Something for Nothing.

By RUTH CAMERON.

Mistakes of one sort or another are an inevitable part of daily living.

Only people who make no mistakes are dead people. As a young woman, I saw a man last week who had not made a mistake for four thousand years. He was a dummy in the Egyptian department of the British Museum.

And one of the most valuable men who ever lived, namely Gladstone, confessed, "No man ever became great or good except through many and great mistakes."

The Only Way To Defeat Failure.

The only way to defeat failure is to make of it a rung on the ladder of success.

And the only way to do this, as we have often been told, is not to make the same mistake twice.

We hear that warning frequently, and it is an excellent one.

But there is another which is just as necessary.

Don't be so afraid of making the same mistake, that you fly off on a tangent and make the opposite mistake.

I have some friends who bought a house a few years ago in great haste.

They bought in a hurry.

They had to move from the apartment they were occupying; they saw this house, they liked some things about it. They were told that houses were scarce, they hated looking about, and so, without making any systematic search, without looking at the house more than two or three times, without weighing the future, they bought the house.

Subsequently they discovered that the house was too small for their growing family, too far from the primary school, and without sufficient grounds for the children to play in (all facts they might easily have realized before buying).

So They Are Making The Opposite Mistake.

Now they want to move again, and they are so obsessed by fear of making the mistake of being in too much of a hurry again, that they cannot decide at all. They have missed two or three good opportunities. "We don't want to make the same mistake twice," they say. Plainly they are in more danger of making the opposite mistake.

Last time I had to buy a suit I economized; I bought something that would do instead of what I wanted, and thereby saved several dollars. The result was that I was never satisfied. This time I was determined to be satisfied and as a result paid more than on mature consideration, I really needed to.

So the pendulum swings from one mistake to the other.

If we could only stop in the middle!

Good Words For "Theobald"

In Saturday's issue of the Telegram "Theobald" in a closing article bade farewell to the many readers whom he has so well pleased by his "thoughts" expressed each week during the past year. Whether we are to accept this adieu as a final farewell on the part of our valued friend remains to be seen, but I hope not, and I further feel assured that all who have read the "Thoughts of Theobald" will agree with me that not for a long time has a writer gained such popularity—and due and just popularity—as has this writer. This, too, is right, and as it should be, for there is no doubt that "Theobald" has written for TRUTH'S SAKE. He has been the poor man's friend; he has struck out for what is honest and just, and the criticism of the few who could not perhaps see eye to eye with him has not intimidated him at all.

He has proven himself a fearless writer and a just one. He has pointed out "the things that should be." He has recognized reform. He has taken the part of the downtrodden and the under-dog knows a friend in him—and that dog is grateful.

I have heard much severe criticism of some of "Theobald's" articles, but this criticism came from men who belonged to that very class which "Theobald" himself had shown in error. There has never yet been anything of moment gained without agitation, and that force is the whole quintessence of the Press. "Theobald" recognized this, and as a result of his very forcible articles much good has been done.

He is in the beginning took the stand of one who is not to be moved by the adverse opinions of a few whose whole aim is to go ahead and win out, though unworthy the cause and the methods used. "Theobald" did not cater to the great man, though that is one way of soliciting popular favor; rather did he take up the cudgels on behalf of the poor and the weak and the "kept down." It has been a worthy mission and he deserves the kindly recognition of every citizen who knows what the "contumely of the great" means. May he come again and again, and still again. P. J. K.

Belated Express Arrives

The belated cross country express which was scheduled to reach St. John's at noon Saturday arrived at 6.15 a.m. yesterday. We learn from the train hands that from early Friday morning till 10 p.m. the same day the worst storm for thirty years raged over Port aux Basques and Channel. With such great violence did the gale sweep the railway east of Port aux Basques that for several hours it was not safe for the section men to go over the road with their push carts. As midnight approached the storm became less severe and at about 11.45 o'clock the express ventured on from behind the hills at the western terminus and proceeded, slowly over the wind-swept territory till St. George's was reached when a good run was made eastward to the city.

Personal.

Mr. H. A. Saunders, Supt. Anglo-American Telegraph Company, took passage by yesterday's express en route to New York.
Hon. J. R. Bennett is a passenger by this evening's express.

AT THE CRESCENT.

"The Test of Chivalry" is the headliner at the Crescent Picture Palace to-day. This wonderful dramatic feature is produced in three reels by the Selig Company and features James Bradbury and Vivian Reed. "The Test of Mary" is a melodrama by the Biograph Company. Plump and Rant are presented in one of their funniest comedies—"Thirty Days." Professor McCarthy has arranged a new musical programme for this big week-end show.

