A Man Becomes Crazy While Making the Circuit.

Iron Ears and a Weman's Dress Skirt Prevent a Tragedy.

FERRIS WHEEL INCIDENT.

[Chicago Inter-Ocean]

The strong iron Lars protecting the windows of a car in the Ferris wheel alone prevented a tragedy yesterday.

A gentleman and his wife, who later gave their names as Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Wherritt, of Covington, Ky., bought tickets for a ride around the wheel. It seems that the gentleman had hesitated about making the trip, as previous experiences in ascending to great heights had always affected him strangely. After the first sickening, fainting sensation he always became possessed of a desire to throw himself off into space. The doctors had told him that many people under the same circumstance were similarly disposed—in fact, that the desire sometimes became uncontrollable. They classed it as a distinct brain disease.

Mrs. Wherritt had on a previous visit to the fair been up in the wheel and she declared to her husband that the floors were level and the ascension so gradual that it was hard for her to realize that she was going up. She also expatiated upon the loveliness of the scene from the windows and its extent, and advised that he try it. So yesterday they both tried it. They obtained seats in the car and placidly moved along until the upper turn was reached, when Mr. Wherritt complained of feeling ill. He almost fainted, but there was no way of stopping the wheel. The car was half full of people, principally women. The man became crazed with excitement, and began to pace excitedly up and down the car, driving the women, whom he had no intention of hurting, before him like scared.

tention of hurting, before him like scared sheep.

He jumped up on the sides of the car repeatedly and was so powerful in his paroxysms that he actually bent the iron bars. The attendant—one goes round with every car—grappled with him, and assisted by two or three other men, attempted to hold him, but their strength proved inadequate for he threw them off easily and made for the door, which fortunately is always locked. He shook it violently, but only succeeded in breaking some of the glass.

Mr. Wherritt continued unmanageable until the car had almost reached the landing, then he became calmer, and breaking down completely, laughed and sobbed convulsively.

The wheel always makes two revolutions before the occupants of any car are allowed to get out. The attendant thought that as the car went by the landing he would open the door quickly and shove Mr. Wherritt out, but the motion was too rapid and the passengers prepared for another scene and struggie.

Mr. Wherritt out, but the motion was too rapid and the passengers prepared for another scene and struggle. Some of them said afterward that Mr. Wherritt's terror was appalling when he realized that he was going up again. He implored that the car be stopped and then begged that they throw him down and hold him. There was some hositation in doing this, as the men in the car had had experience of his strength during the first trip. The three men grappled him, however, and strained every nerve before there was any occasion for force, while women huddled in a corner and looked at him.
