

WHERE LACROSSE BOOMS.

The Game Has Passed Through a Period of Revival in Manitoba and Now Clubs are Flourishing.

Manitoba entered a period of blight in lacrosse a few years ago, and has just emerged therefrom. This revival is due to the fact that the game was played professionally here for the first time last season, and although the innovation acted disastrously to the lacrosse of the city the island braves actually had a good year of it, and the game is now being played in a more healthful manner, even for a short period of the season, than it has been for many years.

The almost entire dismissal from public view of the game of lacrosse for six years past in the province is due to the fact that the professional element is beginning to be forgotten and the amateur element is being neglected. The game is now being played in a more healthful manner, even for a short period of the season, than it has been for many years.

THE LICENSE LAW.

Judge McNeill Reverses a Decision by Magistrate—A Detective's Breath.

A curious case came before the Police Court of Toronto lately, in which Alexander Leslie, manager of the Gladstone House, was charged with having sold liquor during prohibited hours on Sunday, Oct. 10th ult. The evidence for the prosecution showed that the liquor had been supplied on the day in question by some one other than Leslie or the licensee. It was contended for the defence that as Leslie was neither the licensee nor the actual seller of the liquor he could not be convicted. This contention prevailed and the prosecution was abandoned.

From this conviction Leslie appealed to His Honor Judge McDonald, who, after hearing argument on Nov. 3, quashed the conviction with costs, holding that the prosecution was entirely without foundation and that so long as the premises were licensed no one connected with the house could be convicted of selling without a license. The magistrate, however, concluded that Leslie as manager was the occupant of the house and responsible for the offence charged, imposing a fine of $50 and costs.

The trial of this case disclosed a new feature in the methods of the professional whisky detective. The detective in the prosecution was one who had with him a police constable, whose duty it was to smell the breath of the detective prior to his entering the house. When it was free from the fumes of strong drink, and again to inhale the breath when he came out, and compare with the strong beverage. On the journey to the next hotel a disinfecting process was carried on by the consumption of cloves, which rendered the detective again capable of performing his duties for the trial. The house to house, so that at the end of a hard and honest day's work, what he had done was to smell the breath of the detective prior to his entering the house. When it was free from the fumes of strong drink, and again to inhale the breath when he came out, and compare with the strong beverage.