If Your Throat is Husky, Catarrh Ma • be Starting.

A weak or irritated throat is the first step towards Catarrh. Everything depends on your remedy. A cough mixture slips quickly over the weak spots, drops into the stomach and does little but harm digestion. It's altogether different with Catarrhoxone—it cures because it gets right at the trouble. You inhale Catarrhoxone, breathe in the vapor of healing balsams that strengthen and restore the weak throat tissues. You'll never have colds or coughs. Throat trouble and catarrh will disappear with the use of Catarrhoxone. Get the large dollar outfit which includes the inhaler, it lasts two months and is guaranteed to cure. Smaller sizes, 25c. and 50c., sold everywhere.

Household Notes.

Rinsing is a most important part of washing.

The open fire is ideal for toasting marshmallows.

Ball bluing should be tied in a thick little bag.

The water for tea should always be freshly boiled.

Bacon rinds can be saved for seasoning greens.

It is better not to serve the same meat twice a week.

Use hot vinegar to remove the paint stains from glass.

Three forks instead of one will beat eggs more quickly.

Hard sauce, flavored with both vanilla and lemon is excellent.

Corn that is left over may be used up excellently if scalloped.

Remove rust from garments by boiling in cream of tartar water.

Keep the fat hot if you would have the white of fried eggs fluffy.

Prevent a cake from burning by placing the cake tin inside a larger tin.

Household refuse is better cremated than disposed of in any other way.

Save candle ends and melt together to use as paraffin covers for jelly.

Economical frying is possible only when the fat is carefully saved after use.

Never close the doors of a gas oven until the moisture inside has evaporated.

Never use the same utensil indiscriminately on a coal range and a gas cooker.

Before baking apples take out the core and fill the cavity with figs or stoned dates.

The roots of celery should always be saved and served—some people find them delicious.

Raisins will be easy to stone if they stand in hot water a minute or two before stoning.

The War

As in the Homeric epics, the Trojan would pause in the battle to watch and applaud the glances encounters of heroes on either side, so the cessation of fighting on other fronts of late, entirely accidental on the part of the Allies, seem as if the contending armies agreed to suspend hostilities until Roumanian combat had done its decision. Unfortunately for the decision cannot be far off, and be well for them if it is not, for the loss of most of Roumanian Teutonic attack is proceeding tentatively and logically, while by one the hopeful, factious situation have to be abandoned.

At the moment of writing, the attack has gained considerably from the south, while from the capture of Pitesti, the practical control of the whole system of southwestern Roumania itself would not be a thing very serious in connection with the advances in the Front northwest of Bucharest. If Roumanians are offering resistance and displaying evidence of strength, we know from the Russian campaign this time that it is less likely that the armies that count, and that the Bucharest or any other place be a misfortune mild in comparison with the capture or destruction of a large body of Roumanian artillery and stores. But there is not much likelihood of contingency at present. But may be saved, though it may fail, but more important being the line or lines of defense the Roumanians may be able to hold.

It is not merely the pushing Roumania that has inspired the efforts to conclude it rapidly and successfully. Germany has lost the war in the west—for that matter where—and is now fighting for the East is more than ever her: Turkey has been transformed to an ally almost as valuable as a traitor. If the avenue to Constantinople can be made wider and its fall secure, her resistance, so far, may be made insuperable, and her own position unassailable. Roumania she would have seen this advantage and would menace dangerously Russia's wing. This, and not so much manian territory, the Allies must all costs safeguard. On the Black Coast Dobruja is held, but for time being Dobruja is in the hands of the Roumanians.

THE PATIENT.

The patient is a person who is a doctor in the hope of having his health put back where it originally started from.

Nobody knows why a duck should be called a Patient, but a meal ticket, unless it is owned by the rigid yet delicate ethics of the medical profession. When we the vast horde of budding and less graduates who are not of our medical schools every year land three days later on the pro neck of the plain people it seem as if the visible supply of Patients would run out after a while cause a heart-rending shortage family doctor's book accounts as every graduate discovers some disease which the Patient cannot pronounce, his future is assured as soon as it becomes epidemic which usually takes three days.

The average Patient does not know what is the matter with him until he sees the doctor and is diagnosed some spot where he never felt in his life. It is a great disappointment to a conscientious Patient.
