AWFUL OCCURRENCE IN THE WEST.

A story comes from the Porcupine Hills to the effect that a well known farmer wanted his son to get up early and go to work. The boy has a habit of answering "yes, sir," and going to sleep again. On this occasion last week, the farmer to make no mistake, called the boy, got the "yes, sir," and then slid up the stairs, turned down the covers and gave the person a good spanking. It happened that on that night the hired girl had been given the boy's room. When the tumult was over the man sat down behind the barn and drafted out a written apology to the hired girl.—Macled Gazette.

ST. JOHN STAR.

ST. JOHN, N. B., MAY 12, 1903.

ASSISTANCE IS WELCOME.

The Telegraph this morning ridicules Messrs. Fowler and Hale, M. P. because they urge the necessity of action in the matter of the maritime provinces and the Grand Trunk Pacific. St. John should rather welcome the co-operation of members for outside constituencies in a matter of such interest to this port. In his speech at the Osborne banquet, Hon. Dr. Pugsley took particular pains to say that as a member for Kings county he was in full sympathy with St. John, and he laid particular stress upon the importance of harmonious action by city and country. Dr. Pugsley therefore does not agree with the Telegraph. Neither does the board of trade, the municipal council nor the city council. All these bodies recognise the seriousness of the situation, in view of the very guarded and non-committal statements of the president and manager of the Grand Trunk before the parliamentary committee, and they are pressing their views upon the government. This is not a time, therefore, when St. John should ridicule those who advocate the city's cause. Past experience, under all governments, has shown that when St. John wants anything it should strengthen the hands of its representatives to the fullest possible extent. That is all Messrs. Hale and Fowler have suggested, and it is being done. It would have been in any case, but that is no reason for rejecting their good offices with contempt. Let us have all the assistance we can get in this contest, in which Canadian ports are threatened by the friends of a foreign port. A despatch to the Telegraph says that Sir Wilfrid Laurier has given to the maritime liberal members what they regard as satisfactory assurances. Let assurance be made doubly sure.

A HINT FROM JAPAN.

One reads with much interest of the rapid advance of education in Japan. "Within the past year," says an article in London Engineering, "the position and salaries of teachers have been improved, the courses of study have been adapted to the practical purposes of life, and more complete arrangements have been made for enforcing the attendance of children at school, and for assisting the diffusion of general education. Special attention is now being paid to hygienic conditions and to physical training, so that all questions which are being discussed in this country are receiving attention in Japan. Secondary and technical education has been made more complete, and the minister of education remarks that the people generally have begun to attach more importance to education; and now, instead of complaining about their heavy burdens, they seem to contribute willingly towards the funds for educational purposes. Consequently, education progresses throughout the country, and the year under review has witnessed marked progress, the percentage of children of school age receiving the prescribed course of instruction being 90.35 (boys) and 71.75 (girls). The number of elementary schools was 15,533 of main departments, and 2,333 of branch departments, the total number being 17,866. The number of teachers was 92,599, of children 1,653,598; of those who had completed the prescribed course of instruction, 745,805; and of those admitted during the year, 1,872,668; while the percentage of daily attendance was 84.61."

The province of New Brunswick might take a lesson from Japan. There is great need in this province of better attendance at schools, better equipment and better salaries for teachers. University education is making great progress in Japan. Engineering says, "It almost seems as if Englishmen might profitably go to Japan to get education in engineering science. There are, it says: 'Two universities—the Imperial University of Tokyo and the Imperial University of Kyoto. The Imperial University of Tokyo consists of the University Hall and six colleges of law, medicine, engineering, literature, science and agriculture. The college of engineering includes the nine courses of civil engineering, mechanical engineering, naval architecture, technology of arms, electrical engineering, architecture, applied chemistry, technology of explosives and mining and metallurgy, with twenty-seven professional chairs. The total number of instructors in the colleges, according to a recently issued report, was 221, including 92 professors, 45 assistant professors, 48 persons specially appointed, and 18 foreigners. Besides these there are thirty-five assistant professors now studying in foreign countries. The number of students in the University Hall was 430, and of students and pupils in the colleges 2,000 and 331, being a total of 2,880. Among the students there was one foreigner in the college of law, and ten in the colleges. The one in the University Hall is a native of the United States, the one in the college of law is a Korean, and the one in the college of medicine is an East Indian. Of the seven foreign students in the college of engineering, four are Chinese, two are Indians, and one comes from the Philippine Islands, while the one in the college of agriculture is a Korean. The Imperial University of Kyoto is more recently founded than that of Tokyo, and therefore is not yet so complete. Still, very good progress has been made. It consists of the university hall and the colleges of law, medicine, science and engineering. Of these the most important in the college of science and engineering, which includes eight courses of mathematics, physics, pure chemistry, chemical technology, civil engineering, mechanical engineering, electrical engineering, and mining and metallurgy, with twenty-five professional chairs and one hundred and eighty-six students."

JOHN McKINNON DEAD.
Principal of Leinster Street School Passes Away.

The many friends of John McKinnon, principal of Leinster street school, heard with deep regret last evening of his death. His illness was very short. Last Friday he performed his usual duties at the school. On going to his house at 11 Wright street that evening he felt unwell and went to bed. Since then he gradually sank until 7.30 o'clock last night, when death came.

Mr. McKinnon had been principal of Leinster street school for about 4 years, and was for many years previous at the head of the Carleton school. About 20 years ago he taught in Albert street school, and was assistant principal when he resigned. He was also teacher in the Charlotte street school before going to Leinster street. A teacher diligent and faithful in the performance of his duties, and of a kindly and sympathetic disposition, he will be greatly missed alike by parents and pupils. A widow and four children, two sons and two daughters survive.

Mr. McKinnon was a native of Wallace, N. S. His wife was Miss Freeman of Amherst, N. S. The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon.

A sad feature in connection with the death of Principal John McKinnon, of Leinster street school, is that only a few months ago his family was afflicted with a contagious disease and for some weeks Mr. McKinnon, in order that he might be able to attend to his duties at school, was compelled to live elsewhere. It was a time of anxiety for him, as he had but slight communication with those at home. It now seems particularly sad that when those of his family who had been ill have recovered, he should, upon returning home, be the first to die.

Mr. McKinnon was one of the foremost workers in the recent Sunday school census, being superintendent for the North and West ends of the city. During his residence in the west side Mr. McKinnon was for some years one of the deacons in the Carleton Baptist church, and superintendent of the Sunday school. He was an energetic and sainted worker, and was greatly missed on his removal to the other side of the harbor.
