DE VALERA RESIGNS.

DUBLIN, Jan. 6.
 Official announcement was made this afternoon that Eamonn De Valera has resigned the Presidency of the Irish Republic. Mr. De Valera said he proposed to lay down his office and the House must decide by constitutional means who is the chief executive. He said the Cabinet also had resigned. At the opening of the afternoon session of Dail, Mr. De Valera said that since the Irish Agreement was signed in London the executive authority of Dail had been irrevocably split. He had since tried to keep together nominally as a unified executive, but the time had come for that to be ended. The President said he and one section of the Cabinet stood for preservation of the Republic, and the other section for quite another plan. There never would be peace, Mr. De Valera declared, until the principle was recognized that the Irish people wanted to live their own lives without the imposition of outside authority. Mr. De Valera said he believed that only by combining the treaty and his alternative proposals could the country be kept together. If the treaty went through there surely would be rebels against the British Government, he declared. "Thank God I'll never be a British citizen. I'll die first." De Valera described his position as one of preserving the balance between Charles Burgess, Sinn Fein Minister of Defence, who surrendered the military leadership to him, and Arthur Griffith, who surrendered the political leadership. He was, he declared, a sort of connecting link between the two sides and had been for four years. A union of these forces was absolutely essential to national success. There could be no question of asking the Irish people to enter into any agreement making them subject to a British king. If war was attempted the Irish people would face it, and the sooner the British Cabinet realized it the better, De Valera declared. De Valera said he had been pressing in his efforts to secure peace. He had drafted his own proposals roughly and asked his Cabinet that it be considered confidentially, but the confidence was broken, and he could not carry on without the confidence of the members of his Cabinet. His own document had been used as a red herring, but he felt he was doing something not only for Ireland but for reconciliation of two peoples. The Treaty, if signed, could not bring peace, for the Irish people would not be British subjects. Arthur Griffith said the President had agreed that a straight vote should be taken for or against the Treaty, and he regarded this move as an unfair attempt at closing the discussion. De Valera said he would not take the responsibility for being the defender of the Republic any longer. Suspension of the order of the day to enable the President's resignation to be considered was then moved for debate. Michael Collins said he had tendered his resignation to the President who had refused it. If the treaty was relieved, he added, the President could have any Cabinet he liked. The morning session had been hindered in receiving the report of the peace committee by three or four bullies. To loud cries of withdrawal, Collins responded, "I will withdraw, but the spoken word cannot be recalled." The House laughed. Collins declared the motion was simply a political dodge savouring of Tammany methods. Harry Boland said if Collins had any Tammany training he might have kept his bullying for Lloyd George. Charles Burgess said if Collins meant him as a bully his acceptance of the taunt would be measured by his estimate of the man making it, and therefore he would take notice of it. De Valera explaining why he must resign said there must be some one in authority. A journalist had been kidnapped and Minister of Finance Collins had sent men to recover him. Collins had no right to send anybody. That was the function of the Minister of Defence Burgess.

LLOYD GEORGE'S STRAIGHT TALK.
 CANNES, Jan. 6.
 Premier Lloyd George addressing the opening session of the Allied Supreme Council to-day warned the Allied powers that they could not look to any others but themselves to work out the economic rehabilitation of Europe. He appealed to the Allies to set aside prejudices and work together to this end. Mr. Lloyd George declared the Allies had reached the point where they must act decisively and broadly, if the economic structure of Europe was to be saved. "The Allies must make allowances for each other's opinions. Too much had been heard of individual claims and interests. All the Allies have just claims," the British Premier said. "I am not a pro-German apologist," he declared. "I have always said Germany must pay to the utmost limit of its capacity. But like lawyers we must consider the case and decide unanimously what measures must be taken to secure payment. The worst thing the Allies could have done would have been to rush Germany into the same position as Russia is now in, where she would be in greater danger and where anarchy would be enthroned among a more efficient people. Despite misrepresentations at home and abroad we are returning to the Council of common sense. Germany's capacity to pay depends upon her foreign trade. Her export trade is only twenty-three per cent. of its pre-war figure. The responsibility rests upon the victors." Mr. Lloyd George declared that Bolshevik propaganda must be stopped. He laid great emphasis upon the point that Great Britain herself had suffered from it in the East and dealings with Russia, he said, must be based upon a complete stoppage of this propaganda. But, he added, the danger would be greater to the Allies if they failed to deal with Russia. If Russia wants recognition she must recognize her honourable obligations and agree not to attack her neighbours, and we must insist that her neighbours do not attack Russia.

