

What Will You Do?

Your Life is Precious. Save it! Paine's Celery Compound Can Restore You.

'Tis Folly and Madness to Defer the Use of the Great Medicine.

'I am tired and weary of this continued life of misery and suffering! This is the heart wail of thousands of poor, nervous and sleepless men and women...

Have courage, suffering brother and sister! Paine's Celery Compound has cured thousands of cases in the past...

What will your doctor do for you? Will you allow the many symptoms of disease and death to more fully develop...

The ablest physicians admit that Paine's Celery Compound is the only true nerve food and medicine that has ever been given to suffering humanity...

Eating Before Sleeping. All animals except man eat before sleeping, and there is no reason why man should form an exception to the rule...

Home Enemies. Home enemies in the form of package dyes and dye composed of a large proportion of common soap...

They Mislead and Deceive Inexperienced Women. Home enemies in the form of package dyes and dye composed of a large proportion of common soap...

Immense fortunes have been made out of the banana business. Revenue do not accrue alone from the sale of the fruit...

The bravest battle that ever was fought, shall I tell you where and when? On the maps of the world you'll find it not...

No—not with cannon or battle shot, With sword or sabler pen. From the lips of wonderful men...

But deep in a walled-up woman's heart, Of women that would not yield, But bend, silently her part...

No marshaling troops, no horsemen— No banner to gleam and wave! But, oh, these battles they last so long— From babyhood to the grave...

Stabat in a child is at first like a soldier's wail, if neglected, it becomes a thread of twine; next a cord or rope; finally, a cable, and then who can break it?

There is no happiness in having and getting, but only in giving; and the world is on the wrong side in the park of happiness—Henry Drummond.

The Mighty Czar.

Under the young Czar, Nicholas II, Russia is shaking her vigorous limbs and forging forward on the living issues of the day. She even has a "liquor question" like the other folks, and has gotten around to about the same conclusions as the most progressive. She has tried the dispensary system under government control, with profits turned over to the government, and declares it a failure so far as decreasing drunkenness. One of her leading journals swings gracefully around into prohibition water, and glides out upon it in this wise:

But it is clear at all events that no sort of effort to promote temperance will do away with drunkenness. It may be possible to mitigate the grosser and more flagrant external evils of diabolical consumption of liquor; but drunkenness will exist just so long as liquor will be sold.

To abolish drunkenness is possible in but one way—by abolishing through absolute prohibition, the manufacture and sale of liquor. We have spoken of this repeatedly before and no one should imagine that the total abolition of the consumption of liquor is an unattainable dream. Liquor is far from being a necessary article of consumption or a condition of human existence, and consequently it can be stricken from the list without the slightest hesitation or apprehension regarding the future welfare of the masses and the government.

How is this from the steppes of Central Asia? America would better neglect her oratory and jingoism for a time and devote herself to this practical question before the Kings of Africa and the czars of Russia send missionaries to our shores.

Prohibition in Maine.

FROM GOVERNOR BURLINGHAM'S OFFICIAL ADDRESS, 1891.

That prohibition has accomplished a vast work for temperance in this state since its adoption will hardly be denied. The liquor traffic is no longer respectable. It is under the ban of popular condemnation. Those who engage in it are criminals in the sight of the law. The open dram shop, with its flouting signs and glaring windows, is no longer a feature in our state. The rum seller is forced into dark corners. He has been obliged like other criminals, to resort to concealment and stealth where, before the advent of prohibition, he pursued his traffic with openness and ostentation. The whole traffic has been forever relegated to the furtive ways of crime. It is not easy to estimate fully the great temperance work which this change has wrought in Maine. But there still remains much to be done in educating public sentiment that it shall everywhere insist upon the faithful enforcement of the laws. Maine stands by the emphatic declaration of her citizens in the very van of temperance states. In keeping her there the friends of prohibition must spare no effort or chink no responsibility.

A Temperance Sermon.

In a general order to the United States army, relative to the health and efficiency of the soldiers, General Miles, the commander-in-chief, says: "The history of other armies has demonstrated that in a hot climate abstinence from the use of intoxicating drinks is essential to sustained health and efficiency." The Old Times Evening Journal pertinently remarks that it is an interesting coincidence and a valuable temperance lesson that the commander-in-chief of the British army, Lord Wolseley, has expressed a similar opinion, and that with his concurrence Sir Herbert Kitchener absolute prohibition of liquor in the Sudan campaign.

Six Reasons for not Drinking Cider.

- 1. Because the poison of alcohol is in it, or is liable to form in it at any time.
2. Because it will create an appetite for stronger drinks.
3. Because a large proportion of the 100,000 drunkards who die every year in this country begin their downward course by drinking cider.
4. Because nine-tenths of reformed men who go back to their cups do so by drinking cider or other similar drinks.
5. Because I am responsible for my own example.
6. Because if I drink cider I cannot consistently say that my neighbor ought not to drink beer.

Some men profess to be afraid that the destruction of the drink traffic would leave men no temptations with which to contend, and to exercise their strength of character. They do not give themselves any anxiety on that account, for there would still be many temptations left to fight.

So long as the sleepless man every mother's son is in danger of becoming a drunkard.

It only takes a woman five minutes to clean up a man's desk so that it will take him two weeks to find anything he wants. Collingwood—I suppose you are familiar with the works of Bobby Burns? Camperdown—Certainly, and also with those of Robbie Browning, and Billy Shakespeare and Jack Milton. "What's the matter, Chawley, dear boy?" "I'm in a perfect rage. When I went into a restaurant and called for Walker, and they sent me a bit of money. "Where did you get them?" "From my wife's discarded hats."

