Baby's Awful Suffering from Eczema.

Could Not Hold Her. She Tore Her Face and Arms.

Cuticura Saved Her Life, So Mother Says.

when my little girl was six months d, she had eczema. We had used ad creams and all kinds of remedies, cold creams and all kinds of remedies, but nothing did her any good, in fact, she kept getting worse. I used to wrap her hands up, and when I would dress her, I had to put her on the table for I could not hold her. She would hick and scream, and when she could, she would tear her face and arms almost to pleces. I used four boxes of Cuticura Soap, and gave her the Cuticura Resolvent, and she was cured, and I see no traces of the humour left. I can trathfully say that they have saved her fife, and any one suffering as she did, I should advise them to give Cuticura a far trial." MRS. G. A. CONRAD, Lisbon, N. H., Feb. 7, 1898.

One grain of the active principle in Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will digest 3,000 grains of meat, eggs or other wholesome food, and this claim has been proven by actual experiment which anyone can perform for himself in the following manner: Cut hard-boiled eggs into very small pieces, as it would be if masticated, place the egg and two or three of the tablets in a bottle or jar containing warm water, heated to 98 degrees (the temperature of the body) and keep it at this temperature for three and one-half hours, at the end of which time the egg will be as completely digested as it would have been in the healthy stomach of a hungry boy. dent occurred just west of the vil-lage yesterday afternoon. The point of this experiment is that what Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will do to the egg in the bottle it will do to the egg or meat in the stomach, and nothing else will rest and invigorate the stomach so safely and effectually. Even a little child can take Stuart's Tablets with safety and benefit if its digestion is safety and benefit if its digestion is weak and the thousands of cures ac-complished by their regular daily use are easily explained when it is un-derstood that they are composed of derstood that they are composed of vegetable essences, asoptic pepsin, diastase and Golden Seal, which min-gles with the food and digest it thoroughly, giving the overworked stomach a chance to recuperate. SOMETHING ABOUT CHAIRS.

Antique Chairs-Chairs For Special Uses-Souvenirs of Travel.

"That chair." said an old lady, "takes me back to the days of my childhood. It is exactly like one that my grandfather had, and I can see just how he looked and hear again the tones of his voice." The magic of an inanimate object when linked with some distant association was evidenced. Buying a chair nowadays is an easier matter than in the days of our colonists, when only the most well to de were supplied with this article of furniture brought from across the seas.

The lover of antique furniture will make extraordinary searches for the old chairs, knowing that their wood was slowly and carefully seasoned, the workmanship accurate and durable and the patterns plainer and often better than those of modern times Chairs are the first necessity in fitting up a house. In deciding what must be bought, what would be desirable to have and what could be done without the chairs will take a prominent position. A great variety of chairs and every degree of price awaits the purchaser. If a good selection is made the room begins to take on an atmosphere of interest. If a commonplace chair is installed the op-portunity for making an attractive interior is thrown away.

In the tea corner shown in the illustration an inexpensive little bamboo table has the usual outfit of teapot, cracker jar, cups and saucers. A nar row shelf fastened against the wall holds a supply of extra china. The chair used while pouring tea is an East Indian rattan in hourglass shape and, with its bright colored cushion at the picturesque element in the room. Another chair not illustrated is a lounging or divan chair, something like a deck or steamer chair, but more graceful in design than either, and altogether comfortable when supplemented by a few cushions. The ideal position for such a resting place is on piazzas or lawns where a hammoch is unavailable.

In searching for souvenirs of travel the home lover sees in the chairs of different nations an entertaining furnishing for her own abiding place, a Flemish chair in black oak for the library, for instance, a Savonarola chair for the hallway, wooden benches from Tyrol for the den, and old English chairs for the dining room and brough Europe one summer. The idea expanded as the many products of the countries opened unrealized opportunities. The number soon out grew the omiginal modest limit, and when they reached this side the first cost was found to be largely inreased by the duties.

Historic wood may be made into a chair and thus preserved in a useful as well as an interesting way.
