OFFICIAL CIRCULAR TO THE COURTS OF EUROPE.

The infatuation of Russia equals her arrogance. Here, at the close of a campaign, in the course of which her arms have been subjected to every humiliation and defeat known to civilized warfare, she proposes, with a cool audacity, or an utter obliviousness of current events, to revert to the untenable position she held prior to the commencement of the war! She absolutely ignores the existence of anything in the shape of European international law, and claims the right to wreak her will upon her original victim, without the intervention of the police of diplomacy!

Telegraphic despatches from Berlin announce the publication of a circular addressed by the Czar's Ministry to the representatives of Russia at the different Courts of Europe, in which is announced the construction or interpretation, in accordance with which the third of the Four Points would be accepted by that Power. The conditions, as interpreted by Russia, are as follow:—

"1. The principle of closing the Straits shall be maintained.

"2. No military flag shall be admitted into the Black Sea, except that of the naval forces which Russia and Turkey shall judge it suitable to allow, by common accord.

"3. The amount of the forces shall be fixed by a direct understanding between Russia and Turkey, without the ostensible participation of the other Powers."

In other words, the interference or supervision of the Allied Powers or of the European States generally, is utterly repudiated: and Turkey is to be left hereafter at the mercy of her enemy, more exasperated than ever against her on account of the efforts she has made to secure the protection of her friends. If this intelligence be correct, there is an end of all hope that the pending negotiations will result in peace, or even in any serious discussion. A Ministerial organ, referring to the Czar's circular, observes that Russia consents to do "something less than the Powers assembled at Vienna declared to be necessary." This "something less" happens to be of sufficient magnitude to involve the whole question at issue between the belligerents.

The prospects of peace with which we have been amused for the last month recede before us like the lake that only exists in the mirage of the desert. While we have been agreeing on conditions, the foundation of which is the pacification of the Black Sea, and tracing on the map the new frontier which we are disposed to allow to our adversary, the Court of Russia has had other dreams, and announces far other grounds of pacification. With unheard-of and intolerable insolence, Russia announces in the same breath, that she assents to the third condition of the Conference of Vienna,—that is, to put an end to her preponderance in the Black Sea,—and that, with the view of carrying this condition into execution, she consents to exclude the Western Powers from that sea altogether, and to leave it to be navigated by so many Russian ships of war as Turkey and Russia may between themselves agree upon. Such a proposition is not an overture,—it is an insult. The offer of peace on such terms is a new outrage—a fresh provocation to war. What can be hoped from negotiation with a Power which, after such a series of reverses as have fallen upon Russia since the close of the Vienna Conference—her armies defeated, her finances deranged, her fleet destroyed, her coasts ravaged, her rivers beset and blockaded,—can find no terms except such as she might impose, had victory followed her standards as pertinaciously as defeat? To exclude the allies from the sea that they have made their own, in order to give back the dominion over it to a fleet that is buried beneath its waves, to regulate the equipage of power between herself and Turkey by a convention to which the principal belligerents are to be no parties, to leave the cause of European independence to the keeping of the treachery, the timidity, or the venality of the Divan, are terms so disastrous and ignominious, that we must lose more fleets and armies than Russia has lost before we can stop so low—before we can regard such terms as any thing else than a fresh outrage and a fresh provocation.

The Great American Hair Tonic.

Bogle's celebrated Hyperion Fluid, for the growth and preservation of the Hair is well known to be without a rival on this continent. Hundreds of imitations have started into an ephemeral existence, since the introduction of this unrivalled Hair restorative, and their doom has been sealed, whilst Bogle's Hyperion Hair Fluid, with a popularity never attained by any other article, goes on "conquering and to conquer." There is no malady, which can affect the Hair, but can be cured by this incomparable preparation. To ladies it is invaluable; and on children's heads it lays the foundation of a good head of Hair. It is now patronized by Her Majesty the Queen of Great Britain, and commands an extensive sale throughout Europe.

Bogle's Electric Hair Dye converts red or grey hair into a beautiful black or brown, the moment it is applied, literally dyeing the hair without staining the skin and leaving the Hair soft and glossy without injuring its texture in the least; a decided superiority over all other Hair dyes.

Bogle's Amule Shaving compound renders that usually unpleasant operation (shaving) a decided luxury.

Bogle's Hebeaiona removes Freckles and tan from the face in the shortest possible time, and is acknowledged to be the very best article for beautifying the complexion.

To be had, wholesale or retail, of W. Bogle, 227, Washington street, Boston, U. S.
