Another False

Fire-Alarm

Dangerous Practice -- Offenders Liable to Two Years Imprisonment - $10 Reward Offered for Information.

Another false alarm was sent in to the central fire hall last night, and the whole department was given a hard run through the mud. Box No. 15, at the corner of Fullarton and Ridout streets, had been maliciously broken open at 7:25 o'clock, and when the brigade arrived no fire could be found. This made the third such call that have been turned in this week, and the perpetrators are still unknown. A reward of $10 has been offered for any information that may lead to the conviction of the guilty parties. The offense is an indictable one, and section 492 of the criminal code renders the offenders liable to two years' imprisonment. That very serious results have not attended this senseless It IS Denied and rapidly increasing practice is a matter of good fortune. The danger of leaving the city practically without fire protection even for a few minutes is not to be lightly estimated, and in addition to this there is the risk to both men and horses that attends every run by the department to be considered.

With the old boxes this opportunity for the practical joker was not possible, as then the keys had to be obtained from a near-by resident. But one of the great advantages of the new boxes is in the fact that the keys remain constantly in them, and are reached merely by breaking a glass cover, thus doing away with the dangerous delays of the old system. Unless the vandal spirit which has been manifesting itself so actively is checked by the police, the fire department will be compelled to abolish the present easy method of sending in an alarm and return to the former Matrimonial Doubt-Thomas Johnston Released on Making Restitution to G. B. Deacon.

At the police court today, George Keenor, a big, strong man of about 28 his aged and widowed mother.

Mrs. Eliza Keenor is about 60 years old, and told a pitiful tale of how George had assaulted and kicked her out of her own house at 337 Waterloo street, on to the sidewalk. The trouble arose over the ownership of an old chair, With tears in her eyes, she said: "I am an old woman, and ready to meet my God. His conduct nearly turned my mind, and I prayed to God to keep my mind, and he did." The old lady wiped her eyes, and related that George had brought a "wife" home, in the person of the notorious Mary Reedy. She continued: "George says he's married, but people tell me he's "Are you married, Keenor?" asked the court. "Yes-sir," drawled the abashed prisoner "To whom-that Reedy woman who lived with Hall?" "Yes, sir." "Are you married to her for good or only until Hall comes out of the penitentiary?" Before the prisoner could answer, another question was fired at Keenor: "Where were you married?" "At Woodstock."

"A feller down there-I don't know his name.' 'So you are married?" "Well," said Keenor, "I told her I would be her husband." Mrs. Keenor said George brought the woman home and she was too old to keep them both. "Ten dollars or twenty days," said the magistrate with a scornful look. Thomas Johnston, against whom a charge of fraud was laid by George B. Deacon, was allowed to go on making