NO PRESENT ALLIANCE.

CANNES, Jan. 6.
 Premier Lloyd George has declared there can be no question at this time of a formal alliance between France and Great Britain, it is learned on good authority, but he has held out prospects of a sufficient guarantee to aid France, if she is again attacked as in 1914, under certain conditions. These are, it is said, that France cooperate with Great Britain in the economic restoration of Europe and consent to modifications in the reparation payments of Germany.

PEACE COMMITTEE FAILS.

DUBLIN, Jan. 6.
 Efforts of the Peace Committee of the Dail to bring about an agreement on the Anglo-Irish Treaty failed today, and Dail, which had met in private session this morning, adjourned to meet in public session at three this afternoon.

SYMPATHY.

The cold winds roar against the door, and the snow is flying, and my Aunt Kate remarks, "Some skate is out to-night in all this blowy blizzard; the day will find him dead and blind, or I'm a thimble-wizard." The room is warm and my fat form on cushions soft is resting, and I would spend the evening's end in stinging and in jesting. For comfort's mine, I sleep and dine, conditions all are pleasing; why should I care how others fare outdoors, where things are freezing? But my Aunt Kate, as sad as fate, is murmuring and sighing; "It is a sin to sit within, when poor lost boobies are dying. Ah, hear that cry! Some luckless guy for succor now is yelling, so let us go across the snow and bring him to our dwelling." So winter nights to me are frights, they keep my wet tears falling; for my Aunt Kate is simply great at hearing phantoms calling. My good Aunt Kate, she sits up late, and leaves her tea untasted; she makes me sore, for it's a bore when sympathy is wanted. I'll gladly aid the sent, decayed or any who suffers; but it's a shame for man or dame to take up luckless sufferers.

Famous Old Recipe for Cough Syrup

Thousands of housewives have found that they can save two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough preparations, by using this well-known old recipe for making cough syrup at home. It is simple and cheap but it has no equal for its results. It takes right hold of a cough and gives immediate relief, usually stopping an ordinary cough in 24 hours or less. Get 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex from any drugist, pour it into a 16-oz. bottle and add plain granulated sugar syrup to make 16 ounces. If you prefer, use clarified molasses, honey or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way it tastes good, keeps perfectly, and lasts a family a long time. It's truly astonishing how quickly it acts, penetrating through every air passage of the throat and lungs--loosens and raises the phlegm, soothes and heals the membranes, and gradually but surely the annoying throat tickle and hoarse cough disappear entirely. It is a great relief for bronchitis, spasmodic croup, hoarseness or bronchial asthma. Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, known the world over for its healing properties. Avoid disappointment by asking your drugist for "2 1/2 ounces of Pinex" with full directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. FAULTY HERRING PACKAGES.

