CASE AGAINST STEAMER. Recently in the police court six informations have been laid against the steamer D. J. Purdy for alleged non-compliance with the regulations laid down by the department of inland revenue. In 1918 a special war revenue act was passed whereby all steamships had to charge a certain tax on all tickets, berths, seats, etc., keep a record and make returns. It is alleged that the D. J. Purdy failed to do for the years 1918, 1917 and 1916. The case was postponed until Friday morning at eleven o'clock. H. H. McLean, Jr., appeared for the department of inland revenue.

FURTHER EVIDENCE IN BAERHAM CASE

In the police court this morning three men charged with drunkenness were remanded. One of them, an elderly man, was arrested at the Union Station by C. N. R. Policeman Pierce, and he had $87.81 with him. Arrangements are being made to find out where he lives and to send him home.

Ernest Brown was arrested last night on a complaint made by Mrs. Pease, Duke street, who said he created a disturbance and destroyed her furniture.

One boy was arrested by Policeman Hamm last night for lying and larking in a barn. It was found later that the lad escaped from the Boys' Industrial Home on July 9, 1918, and went to the farm. He was remanded this morning.

A case against Hugh Patrick, charged with committing a statutory offence, was resumed. Daniel Mullin, K. C., and W. R. Scott are the counsel in the case. A case against Arthur Baerham, charged with stealing articles valued at $224, from the store of W. H. Thorne & Company, Limited, was resumed. J. F. Tilton, one of the directors of the company, said that the defendant had been in the employ of the company about five years, but left in December, 1918, and to his knowledge had been back only once since then, and that was two months ago, when he saw him in the cellar of the middle store. On cross-examination by the counsel for the defence, the witness said that it was not unusual to see former employees in the cellar of the store. The witness also said that within the last year the company had prosecuted persons for stealing goods from the store. He also said that some of the goods alleged to have been stolen on the night of June 24 did not seem new and he would judge that they had not been taken from the store on the night in question. John W. Gill, a clerk in the paint department, said he had been employed by the company about six months since his return from overseas, but previous to the war had been employed there. On the afternoon of June 24, about 5.30 p. m., he said he was in the cellar and the defendant came down, being asked for whom he was looking he made no answer, but was told that if he was looking for Scott, he was on his holidays. The defendant asked "Have you anything on your hip?" The witness said he told him that there was something suspicious about him, and that he was being asked for whom he was looking. The magistrate added "It is better than some of the stuff they are drinking in the city now."

The witness said after the conversation the defendant made for the King street side of the store. The case was again postponed until Tuesday morning at ten o'clock. W. H. Harrison appeared for the prosecution and E. S. Ritchie for the defence.

REV. S.W. STACKHOUSE DID NOT RUN AWAY

His Solicitors, Powell and Harrison. Assent His Innocence and Put a New Face on the Matter

Having received information to the effect that Rev. S. W. Stackhouse, whose name is mentioned in connection with the Holmes divorce case, denied absolutely any guilt in the matter, the Times-Star this morning interviewed his solicitors, Messrs Powell and Harrison as to his attitude.

His solicitors told the Times that no papers of any kind were ever served on Mr. Stackhouse, and that he had no notice whatever of any papers being issued implicating him in the divorce suit. About a fortnight ago his solicitors here advised that proceedings had been taken for divorce and that Mr. Stackhouse was named in the label as a guilty party, and they immediately procured from the registrar of the divorce court a copy of the label, and communicated with Hon. Mr. Murray, the proctor for the plaintiff, and afterwards with Mr. Wallace, the plaintiff's counsel. There is, they explained, no provision in the divorce act for Mr. Stackhouse intervening, and it is doubtful whether he could do so under the old ecclesiastical law. There was not time to have the matter determined whether or not Mr. Stackhouse had the right to intervene, and as the proctor in the case refused to grant time, the trial proceeded.

Mr. Stackhouse's solicitors offered their undertaking that Mr. Stackhouse, although the time they say is scarcely ripe yet, would be on hand with witness to deny the charges against him contained in the label, or to be served with any process, criminal or civil, that any person might desire to have issued against him in connection with the Holmes matter. The Times asked if it were true that Mr. Stackhouse had left the country to escape prosecution. His solicitors replied no, this was an unqualified truth. Mr. Stackhouse some years ago had a serious attack of internal troubles, for which he was treated by a physician in the United States, and the worrying over the slanders about concerning him brought on a recurrence of the disease. He came to St. John and stayed with his wife's relatives for quite a time, at least some weeks after the plaintiff's return from overseas. A considerable time before Captain Holmes's return some people induced Mr. Holmes to sue Mr. Stackhouse for adultery. This course, from a legal standpoint, was simply absurd, as a married woman could not take proceedings in bastardy, but it would be a very effective method of temporarily blanching the reputation of Mr. Stackhouse. The proper course to have taken was to have preferred a charge against Mr. Stackhouse for adultery. There was no secret about his being in St. John, and he remained here to meet any legal proceedings that might be taken until his physical condition forced him to go to his old physician for treatment. His solicitors said it would be improper to discuss the facts of the case until the matter is disposed of by the courts, but they went so far as to say that the entire confidence in Mr. Stackhouse's innocence, and the Times man inferred from some further remarks that the future has some astonishing revelations in store.

SIX FOR ST. JOHN

Hospital Ship Araguaya at Portland—Men Home Tomorrow

Aboard the hospital ship Araguaya, which arrived at Portland, N. B., today, were about thirty soldiers for this district. They are expected here tomorrow. A wire to Charles Robinson, secretary of the New Brunswick Returned Soldiers' Commission, today said that a second section would be run from Portland with the Boston train, reaching the city about one o'clock tomorrow. Arrangements have been made so that it will be unnecessary for the men to go to Fredericton to receive their furlough—officers will meet the train at McAdam and then proceed to receive their furlough. This will mean that all men for New Brunswick may go direct to their homes for the time of their leave, before reporting to hospital for discharge or further treatment. The following is a list of those returning to the city—Privates J. F. E. Carman, 80 Charles street; E. R. Ougler, 74 Lombard street; J. F. McCullough, 84 Union street; E. B. Jack, 57 Cranston avenue; A. Carter, 41 Simonds street; R. Kimble, 49 Elm street; G. Norris, Delhi street.
