GEORGE T. HISCOX INTENDS TO SELL

SEEKING HIS YOUNG MASTER, DOG JUMPS FROM HIGH WINDOW

Injured, But Will Recover From His Terrible Fall.

The devotion of an Airedale dog to his newsboy master, and the strong, loyal, brave heart that beat under his shaggy coat of hair were shown in the following experience that occurred today.

Early this morning the dog rushed into The Advertiser editorial rooms looking for his small master. He was not to be found. The animal made worther tutile round of the rooms and another futile round of the rooms, and then, before he could be stopped, rushed to the end of the hall, bounded to the window sill and jumped from the third-story window to the lane below. Killed? No. He dragged himself onto the street and lay there. Constable Baxter of the police force was passing. He was not the man to see a dumb animel in distress and pain. He sent for the patrol and the dog was hurried to the dogs' hospital run by Dr. W. J. Wilson on King street. "Surely he is going to get better," "Surely he is going to get better," said Dr. Wilson in hearty tones this afternoon, "He is a beautiful animal, and well worth owning. Inspector George Burgess of the Humane Society was down looking at him, and he will find a good home if no one claims him."