Dear Sir--Please allow me space to pen a few remarks as regards the shipping of Scotch pack herring to market. As inhabitants of this globe we Newfoundlanders are in a class to ourselves, and evidently intend to hang on there. In most civilized countries, appearance as well as utility is considered in packaging this product and rightly so, as both are essential in the profitable selling of any commodity, or at least that is my opinion, but here in this country the very opposite seems to be generally the case. Now, Sir, what brings this subject to my mind is the present shipment of Scotch-pack herring going outward by the Rosalind. I saw a long cart being driven through Water Street to-day. I think there was five barrels of herring on it, and two of the number took my attention and why, just because one of them had two hoops on one end, as bare as a hick. As I was in the cart, I held together by a few nails. This in itself is enough to condemn the contents, or give cause for a rebate. The hoops on the others were inches apart, and there certainly must be but one wooden hoop trying to hold the strain which calls for three good, properly set, strong hoops. Imagine packages in that condition, with no support to the bilge, after getting a bang down the pier, and the steamer. What can you expect will happen when they get to their destination? Instead of being a barrel of God-given food they are a lump of manure, to be brought out and dumped at the foot of the Statue of Liberty as a Newfoundland New Year's gift. Isn't it time that the Fisheries Board to awaken and see that this condition of affairs is stopped. Our herring fishery gets sand-bagged through our own carelessness. Now as there seems a chance of its revival, partially at least, let those in charge, whoever they may be, do their duty conscientiously and see that packages are in a fit condition to hold the contents. The attention of the shippers and the Fisheries Board is called to this matter, as this business concerns a large number of people and is worth taking greater care of. A book could be written on this subject, and lots of faults pointed out, and also their remedies, but I am leaving that to others. Still in the interest of the fishery I think that an Inspector should proceed to Harvey's pier each time a shipment of herring is being sent out, and see that every package is properly coopered and filled with pickles. Has this country to-day got capability, competency and reliability in the supervision of this fishery in all its branches? Maybe it has, but its up to the Government "to make sure that those three qualifications which are essential for the proper and profitable carrying on of this valuable industry are secured. Mr. Editor, there is not the slightest reason for leaky or disreputable looking packages being shipped now, as there are unfortunately plenty of coopers idle at present, who would be glad of a day's work to keep the wolf from the door.

Star of the Sea
 Fishermen's Ass'n.

UNBROKEN FOR TWO THOUSAND YEARS.
 Editor Evening Telegram.
 Dear Sir--To-morrow (Sunday) a two-fold celebration will take place in connection with the Star of the Sea Fishermen's Association. The particular event will be the celebration of the Golden Anniversary of the Association that was postponed last year on account of the Society's Hall being destroyed by fire. The other event will be the opening of a new hall erected within the last twelve months. Although fifty years have past since the inauguration in St. John's of the Star of the Sea Fishermen's Association, yet the Association has the proud distinction of having an unbroken link with the past that no other Christian organization possesses.

The Star of the Sea Fishermen's Association has an unbroken link further back than the time William the Conqueror was crowned King of England in 1066. You can go back before Ethelred accepted the crown of the same country. That unbroken link can go back before Pope Celestine sent St. Patrick to convert the pagans in Ireland to Christianity and again before Constantine in the year of 340, when he saw in the heavens the Insignia of the Cross. Nay, the Star of the Sea Fishermen's Association has an unbroken link that can go back before the first Pope fixed his See at Rome before Rome was thought of being the seat of Christianity. It was by the Sea of Galilee the first Fishermen's Association was formed by our Lord, when he called the fisher's together to carry out his mission on earth, and to consolidate this unbroken link was not He the Son of the Star of the Sea? During the past two thousand years that unbroken link has stood the test amidst persecution, martyrdom, fire and sword. Only twelve months ago as I saw the fiery elements devastating the Hall of the Association in the city I thought of what the unbroken link went through in the ages past. To-day when I look at the noble structure erected within a year I can say as of yore, that link is still unbroken, and will hold even to the consummation of the world's ideals. Believing these few humble remarks of mine are suitable to the present occasion I kindly ask you Mr. Editor for publication of the same, and in anticipation of your complying with my request, I remain Lays Crime to Dual Personality.

The Recorder's Court, Detroit, heard a stranger story Friday that of "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde." Mears pleaded not guilty to a charge of assault with intent to kill, in the Recorder's Court Monday. He told the story of strange whisperings and hallucinations when he was arrested last week for the shooting of John Slack, 53 years old. The two men were friends and the motive for the attack is still a mystery to the police.

"I didn't have the slightest intention of trying to harm Slack," Mears said, following his arraignment. "I did not realize what I had done until the police arrested me. It was all a mistake--a terrible mistake, which I couldn't help because of the terrible voices that are trying to harm me." Mears said that for two years he had been hearing voices.

"When I came to Detroit I went to a doctor. He said I was not the victim of a mesmerist, but was suffering from a form of dual personality. I had just come from a treatment when the shooting occurred. But the voices--I can hear them every minute--sometimes they are happy and sometimes sad. I haven't slept more than three hours a night for six months."
