Our American Letter.

Our American letter... Charleston, South Carolina, Feb. 3. —Geo. Bernard Shaw, the British author, in his latest article, predicts a war between Great Britain and America, with Japan as an ally of Great Britain. He tries to show that England by insisting on her control of the seas will, when the time comes, attack this country should it attempt to build a navy approaching hers. Shaw's article bristles with sarcasm when it deals with Britain's professions of sincerity in the matter of Belgium's neutrality. According to Shaw, England was ready to attack Belgium if Germany had not done so, and that she could have prevented the war but chose the course which brought it about. Shaw warns the United States that England and Japan will be ready to attack this country at no distant date. Shaw is the English Harden but he is infinitely more dangerous to the peace of the world. He should be squelched along with William Randolph Hearst, and others of his type.

Great public works in the United States are planned to meet the situation which will be created by the demobilization of the troops; $200,000,000 is the sum asked for this purpose and it is expected that in six months an era of unprecedented prosperity will see in that will remain for a decade. Building operations have been at a standstill during the war and when once they begin the problem of unemployment will quickly vanish.

The war has had a bad effect upon negro labor in the South. Large numbers of the blacks were drawn from the plantations and given work at high wages on government projects. They are now averse to returning to the plantations even though they are offered as high as $100 a month. The huge wages earned in war work have completely turned their heads. Many negroes have had as many as 12 sons in the army and drew $50 a month from each of them. The limited mentality of the black cannot adapt itself to new conditions until compelled by necessity.

A photo-play advertised as an idyll of the Newfoundland fisherman presented at one of the theatres turns out to have been filmed in Maine, the sardine fishermen of that State posing as Newfoundlanders.

It is reported from New York that the spoken drama is coming back in public favor. This is delightful news. The world has had a surfeit of motion pictures and will welcome a return to the old days when actors of flesh and blood thrilled us with their interpretations of human hate and love.

Nat. Goodwin the actor who was married and divorced five times died the other day. His funeral eulogy was preached by De Wolf Hopper, the

If Child is Cross, Feverish and Sick

Look Mother! If tongue is coated, cleanse little bowels with "California Syrup of Figs."

Children love this "fruit laxative," and nothing else cleanses the tender stomach, liver, and bowels so nicely. A child simply will not stop playing to empty the bowels and the result is they become tightly clogged with waste, liver gets sluggish, stomach sour, then your little one becomes cross, half-sick, feverish, don't eat, sleep or act naturally, breath is bad, system full of cold, has sore throat, stomach-ache or diarrhea. Listen Mother! See if tongue is coated, then give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs" and in a few hours all the constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food passes out of the system, and you have a well, playful child again.

Millions of mothers give "California Syrup of Figs" because it is perfectly harmless; children love it and it never fails to act on the stomach, liver and bowels.

Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. Get the genuine, made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.

HIGDON-DOWLING.

The wedding took place last evening at Trinity Rectory, by Rev. I. J. Donaldson, of Hubert Higdon, formerly of New Harbor, Nfld., to Isabella, daughter of Fred Dowling, of this city. The groom was attended by Wm. Dowling and the bride by Mrs. Annie Condy. The bride was dressed in navy blue serge with hat to match trimmed with white wigs. The bridesmaid was attired in green silk with hat to correspond. The newly wedded will reside at 75 Maynard St.—Acadian Recorder, Feb. 5.

The Regular Navy Man.

By C. E. Graff, Chief Carpenter's Mate, U. S. N.

He wears no wrist watch nor gold braid
Nor sparkle in the sun;
He don't parade with gay cockade
And posies in his gun;
He ain't no pretty sailor boy
So lovely, epic and span;
He wears a crust of real sea dust—
The Regular Navy Man;
The perchin', lurchin',
Seagoin' urchin,
Regular Navy Man.

He ain't at home in Sunday school,
Nor yet at social tea.
And on the day he gets his pay
He's apt ter spend it free;
He ain't no temperance advocate,
He likes it now and then;
He's kinder rough and may be tough,
This Regular Navy Man;
The rarin', tearin',
Sometimes swearin',
Regular Navy Man.

