ame well

rethren. lete treatetain vou. admirable Ilvaine, of ved by all ill names ety, sound ed talents. t he looks Iis charge rethren in ent on me, o Pastors, e to speak upon our you in the ich alone nature of ery year, I heres and ct classes igion, that very wind ment, and irrents and religious delightful ers the two irst-That xpediency ick to 'old ur present d Apostles at he ments and of ese causes ich I felt ing to the

,-a state

caused in a great measure by the sanction given by them to "protracted meetings,"-Bishop McIlvaine remarks, "I refer a very large proportion of the great evils which have come upon the Protestant communities of this age, and their alarming increase, to the putting asunder, in a great measure, of these two things, which God has joined, to be caried on together, not only in the Sacraments, but in all the worship and doings of the Church, the outward and visible—the inward and spiritual. In seeking the latter, its necessary connexion with the former has been too much overlooked. Some have laid aside all prescribed externalism, as among the 'beggarly elements,' the 'childish things,' which a spiritual Church has no need to retain. They have reaped what they sowed. Others, in various degrees, have approximated to this extreme; some retaining outward institutions in a measure, while, with an over-jealousy of too much ceremony, they have gone into too much nakedness, and, though free of superfluous form, have grievously suffered by an over-done abstraction; and, lest they should be too much restricted to sameness, have opened the door to a spirit of licentious change and rash innovation, and in aiming at primitive simplicity, have arrived at a most un-primitive leanness; and to avoid a seeming condemnation of all forms but their own, as destitute of good, have spread the scarcely less injurious idea, that if one has only the spiritual grace, it matters little to what outward form of association, under the name of a Church, he may belong. Such is the seeding with which the field has been gradually 'laid down,' in the process of things, in the Christian community, during the last few years more especially. It has sprung up and brought forth fruit "after its kind, some thirty, some sixty, some a hundred fold. They that sow the wind must reap the whirlwind. The harvest has not yet passed, but the first fruits have been sufficiently exhibited. The heresies that have grown up amidst the fragments of the broken walls and neglected gate-ways of the visible Church, in some parts of our Christendom, mocking all efforts to eradicate them; the growing neglect of public worship, so much complained of; the wandering of the rising generation from the paths of their pious ancestry; the daily decreasing hold of a settled and permanent pastoral ministry upon the affections of the flock; the appetite for