A Maine parter tells the story of a witness who related to tell the amount of his gross income. Finally, when the judge ordered him to answer the question, he said: "Your Honor, I have no gross income; I'm a fisherman in Machias bay, and it's all net."

A West Gullible (Mo.) man tells a queer story about a stone that grows. It is an egg shaped flinty looking rock, which he picked up in a cave near his home over 20 years ago. Then it weighed about 12 pounds and from its odd shape was kept in the house and on the doorstep as a curiosity. As the years passed the stone increased in size. Six years ago it weighed 40 pounds, and now it tips the scale at 55 pounds. The owner swears it is the same stone, and tells a likely story, with numerous witnesses to back him up.

The instinct that teaches dumb animals to find their way to their old haunts after they have been removed many miles is one of the mysteries of nature. Recently a farmer living near Lexington, Ky., found a lean and footsore dog whining at the door of his home one morning. The dog had formerly been owned by the farmer, but had been given to a friend who had moved to Kansas 700 miles away. The dog had been carried to Kansas on the cars, but had managed to wander to its old home, longing for food as it went and going rapidly that it was nearly a cripple when it reached the old home door.

Sorcery for Odd Moments.

It isn't the change that a woman works in a man so much as the change she works out of him that costs.

Penitence for a fault done is highly commendable. It earns forgiveness in this world as well as in the next.

Kind Old Party (to sobbing uncle)—My little lad, you shouldn't cry that way. Urchin—What other way has I cry!

"Speaking of getting a tooth pulled," said the Coroner, "Philosopher, what is one instance where a man is bound to stay and see the thing out?"

Propose—"I lay all my fortunes at your feet, sweet one." Sweet one—"Yes, and grab it up in a hurry as soon as we are married."

Bobby—Mother, can I have another cruller?—Mother—Just give you. Did you eat the whole of it? Bobby—Not the hole, but I ate all around it.

Minards Liniment Cures Dandruff. "What sort of girl is she?" "Oh, she is a mis with a mission."

"Her mission is seeking a man with a mission."

Man often expresses contempt for women's ability, and yet how many of the men you know could not do a thing that they would be willing to work themselves to death for.

"I have here," he began, "a little poem, the child of—"

"Sorry," interrupted the editor, "but I couldn't think of taking a child away from its parents."

"The doctor would like to see you beside," said the maid to the caller who was waiting in the reception room.

"Not much!" said the startled patient, "he can't try no X ray on me."

Mr. Muggs—"That horrid Mr. Ellis told Mrs. Nextdoor that I was a regular old cat. "What do you think of that?"

Mr. Muggs—"I think the horror was you in the same room with a mouse."

Divinette—Quite a number of birds have figured in the war with Spain.

"Yes, birds. The American eagle, the Canary, the round robin, and the dove of peace."

Minards Liniment Relieves Neuralgia. Rube Hay—What did yer put the two stars in my leinards for?

Water—Why do I drink it with?

Rube Hay—Gul darn yer impudence, becuz I cum from the country, dyer take me for a sucker!

A shopkeeper, who had for his title obtained the name of the "little rags," was asked by a stranger why this appellation was given him. To distinguish me from the rest of the shopkeepers," answered he, "who are all great rags."

Fred—You seem to have been a pal dealt taken with that Mr. Douglas last summer.

Gertrude—What makes you think so?

"I've seen a not a dozen pictures of you and him taken together in a hammock."

"Tel me," said the teacher, "what is the difference between wrong iron and cast iron?"

"Well," replied Will, smiling. "The shoe worn by a horse is wrought iron shoe, but when the horse loses the shoe from its foot it becomes cast iron shoe."

They were of the irredeemably selfish type. One of them heaved a sigh and remarked: "I have been thinking."

"What a pity it is, dear boy, that the Prince of Wales doesn't live in the United States!"

"Never mind, old chap. Be thankful for what you have. It's something to be living on the same earth with him."

Minards Liniment for Sale Every where. "You remind me so much of my sister," said a man at a restaurant after they have waitress, to one of the prettiest with whom he sought to flirt.

"Yes," said she. "Now, isn't it funny you remind me so much of my brother?"

"Indeed," said the grateful young man. "In what way?"

"Why, he never could mind his own business."

And then the gossip ended.

A boy was taking his father's breakfast in a breakfast when another boy came up to him and gave him a kick on the back.

"Do you care about me kicking you?" asked the new-comer. "No, I don't," replied the other boy. "Do you now?" said the former, pointing the can another kick.

"No, I don't," answered the latter. "Do you now?" cried the infuriated bully, giving the can such a kick that it knocked the bottom out.

"No, I don't," again replied the boy with the can. "I'm another borrowed from your mother this morning, and you'll know all about it when you get home."

C. C. RICHARDS & CO. DEAR SIR—I have great faith in MINARDS LINIMENT, as last year I cured a horse of Ring-bone, with five bottles. It bittered the horse but in a month there was no ring-bone and no lameness. DAVIES, Manchester. Four Falls, N. B.

The man dinner was half over, when the president, a fine big fellow of about seventeen years' service, turned to a young, jointed, shaggy man, who happened to be seated on his right, and who you a quick eater?"

The poor boy, somewhat taken aback, being addressed by one so much older than himself, nervously glanced round the table to see if any other old hands were being satisfied that he was not the only one, said: "No, I don't think I'm any quicker than any body else."

"No, you are a quick eater!" inquired the president again, somewhat haughty, and it was only after some little time that the last joint was gathered round the table to a new, jointed, shaggy man, who you a quick eater?"
