Anent Yearly Contracts

Advertising always pays if one has something good to sell. If one has not, it is folly to spend money telling the public about his stock. The Dairyman who has good blood in his herd, who has confidence in his stock, and who appreciates them enough to give them the care and feed they desire, will find, as many others have found, that it pays to advertise regularly.

Advertising always pays. But frequently the largest losses come when the smallest amounts are spent. The advertiser may use a few dollars' worth of space and then discontinue advertising entirely. In such a case, the probability is that buyers will lose sight of him. Had he been more liberal, and had kept his advertisement before the public the returns would have multiplied the expenditure many times.

Difficulty in securing satisfactory returns from advertising, as experienced by some breeders, is due to lack of persistent, systematic advertising. A great market for pure-bred stock is within the reach of every breeder, who reads Farm and Dairy.

The opportunity to reach this market is yours. Will you take advantage of the service Farm and Dairy can render you? Write our advertising department this week to sign a yearly contract to advertise your stock during 1911, commencing with the first issue of January.
