> A curious incident of the bee world is reported from Hampshire, Eng. A cottager took two large bars of honey and a square section from one of his hives. This honey he put into a large pan and covered it with cloth, placing it in an up-stairs room of his cottage. During the day the bees got scent of the honey through the open window, crept under the cloth cover, and took away all the honey in an incredibly short time, and stored it in their hive again. The quantity was about 10 pounds in weight.

How many farmers' wives are there who do not know that a hen's egg which is washed before it is marketed is not possessed of nearly so good keeping qualities as an unwashed egg? The most successful packers of eggs now apply a coating, resembling as nearly as possible, chemically, the coating of which the eggs have been deprived by the cleanly housewife. The keeping quality of the eggs is aided or hindered in accordance with the time that elapses between the gathering and the packing. Hence the propriety of all eggs being marketed

Words are but leaves." It is not what we say, but what Hood's Sarsaparilla does that tells the story. The many wonderful cures effected by this medicine are the fruits by which it should be judged.
