Dompierre, south of the river, and six miles west of Peronne, has fallen to Gen. Rawlinson's men. The intervening terrain to Peronne is fairly level and open, but the Germans are struggling to hold the British in check.

French Move Eastward.

French troops have moved eastward in the Roye sector an average of nearly two miles on a front of 12½ miles. Roye, one of the principal points of the German defence south of the Somme, apparently fell to the French because of the pressure north and south of it. Gen. Debeny now is moving toward Nesle, which is but five miles east of this line, as it stood late Tuesday. The French occupation of Hallu and the British capture of Vermandovillers outflank Chaulnes on the north and south.

PARIS, Aug. 27.—In an advance which reached two and a half miles at certain points on a twelve-and-one half mile front today, the French captured Roye and seven villages, according to, the war office announcement tonight. The report says:

"The enemy was forced today to hasten his withdrawal on both sides of the Avre. On a front of twenty kilometres our troops advanced more than four kilometres at certain points. We occupied Hallu, Franzart, Cremery, Gruny, Carrapui, Roye, Baucourt and Crape-au-Mesnil.

pressing the Germans steadily eastward.

Every means known to modern warfare are being used by the enemy to stay the onrush of the British and French, but the allied machine moves on. Heavy reinforcements have been thrown into the fray by the Germans, mostly in the centre around Bapaume. The one desire of the enemy appears to be to find a line where he can stand long enough to make an orderly retirement.

Marshal Foch, however, is giving the enemy no rest. There is no letup in the allied pressure, and each day the active fighting front is being extended on the north and south. Each extension is marked by further gains, adding to the perif of the enemy centre, which fights desperately to prevent the British from breaking through.

British Advancing.

On the north, astride the Scarpe, the British have broken through the Hindenburg line on a front of ten miles or more, and continue their push after an advance of three miles on Tuesday. They have reacted Vis-en-Artols, in the rear of the Hindenburg line, and have broken through, or almost reached, the reserve line known as the Queant-Drocourt switch line. The British here are advancing on the main roads to Douai, is only eight miles from Douai.

Bapaume itself is now part of No Man's Land, but the Germans are clinging to every foot as long as possible. North and south of Bapaume the British have made only slight progress against the enemy defence. Great confusion is reported behind the German lines on this sector, and the enemy is digging a trench line to the east of Bapaume.

Artillery Duels.

It is a week since the British attacked north of the Ancre. The Germans have struggled every hour of that time on a continuously lengthening front to stabilize the situation, but have failed. It may be significant that the enemy command has not seen fit to launch a Agreement To Be Reached To mand has not seen fit to launch counter-offensive on another part counter-offensive on another part of the front.
