But should Quebec be hard up?
The Remedy.

What Quebec needs is to quit worrying about race and creed, and to put in a government that will develop the province, conserve its vast natural advantages and nationalize them for the public good. In this sense, Mr. Bourassa is a "nationalist." He proposes to introduce a clean, honest up-to-date government in Quebec. He frankly admires the Whitney government in Ontario and would probably go even fur-ther towards public ownership. He is French to his finger tips. He is a Selection from the new operation. V. He (Arranged by J. Waldron) Selection. Reminiscences of All Na-Catholic, almost an ultramont he therefore can afford to say to his people: "Trust your neighbors of Ontario. Respect yourselves and your beliefs and traditions. But get down to business. Be practical: put hopest can

able men in charge of your government. Develop your great wealth, your great ties, and get your share of ngs of Providence.. ABOVE blessings of Providence .. ALL THINGS DO NOT DISSIPATE YOUR RESOURCES BY IMPROVI-DENT DEALS WITH GRABBERS

AND GRAFTERS.". The Prospect. In the cities and among the younger Liberals, the Nationalists, led by Bourassa, Lavergne, Robitaille and Asselin are making great gains and the Con-servatives will vote with them. Has the movement yet struck root among the Habitants? That is the anxious question, and it can hardly be said to have been decisively answered the assemblage at Montmagny.

There is, of course, the possible solution that Laurier and Bourassa may "divide the kingdom." With Bourassa and his followers busy at Quebec, the sunny Sir Wilfrid would find no one from Quebec in his way at Ottawa. Conservatives run in tween the Liberals and the Nationalists and carry off the prize?
Apparently not. For the present, in provincial affairs at least, the cause of good government seems to demand
