YORKVILLE WATER.

the Toronto Water-works Committee and the Committee of the Yorkville Council.

About five years ago a system of waterworks was established in Yorkville, the water being obtained from a creek running through the premises of Mr. Nordheimer. At this time it was predicted by some that this source would prove wholly inadequate to supply the growing wants of the village, and this summer has to a large extent verified these predictions. Complaints have been made of the quality of the water, which some of the residents have designated "slime," and the quantity has been so insufficient that the reservoir is entirely empty, and in order that the supply of water for fire and domestic purposes might not fail, the use of it for sprinkling lawns had to be discontinued. This state of things is ascribed to the unusual drouth of the season and the increase in the number of

had to be discontinued. This state of things is ascribed to the unusual drouth of the season and the increase in the number of consumers; but whatever the cause, the villagers have come to the conclusion that something must be done, and a conference was arranged between the committee of the Yorkyille council and the committee of the Yorkyille council and the committee of the Yorkyille council and the committee of the Yorkyille with city water-works committee with a view of ascertaining whether arrangements could be made for supplying Yorkville with city water. The meeting took place yesterday afternoon in the executive chamber of the city hall. The subject was introduced by Mr. Gibson, who said that they had found for the first time that their water supply was a little short on account of the drouth and the unexpectedly large number of consumers. They were there to see if it was possible to get from the city a supply of water in case of emergencies. They had already enough for domestic purposes or for ordinary fires.

Mr. Weir said the amount of water required for consumption was 250,000 gallons less than that. It was not that they were actually out of water, but wanted to know what the city would do to assist them in putting out fires. By cutting off the lawns they would have sufficient as it was.

Mr. Hastings said there might be a difference between members as to whether they wanted only a supply during an emergency or a permanent supply from the city. For himself he would like to see the question discussed on two groundis-first, whether they wanted only a supply during an emer-gency or a permanent supply from the city. For himself he would like to see the question discussed on two grounds-first, whether the city would supply them with water; and second, the question of annexation. Ald. Boustead said the question of an-
