he negotiated the trip successfully and was thus enabled to reach Toronto by train at 9:30 p.m. This allowed him just time to join Mr. and Mrs. Greenwood in the private car "Rowley," which was attached to the C.P.R. train, and the trio left the Union Station for Port Arthur shortly after 10 o'clock last night.

AT THE THEATRES

MISS HASWELL IN DELIGHTFUL PLAY "Dawn of a Tomorrow," Enables Actress to Display Versatility. Miss Percy Haswell really displays marvelous versatility, and in "The Dawn of a Tomorrow" last night at the Royal Alexandra she gave such a performance of Glad as left no regrets and suggested no invidious comparisons. There was an assumption of bright and sprightly ingenueness in the first act, gradually deepening into the womanly strength and faith of the later scenes, which was different from anything Miss Haswell has shown us this season. And it had a moving force in its pathos and sentiment which seized the audience in every scene. The cheerful and sensible philosophy which Mrs. Burnett has discovered in Appleblossom Court may easily be a revelation to more than Glad. "Just keep moving about and thinking of something else" is her cure for the man contemplating suicide. Her delight when, after "astin," she found that "it worked" was infectious, and as the scene proceeded Miss Haswell and Fred Tiden as Dandy touched some effective climaxes. Nothing could have been better than his "I never took money from a gal," and her reply, "You'll take it from this gal." Even the world-weary old plutocrat falls under the spell. "Is it a kind of religion," he asks. "It's cheerfulness," is the reply. "It ain't got no 'ell-fire in it." Edward Hayes played the part of the financier, Sir Oliver, with excellent taste, and in the first act with a great deal of clever detail. Effingham Pinto had an opportunity for the display of his sinister qualities as Oliver Holt, and his picture of the dissipated, irritable man about town was convincing. James T. Galloway was a splendid old Barney, and made a lot of the coffee bar scene. In this also Alexander Lettwich was particularly good as Jen, and his Whitechapel with Glad and Het was one of the hits of the evening. Fred Tiden acted with force and discretion. His Dandy was no gentleman in costume, but the rough, aspiring savage of the story, Julia Hanchett was capital. Her account of hiding Dan "up to my elbows in hot soap" when the police arrived was a picture. The minor parts were all well filled in a presentation which would do credit to a metropolitan company. The calls were many after the last three acts, and the large audience was evidently captivated.

EXCELLENT BILL OPENED SHEA'S

Large Audience Enjoys Splendid Variety Performances—Many Features. Shea's started out well yesterday. Let's hope that they continue the pace, which undoubtedly they will. Vaudeville once again made its appearance in Toronto, to the delight of the tired business man and others. There was a packed house at the matinee and evening performances, showing that a variety bill is the one big attraction. Everything from the clowns to the cinematograph was interesting. "Probably the most novel and original turn on the bill was the tumbling act put on by Arnaud Bros. Get that: 'Are Not Brothers.' Besides being able to do anything from a flip-flop to a flip-flop, they added a little dash to their performance by using violins in their clowning. Their stuff was top-notch. Angelo Patriolo, on the program, the great Italian piano virtuoso, and on the keys, a marvel, played three classic selections. The audience wanted more. The favorite was Loraine's 'Salome.' Mme. Beson and Company produced a comedy-drama, 'The Woman Who Knew' in which a shrewd lawyer won a case by novel means. It was a diverting story, which, altho draggy at times, had a clever climax making up for any weak points. Grace Edmonds was a real song bird with a soprano voice. After repeated encores she recited Kipling's 'On the Road to Mandalay' in a capable manner. What Claude Golden doesn't know about cards is not worth telling. As a trick artist he was on the top rung. Kramer and Morton, two black dots, put on a good negro dialog, singing and dancing stunts. Equil Bros., equilibriumists, Taubert Bros., Paul, and Loro and Payne completed a well-balanced bill. COMEDIANS MAKE A HIT. Rice, Elmer and Tom, the comedy act performers who made so many friends on the occasion of their visit to Scarborough Beach Park last season, opened another week's engagement at the same park yesterday afternoon. Last night an unusually large crowd turned out, and the war comedians repeated their earlier success. Their act has been improved, and is one of the best now playing the summer vaudeville circuit. D'Urbano's Royal Italian Concert Band rendered the musical program in admirable style. The new films on the moving picture machines are up to the standard.

FALL FAIRS

MR. H. U. MIDITY IS HERE TO STAY

Weatherman Says It Will Be Warm Again Today, Tho Rain May Follow. More warm weather is carded for today, and there is no promise that the oppressive moisture of the atmosphere will be at all lessened. It has been raining now for over a day in the southwestern part of the province and the wind is expected to blow from that quarter this morning. Should it rain, the air might be expected to remain cooled for a day or so, and then to warm up again. In that case the temperature would rise many degrees higher than the thermometer showed yesterday, but the rise would probably be attended with far less discomfort. Toronto's temperature kept well below the 90 mark yesterday, after showing 84 degree at noon.

CRIMINAL OPERATION CAUSED GIRL'S DEATH

Continued From Page 1. played, was closely examined by Coroner Young and the acting crown attorney. He was straightforward in answering all questions and convinced the court of the great difficulty and known nothing of the case except from hearsay. "I have not been in the girl's room since she came to the house," he declared, on the stand. The evidence of Detective Cronin and Mrs. Robinovich, was nearly corroborative in the facts already known. In his charge to the jury, Coroner Young referred especially to the autopsy report read by Chief Coroner Arthur Jukes Johnson last week. "It is most likely," said Dr. Young, "in view of the lack of proof outside interference, that this girl attempted to operate upon herself. Now such an attempt upon a woman's part is attended with great difficulty and danger. I hope that you will add to your verdict a recommendation so strong that the attorney-general will have to take notice and amend the criminal code to attempt to put a stop to this practice, which is so terribly increasing in this and other of our cities." Dr. Young then displayed to the jury a packet of medicines which he had bought at different drug stores on his way to the inquest. Some contained pills, some powders, some wafers. Most of them bore inscriptions which declare their efficiency in remedying "female weakness." "The law cannot touch the druggist who handles these medicines," he proved the coroner. "It must be first proved that he has a guilty knowledge of the use to which they are to be put. These wafers sold for three dollars a box, cost the manufacturer about five cents a box, but women are willing to pay the price in order to attain their purpose. One firm, by the cutting device of advertising that their preparation must not be used during certain times, accomplished a double object, at the same time seeming to evade the law and calling attention to the real purpose of the medicine." The jury was not out over thirty minutes.

SUFFRAGETTES TRY TO PETITION KING

Promptly Arrested, But Later Liberated at King's Request. LONDON, July 28.—(Can. Press).—While King George was inspecting his guard of honor at the railway station at Chichester, Sussex, today, two suffragettes rushed forward and tried to present a petition to him. The police seized and removed the two women from the station. Afterwards they were liberated, at the request of the King. According to The Daily Sketch the Police had received information of a suffragette plot against King George. Rebels Talking of Quitting PEKING, July 28.—(Gen. Hung-Sing commander of the southern forces has tentatively declared for the separation of the north and south and the abandonment of the Peking Yuan expedition northward. Several columns of southerners aggregating about 2000 men arrived today at Nanking and later proceeded for Yang-Chow, province of Kiang-Su, with the supposed intention of threatening an attack on Gen Hsu and his 3000 men with a view to inducing them to join the southerners. The northerners meanwhile are converging on Nanking, while up the river capturing the Hu-Kou forts they are steadily dispersing the rebels, whose leaders are endeavoring with only partial success to prevent wholesale desertions.
