

t who is alive to the welfare of its sub-
re; one, who justly
onal liberty, would
o owe allegiance to e Member of Par-
e the cause of the
and forward as the
nd privileges, which
of the British con-
be the birthright of
ccountably withheld
a some more distant
e advocate of such
y his exertions, the
displeasure of some
n, what to an honest
ard, the gratitude of whose wrongs he has
ness he has founded.