al patterns—this she learned later. Mr. Driscoll looked at his daughter, and eyes averted with pleasure. "Doesn't she look well?" he asked at last.

Like a rose in bloom," Mr. Butler said, and Louise blushed with pleasure and looked, indeed, like a rose.

"Shall I ring for tea?" she suggested. "You are going to stay for dinner, aren't you?"

"With pleasure, if I may," the visitor replied.

"I'm afraid the hot city doesn't agree with you, my dear," Mr. Driscoll said. "A time, watching Louise closely, she poured the tea over great saucers of ice in the tall glasses. "Come back to work," Louise said. "I know that's the best thing for me to do now, and I know what you want to work at too."

"What's that?" Mr. Butler asked in interest.

The sort of decorating I did at my house in the country," Louise said. "Father, you never saw my house, and now it's rented to strangers. I suppose you never will."

"Are you going in for interior decorating?" Mr. Butler asked. "It's rather overworked field, unless you're an expert."

"No, I'm not so ambitious as you are," Louise answered. "I want to decorate nurseries and I've an idea. I'll have some of those quaint English or Priscilla cradles made in plain wood and the funny little chairs made for children 200 years ago, and the small chests of drawers, instead of old mahogany I'll do in sanitary enamel with fairy figures painted on them."

"That's a good idea," Mr. Butler said. "I had ceased to be bored. I was learning how to paint a little, and I was on, enthusiastic over her."

"I shan't start work until fall, meantime I'm going to take painting lessons to improve myself."

"Better wait awhile before you go into work," Mr. Driscoll advised. "I have an idea for something that will do you much more good than this."

Louise turned to him questioning.

"I'm going to St. John's," he said. "If you've heard me speak of and I want to take you along," he said. "I'm trying to persuade Murray, but he won't come."

Louise smiled with pleasure. South America! What a delightful adventure it would be to go there.

Tomorrow—Murray Butler.

cessity to Irrigate Dominion Equally Keeps Liquor Stream Small.

Orders for liquor pouring into Montreal from eastern and western Canada, which must rank with Ontario in the distribution, explain why the quantity of liquor which has so far reached Toronto is less than the estimate. Montreal dealers have been asked for quotations on quantities from one case to a carload. One carload was distributed by a Toronto distillery yesterday, and two other carloads came in from Montreal. The big staff which is engaged by the express companies to handle the traffic has had plenty of time for rest, up to the present. The quantity of Scotch whiskey available in Montreal is said to be short, but the arrival of two ocean liners due today is expected to augment the supply. A Toronto distillery reports that its shipments are about normal, which is a carload for local distribution and a carload for outside markets.

CITY HALL NOTES

After the final meeting of the old city council yesterday afternoon all the members with the exception of Mayor Church and Controller Maguire held a caucus in the mayor's parlour for the selection of committee chairmen for the year and also to select the members of council to sit on the exhibition board. Two names selected will be placed before the council on Monday next and probably adopted unanimously.

Alderman G. Birdsall was elected chairman of the works committee; Ald. W. R. Plewman chairman of the property committee; Ald. J. R. Beamish, chairman of parks committee; Ald. J. A. Cowan chairman health committee, and Ald. A. R. Nesbitt chairman legislation committee. Alderman Birdsall made a big fight to beat Ald. Birdsall for the works committee and Ald. MacGregor ran Ald. Plewman high for the chief office on the property committee. Both, however, went down to defeat.

No less than seventeen aldermen were anxious to sit on the exhibition board as representatives of the city. From the energy of the competition one of these seats appears to be the prize of council appointments. After many divisions the following were elected: Aldermen F. W. Johnston, F. M. Johnston, S. Ryding, C. E. Blackburn, Brook Sykes, W. W. Hill, and P. G. I. Whetter. Of course many of these names may be altered when put before the whole council, as they are only the recommendations of the aldermen's caucus.

Yesterday afternoon the city council rang out the defeated and retiring aldermen and controllers and on Monday day next they will ring in the new. The municipal R. I. P. was given to seven members of the council. Aldermen McMulkin, Graham and Williamson retired before the elections, whilst Controllers McBride and Robbins with Aldermen Ball and Maguire go back to business life by the will of the people.

