SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTHWEST LAND REGULATIONS.

The sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. Applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the District. Entry by proxy may be made at any Dominion Lands Agency (but not Sub-Agency) on certain conditions.

Duties—Six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within the miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres, on certain conditions. A habitable house is required except where residence is performed in the vicinity. In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter-section along-side his homestead. Price $3.00 per acre.

Duties—Six months' residence in each of three years after securing homesteaded pre-empt; also 20 acres extra cultivation. Pre-emption patent may be obtained as soon as homestead patent on certain conditions.

A settler who has exhausted his homestead right may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties—must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate 50 acres and erect a house worth $500.

The area of cultivation is subject to reduction in case of rough, scrubby or stony land. Live stock may be substituted for cultivation under certain conditions.

REPUBLICANS MAKE CONSIDERABLE GAINS

Results of Election Yesterday in the United States—Uncle Joe Cannon is Back Again in the House.

[By Special Wire to The Courier]
WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—The Democratic administration to-day surveyed the field of political battle and counted up general losses throughout the country, sustained in yesterday's engagement at the polls.
The President, who retired last night without waiting for detailed reports of the election, awoke to find his party's majority in the house pared down considerably with the returns still coming in and its control of the senate maintained, but with several seats dependent on backward returns. Democratic leaders asserted to-day that the losses in the house, which upwards of fifty additional seats were captured by Republicans, were no more than they had expected. They declared that the administration still retained a good "working" majority. Many districts were still cloudy today, however, and Republicans claimed that the final returns should show the Democratic majority reduced still further, perhaps entirely eliminated.
The general election program in the Progressive vote throughout the country was a source of jubilation to the Republicans. The Progressive lost 9 of the nineteen, which they hold in the present house, on the face of the early returns. These were gained by the Republicans, who also won back many former "rock-ribbed" Republican districts which fell to Democrats in the 1912 landslide. Victories in these districts brought back "Uncle Joe" Cannon and several of his old associates in the house from Illinois. Former Representatives McKinley, Fuller, Rodenburg and Sterling will return to the places they occupied when "Uncle Joe" wielded the speaker's gavel. Connecticut, where the Democrats lost all five districts, also returned two former members, Ebenezer Hill, one of the framers of the Payne tariff law, and John Tilson. Cy Salloway of New Hampshire, also won back his seat that was wrested from him in 1912. Nicholas Longworth, another former Republican member, also won back his seat in the first Ohio district.
Three breaks in the Democratic "solid South" were claimed to-day by Republicans and one by a Progressive. In the fifth Maryland district, Sidney E. Mudd, a Republican, was elected. J. J. Britt claimed victory in the fight against Representative Goggin in the tenth North Carolina district, and W. P. Martin, Progressive, was in the lead on backward returns in the third Louisiana district.
The results in the house will shift the Democratic leadership in that body. Majority Leader Underwood, who has piloted the Democratic side since 1910, and who handled the Wilson legislative program in the house, was elected to the speaker's chair from Alabama. Several Southern members who were re-elected will contest for the leadership. Speaker Clark was elected by an overwhelmingly large vote, and will undoubtedly be the speaker of the next house. Representative Mann of Illinois, who was also re-elected, will retain the minority leadership. The results of the first general direct senatorial election were slow coming in, but the Democrats succeeded in maintaining their majority of ten in the upper body, with hopes of improving it when the last votes are counted.

HOW TWENTY-SIX MEN ROUTED 3,000

Small Body of British Fusiliers Mowed Down Scores With Machine Guns.

A Belgian gentleman living at Port Talbot, has received a letter from a relative in the Belgian army, which is full of the highest eulogy of the British soldier.
"Many of us," says the writer, "have been able to see for ourselves the wonderful phlegm of the British soldiers. They are born warriors. They are soldiers by profession and by trade. Most of them have taken part in numerous campaigns, and many fought in the Boer war in which they gained precious experience. We have listened with admiration to their stories of their chivalrous French neighbors have given to the world of the British soldiers coolness and tenacity in the fight in the region of Quaregnon, where twenty-six Britishers routed more than 3,000 Germans. The fight was witnessed by some of our own staff, and the story is absolutely authentic.
It happened after the different battles which resulted in the evacuation of Mons. The Britishers, who had fought like heroes, must have received with reluctance in obedience, it is true, to orders received from the military authorities, they were ordered to give ground step by step twenty-six Fusiliers entrenched themselves in a farm overlooking a long straight road leading to Quaregnon. They were in possession of several mitrailleuses, and they made holes in the farm door, three lines of three holes in superposition.
"Now, boys," shouted one of the 26, "we are going to clean up these gray devils when they come along. This is going to be Coronation Day. Let each of us take their mitrailleuses in position.
"As soon as the Germans appeared on the road and started attacking the canal bridge the Fusiliers very coolly turned the handle of their deadly guns commencing with the lower tier, and with the same placidity, as a bioscope operator would have done, a fresh picture witnessed from the farm on the 'living screen' by the canal bridge was one that will not easily be forgotten. The 'gray devils,' as the Germans are now commonly called, dropped down in hundreds like those 'tin soldiers' (made in Germany) which our children arrange in long lines on the table and which fall in one big mass when the first one is slightly touched with the finger. In a few minutes the corpses were heaping up. Then followed another onslaught by the mitrailleuses placed against the upper part of the roof followed immediately by a fresh deadly sweep and by another one.
"There was nothing left for the Germans but to continue their march along the road, which gets narrower just before entering the village. They had not more than 200 yards before a fresh rain of lead which was kept going for a long time and mowed them down like grass, and in still more considerable numbers than the first fight. With a wild rush, the remainder of the Germans, about 150 stormed the door of the new farm which sheltered the enemy but found only the mitrailleuses, conscientiously firing at the twenty-six Britishers, who had disappeared like a conjurer's rabbits, to rejoin their regiment without having sustained the slightest injury, after having routed 3,500 Germans.
