Big Ben

BIG BEN heads the family of Westlox alarms. He won his success by getting folks up in the world.

Before they let him call you, the Western Clock Co. sees that he runs on time and rings on time. They give him good looks outside to match his good works inside.

All Westlox are made in the same patented way—a better method of clock-making. Needle-fine pivots of polished steel greatly reduce friction. Like Big Ben, all Westlox keep good time.

And, like him, they all have many friends. Look for the family name, Westlox, on the dial of the alarm you buy.

Your dealer has them. Big Ben is $4.00.

The First Battle of the Marne.

H. B. Osborn in Illustrated London News.

There is not a sod in the whole length of the "Catalaunan" where the Boche is now bidden, which has not been a sepulchre since the beginning of historic time. Long before I watched a peasant ploughing, making a tall, shivering pile of his fering post, and saw a white object appear in the wave of earth turning over. It was his tooth. A tooth, it seems, carries all the other bones of a man, and it is just possible that this grim relic had actually there undisturbed ever since the year in which the first battle of the Marne freed the world, kindly, wine-growing West from the nameless horrors of a Mon-fourth and fifth centuries were of ruin and confusion for the provinces of the dying Roman Empire. Wave after wave of alien invaders surged across the frontiers, and passed on to the shores of the Mediterranean, and Rome fell and was sacked; all the world of Latin civilization melted in a sea of savagery, in the of the officina gentium or cesspool somewhere in the un-Asiatic vastnesses. What was these waves in motion? By degrees the West, as it conquerors, had an inkling of the truth. Vandals and Goths were themselves evading the pressure of a nightmare in the Far East—a Mongol ty-growing like a cancer and ex-tingling tentacles in all directions. In 1914, and again, in 1918, history has plagiarized itself. Joffre and Foch have earned the fame of Theodor and the Roman Aetius which is as thunder in the blue hills of Time gone by. There is a double strain of the Tartar in the modern Prussians, which completes the analogy. Once more, also, Geneva (St. Genevieve) has guarded her beloved City of Light.

MACARONI
ould be so Good is what people are of this new Macaroni of Catelli's. It is so rich and rich, and has a delicious flavor, it seems to be a dish altogether.

CATELLI'S MILK MACARONI

is made in a big Sunlit factory—of the genuine Semolina flour and pure, sweet milk. It is dried in special dust proof rooms by means of clean air, kept at special temperature.

If you know Macaroni only as a tough, stringy dish, strongly flavored with cheese, you have a treat in store when you use Catelli's Milk Macaroni in some of the deliciously varying styles given in our new book—"The Catelli's".

A Queer Collection of Relics.

The Eccentric Club, in West End London, possesses the most curious collection of relics to be found in any similar institution, and they have been contributed from all parts of the world. Until its removal to St. James's, the roll of members consisted of exactly 999; the 1,000th man was always on the "waiting list." The motto of the club is "Nil nisi Bonum" (Nothing but Good). Its emblem is an owl. Its clock possesses two figures only on the dial—viz, a XII and a XIII, for it opens at noon and closes—except in war-time—at 4 a.m. The club's treasures include things almost as old as the world and as young as the war of to-day. It is quite up-to-date in having a jagged fragment of a bomb, which has been presented to the members. It is a nasty, ugly bit of metal, part of the first bomb dropped from a Zeppelin upon Antwerp on August 24, 1914. The club has lots of china, but a bit of real "China" is a brick from the Great Wall of China. It is a white-grey slab about a foot long and six or eight inches wide, and was once part of the wonderful wall—built as a protection against Tartar invasion—which was begun about 200 B.C., took forty years to build, and "zigzags" across the country for 1,500 miles over the tops of mountains and into the depths of valleys. Amongst other relics are to be seen the truncheon of a special constable of the time of the Chartist Riots, and a cutlass and sword used at the period of the Fenian Rising, in 1867.

Are You Master

or does your business master you? Does it insist on following you home and to bed and worrying you day and night until you are on the verge of nervous collapse? A few weeks' use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food will do wonders for any business man or business woman whose nervous system has failed to stand the strain. It nourishes the nerves back to health and vigor.

The Antiquity of Artificial Limbs.