Mr. R. S. Muller, president of the R. S. Muller Company, Limited, was yesterday in the city, full of pep and enthusiasm as usual. Mr. Muller sees great prospects for advertising during 1920 and reports business with his agency as being unusually good.

DISEASE DEATHS DROP IN ONTARIO

Fatal Communicable Cases Show Decline of Over Eighteen Hundred.

From a statement issued by the provincial board of health yesterday it is shown that there were 7368 deaths from communicable diseases throughout the last year, as compared with 9219 for 1918, or a decrease of 1851.

The largest falling off is in influenza and pneumonia, there being 7158 deaths in 1918, when the "flu" epidemic was on, as against 4735 last year, or a drop of 2423. There were 1359 deaths from scarlet fever, 40-70; diphtheria, 428-267; measles, 21-85; whooping cough, 78-193; typhoid, 145-142; infantile paralysis, 11-11; cerebro-spinal meningitis, 49-39.

There were nine deaths from small-pox last year and two in 1918. Deaths from other causes were as follows, the figures for last year being given first in each case, followed by those for 1918: Scarlet fever, 40-70; diphtheria, 428-267; measles, 21-85; whooping cough, 78-193; typhoid, 145-142; infantile paralysis, 11-11; cerebro-spinal meningitis, 49-39.

There were 3029 venereal cases reported last year and 38 deaths, the latter being all from syphilis, as against 1498 cases and no deaths in 1918, but the syphilis cases are only given for five months in the latter year.

TWO MINOR FIRES

Fire of unknown cause broke out at 37 Grange avenue at 5.30 last evening, doing $1,000 damage. The damage to the building was $300 and $300 to contents.

At 6.37 last evening fire of unknown cause broke out in a house at 60 Market street, causing $275 damage. The damage to contents was $200 and $75 to the building.

CIRCUS INVITES WOUNDED

Fifteen hundred soldiers who are now in Toronto military hospitals will be admitted this afternoon and tomorrow to the monster midwinter circus the G.W.V.A. is giving at the armories. Special events for the boys will be added to the regular program of circus acts.

The circus will be continued the rest of the week. Thousands of Toronto folk are visiting the show daily. The horses exhibited by Madame Adelaide Bedini and the work of the Nelson family of acrobats, are features of the very creditable performance.

workers during his seven years on the council.

Ald. Maguire, who was given quite a reception, hinted he might come back next year in a position higher than that of alderman. Ald. McMulkin also intimated his intention of seeking re-election when business matters were not quite so brisk as at present.

Ald. Ball, who was received by cries of "Good Old Herb," said he intended in the future to take advantage of all the good-will shown toward him in the big vote he received. He had three big interests in the council: (1) the future of the abattoir; he handed the care of that matter to Ald. MacGregor; (2) assessment reform—Ald. Honeyford would look after that; (3) the Mount Pleasant railway—Controller Maguire would take that matter in hand.

Ald. Sykes is the busiest member of the council in putting motions on the order paper. Ald. Ryding is running him a good second and Ald. Honeyford is coming up well in third place. As the majority of these motions remain on the paper from one year to the next, there is no harm done in aldermen filling in their spare moments in thinking out old and new ideas.

There were 23 new smallpox cases in the city yesterday and one of them was sent to the hospital. The remainder were quarantined in their own homes. There are now 1200 persons under quarantine in the city.

WIFE CHARGED WITH THEFT.
Maris Ricca, 44 Walton street, was arrested last night by Detective Ketter and Turt, charged with stealing $300 from her husband. The prisoner is alleged to have left her husband two years ago, and when she went away is alleged to have taken his money with her.

Mrs. "Alderman" Hamilton will take her seat in the aldermen's ring and a special seat will be given her in the council chamber. She will probably use the library as her "members' room." Mrs. Hamilton is anxious for a seat on three councilors, but it is doubtful if the aldermen will put so much responsibility on a new member of council.

ment: The act thrust implies that the board is a legal entity with rights as well as duties and in that view it has a right to be heard in court. Under the law a mandamus is not granted unless the applicant can show that he has a clear, legal, specific right to ask for the intervention of the court. No such right is given to the board specifically or, as I think, by implication. The applicants having acted in good faith and in the public interest, it is not a case for costs. The attention of the government should be drawn to defects in the act.
