of the executive committee meeting Thursfate of the missing man Radford are to the effect that he is alive and within reach of day last] observe that a communication his friends. H. Clay Stephens, a lawyer was received from James French regarding taxes due on the zoological gardens. It is of New York, was interviewed by a reporter last Friday. He said Mr. Radford stopped at the Bremont hotel, New York, in East Fourteenth street, which his sister, Mrs. Mayo, owned until several weeks ago. Mr. Stephens says that he was introduced to Mr. Radford by Mrs. Mayo, whom he has known for several years. Mr. Radford has no object in wishing people to believe he is dead. It is true that he owes about 15,000 in Toronto, but my knowledge of his business is such that I can say that he is worth twenty times that amount. He told me before he went away that a reputable business man here owed him $20,00. I me before he went away that a reputable business man here owed him $20,00. I don't believe he received that money before he returned to Canada. I think he had only a small amount with him then. Mr. Radford came here on the recommendation of his physician, who told him he was over-working himself and ought to take a vaca-tion. He remained here longer than he intended because of the sickness of his sister. I believe he has been murdered or that he has fallen in with sharpers who are should not be pressed in this manner, I would say that the local legislature have unanimously recog-nized it as an educational institution, as that he has fallen in with sharpers who are holding him. He left this city on Monday morning, Feb. 16, on a train of the Erie road. The stories published suggest that among the motives that Mr. Radfbrd might have to wish the public to believe that he was not living is that he is insured for about S20,000 in Canadian and American com-spanies. The cashier of the New York life insurance company said: Mr. Radford got a policy for $10,000 from our agent in Canada in December last. The Niagara river is a favorite resort for men who have their lives well insured. We would re-quire more evidence of Mr. Radford's death than the finding of his coat in a row boat before paying his insurance. Frank D. Sohuyler, superintendent of a New York detective agency, sald he knew Radford personally and had met him sev-eral times during his recent visit to that city. The detective also said he believed Radford was still alive and he could find him without difficulty. $20,000 in Canadian and American com-panies. Capt. Boyton Teaching Emissaries of El Mahdi how to Blow up British Ships. NEW YORK, Feb. 28.-Capt. Paul Boyton, the famous swimmer, is teaching six

Egyptian emissaries of El Mahdi how to use the Boyton rubber suit in blowing up vessels. The lessons have been at night on the Hudson river, at Boyton's home just above this city, and a number of old vessels have been used for the purpose of demonstrating. The reporter called on Capt. Boyton to-day at his home. Several rubber suits hung drying upon the fence, having evidently been used the previous night. The captain was reticent upon the subject, but dropped enough to show that the men were agents of El Mahdi who pro-pose to make it hot for the English fleet when they become thoroughly proficient in swimming and charging a boat with dynamite. "I am acquainted with several Arabs who are in the city for a short time," said Capt. Boyton. "I met one of them in Alexandria, Egypt, when I was over there in 1878. It is true that I have given them several swimming lessons at night during the past week, but I do not know what their object is. I am willing to teach any. body how to blow up a ship with dyna

Woman's Rights Movement in Germany BERLIN, Feb. 28 .- A largely attended neeting of women was held in this city to night. Madame Shacki presided. A resolution was adopted protesting against the legal restrictions placed upon the sphere or hours of women's work. An association was projected to defend women's interests and a committee appointed to which was entrusted the pre-paration of an appeal to the reichstag.