Since many of our gallant soldiers who have returned from the front have been deprived of one or more limbs through the severe wounds sustained in action, the question of artificial limbs has been much to the fore. Few people, however, have any idea of their cost, but think a few shillings covers the outlay. As a matter of fact, an artificial member of the body is an expensive luxury. A good leg, well made and serviceable, will cost the wearer from £15 to £20; while for a fancy article, with all the latest improvements—such as joints, &c.—almost any price may be paid. Artificial arms cost about the same amount as legs. This manufacture is of very ancient origin. Sergius, the grandfather of Catinella, in early life lost his right hand in battle, but made himself an iron substitute, with which he could handle and use to advantage sword or lance. About fifteen years ago a tomb was opened at Capua, which contained a remarkable specimen of a well-made artificial leg. It was composed of thin sheets of bronze riveted together and fastened to a wooden core. Iron bars connected the leg with a bronze belt round the waist of the skeleton; and there were traces of a wooden foot.

The oldest tree on earth with an authenticated history is the great big tree of Burmah. For twenty centuries it has been held sacred to Buddha, and no person is allowed to touch the trunk. When the leaves fall they are carried away as relics by pilgrims.

Holyrood Garden Party.

The Last Great Event of the Holiday Season.

The destruction by fire of the beautiful Church of Holyrood and the subsequent public and eminently successful and generously responded to appeal for help to restore the church by the reverend Pastor Father Finn are well-known facts of past history. But the Garden Party to be held next Wednesday is an event of future significance and paramount importance with the object of raising funds to add considerably to those already collected for the purpose of rebuilding the church. Rev. Father Finn and his committees of ladies and gentlemen have had several meetings organizing for the great event of the next week. A great wave of garden party enthusiasm is radiating from the committees respectively presided over by Miss A. Kennedy and Capt. John Lewis, the clerical and secular work being well done by Miss A. Bennett and Mr. Dwyer, so that promising prospects are entertained of making next Wednesday's event the record Garden Party of Holyrood. The Star Athletic Club of St. John's have organized an outing to Holyrood to take part in the Garden Party festivities and Mr. Frank Woods and his secretary have already visited Holyrood to make arrangements to take part in the occasion and have planned to call off a number of sports and games on that day. A cup presented by Hon. M. F. Gibbs will be competed for, and all are doing their very best on that end to make a big success of the undertaking. The men's committee have arranged boat and pony races, swinging boats, dancing and shooting galleries and other attractive games and amusements—all designed to make the day pleasant and enjoyable to visitors. The ladies' committee the making of the enterprise, will serve hot dinners in camps on the field so that the most fastidious epicure will fill up on all the good and hot things he desires. The Carboniferous and Cadet Bands will supply the music for the occasion. The Garden Party will be held in the field of Mr. Wm. Maher where for miles around the prospect extends over as fair a scene as ever rejoiced the sight of man—mountain and valley, forest and stream, town and solitude grouped together in forms of almost ideal beauty. To pleasure-seekers and philanthropists and to all who wish to help out a worthy and necessary undertaking we say come to Holyrood next Wednesday and be greeted with a right royal welcome from Father Finn and his assistants. The founding of the day's festivities will be a dance, refreshments and teas in the Star Hall at night which will undoubtedly add to the day's amusements and proceeds and draw a large number of the younger and sportive elements.

After Sunset.

I have an understanding with the hills
At evening, when the slanted radiance fills
Their hollows, and the great winds
Let them be, and they are quiet and look down at me,
Oh, then I see the patience in their eyes
Out of the centuries that made them wise.
Their thoughts of granite and their
Whims of fern,
And why a dream of forests must endure
Though every tree be slain; and how
The fire,
Invisible beauty has a word so brief,
A flower can say it, or a shaken leaf,
But few may ever share it in a song,
Thought for the quest a life is not too long.
When the blue hills grow tender,
When they pull
The twilight close with gesture
And shadows are their garments, and
The air
Deepens and the will-berry is at prayer,
Their arms are strong around me;
and I know
That somehow I shall follow when you go
To the still land beyond the evening
star,
Where everlasting hills and valleys
are,
And silence may not hurt us any more,
And terror shall be past, and grief and war.

The sea otter is the costliest of all fur. A small skin has been sold for £80; and although this was a fancy price, from £20 to £40 is nothing out of the way. The value is governed by the depth of the black colour, studded with silver hairs, and the richness of the fur. The catching of the sea otter is almost entirely confined to the coast of Alaska.

The air we breathe needs washing the same as everything else. After rain has been falling for some time, the impurities in the air are torn to diminish, and the satisfaction with which we breathe the washed air after a good rainfall is an evidence that our senses bear testimony to its purification.
