REVISE TREATY PLANS FOR THE KIEL CANAL AND HELIGOLAND FORTS

Fortifications of the Canal and Coast Defences Dose Named Not Strong Are To Be Continued, But Those of Heligoland Are To Be Destroyed---Great Basin Left Intact for Shelter.

Paris, April 18.—The naval terms to be incorporated in the peace treaty, concerning the Kiel Canal and Heligoland, have been revised in several important particulars. It was the original plan to destroy the continuance of the canal, making it a strictly commade leave the present fortifications in existence, and a provision has also been inserted permitting of the continuance of the present coast defenses, all of which were to have been destroyed, according to the original plan.

The changes concerning Heligoland leave intact the present large basin constructed on an extensive scale for the use of submarines during the war. It was concluded that the use of submarines had now been so restricted that the basin no longer constituted a menace, and its continuance providing a shelter for the basin is the only fleet in case of distress. The fortifications of Heligoland are to be dismantled, so that the basin is the only thing retained.

The final disposition of the German fleet is one of the subjects still undecided, and even the highest naval authorities are not aware how the question stands since it passed into the hands of the council of four. The disposition to be made of the battle-ships and battle cruisers is one of the constructed on an extensive scale for the use of submarines during the war. It was concluded that the use

Detectives are busily making inquiries concerning the actions of Vera Lavelle, the girl who is believed by them to have assisted McCuffough in successfully engineering his break for freedom. The police are satisfied that McCullough crossed the border before they were given any knowledge of his getaway and are not very optimistic of their chances of capturing him. They are of the opinion that if McCullough and his female accompide do not continue in the best of triendship, it will only be a matter of time until they will be able to apprehend McCullough.

He had a reputation of operating for one week, obtaining jewelry-and money in exchange for forged cheques, afterwards sojourning in London. The police oredit him with obtaining nearly $500,-000.

A. P. Macaulay, the Toronto mining broker, was arrested in St. Louis three years ago as "Christmas Keough," and was positively identified as the man wanted for passing Bank of Commerce cheques. It cost film a great many thousand dollars before he was released as a case of mistaken identity and with an apology from the courts.