No State'll call him "Noble Son,
He ain't no ladies' pet,
But let a row start anyhow,
They'll send for him, you bet;
He ain't cut any ice at all
In Newport's social plan;
He's on the job, this husky gob,
The Regular Navy Man;
The millin', drillin',
Made for killin',
Regular Navy Man.

They ain't no tears shed over him
When he goes off to war,
He sets no speech nor prayful
"grace"
From mayor or governor;
He lashes his bag and hammock up,
Treads the gang-plank with the van,
Shoves off to fight with all his might,
The Regular Navy Man;
The rattlin', battlin',
Colt's or Gatlin',
Regular Navy Man.

He makes no fuss about the job;
He don't talk big or brave—
He knows he's in ter fight and win
Or help fill a sailor's grave;
He ain't no mamma's darlin', but
He does the best he can
And he's the chap that wins the
"grace"

This Regular Navy Man;
No Nabby, Pabby,
But cool and sandy,
Regular Navy Man.

Anniversary of a Famous Battle.

The naval battle fought off Cape St. Vincent on February 14, 1797, between the English, under Sir John Jervis, and the Spanish—fifteen sail of the line to twenty-seven—brought England a victory much wanted at the particular juncture, and also gave Nelson his first chance of winning outstanding distinction. Of the nine ships cut off by Jervis before the Spaniards could turn their line of battle, Nelson in the "Captain" supported only by "Frowardbridge" and "Culloden," engaged six. The "Sanctissima Trinidad," the "San Josef," the "Salvador del Mundo," each of 112 guns, and three 74s. Later, Nelson was reinforced by the "Elenheim," Captain Frederick, and the "Excellent," Captain Collingwood; Nelson's ship at that time being nearly disabled and the ammunition almost expended. Yet in this condition he boarded and carried first the "San Josef" and then the "San Nicholas," himself leading the way with the cry of "Westminster Abbey or Victory." The Spanish admiral might yet have attempted to restore the fortunes of the fight with the intact main body of his force, but he declined action, and retired in the "Sanctissima Trinidad," which escaped to fight on another and far more disastrous day at Trafalgar. Sir John Jervis, who displayed commendable decision in engaging a fleet numerically so superior, was raised to the peerage, with the title of Earl St. Vincent, and awarded a pension of £3,000. For Nelson, who had achieved all the tangible results, inclusion in a promotion of rear admirals and the Order of the Bath was deemed sufficient. But his share in the battle, so spectacular as well as so effective, founded that great national popularity which he was to retain and increase until his death.

Songs That Live in Memory.

(From the New York Herald.)

Very many years ago a wise man called Fletcher of Saltoun said that if he were permitted to write the songs for a people he would not care who made their laws, and the sentiment has gone echoing along the corridors of time. The present generation concerns itself overmuch, and not always sagaciously, with the makers of its laws, cares but little for its song writers, nor heeds the warning note in such a lyric as "Johnny, Get Your Gun," made popular at a time when the nation should have been looking to the priming of its muskets. But although we do not know the names of our song writers, the songs themselves make an impression on our minds that remains long after they have become trite and passed into oblivion. There is not one of them, however, that will not in later years awaken memories long dormant. No Highlander can hear "The Cock of the North" without thinking of the plier propped against the wall with both legs crushed and playing that stirring music while the killed soldiers charged. "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp!" and "Rally Round the Flag" bring back the days of the Civil War to many an old defender of the Union. "The Bonnie Blue Flag" still stirs the heart of the Confederate veteran. "There's a Hot Time in the Old Town" recalls to the mind San Juan Hill and the Spanish War, as well as the many ragtime melodies of which it was the first to become popular. Lyrics that catch the public fancy usually voice some passing mood or condition, but there is one theme that never passes—one that served singers and poets before Cadmus invented letters. Such songs as "When Stars Are in the Quiet Skies" and "Douglas Tender and Trips," may come and go, leaving tender memories behind them, but there is never a season, from mating spring to dreary winter, in which the passion that rules men's lives does not seek expression in some new melody.
