Williams-Brown

The home of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Brown, Watford, was the scene of a happy event Wednesday, Nov. 3rd, when their third daughter, Rosa M., became the bride of Harry Y. Williams, a prosperous farmer of Warwick.

The arch under which the ceremony was performed was of autumn leaves and smilax. Chrysanthemums were the principal floral decorations. At 6 o'clock the bride entered the parlor on the arm of her father, to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, played by her sister, Mrs. George Edgar, of Brooke. She was attired in an ivory silk poplin dress, trimmed with shadow lace and carried a large bouquet of bridal roses and smilax.

Rev. W. Murton Shore, of Warwick Village, performed the ceremony. Only the immediate relatives and friends were present. The presents were numerous and costly.

The bride's travelling suit was navy blue serge, with velvet hat and rich Persian Lamb furs. In the evening they motored to their new home on the main road, Warwick, followed by the best wishes of their friends.

Cook-Lamb

A quiet wedding took place in St. George's Anglican church, South Battleford, Sask., on Saturday, Oct. 30th, when Miss Margaret Jeanetta Lamb, eldest daughter of Mr. Wm. Lamb, of Watford, was united in marriage with Mr. Norman Cook, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Cook, of Wilkie, Sask., formerly of Watford. After the ceremony the young couple were motored to North Battleford where they took the train for Saskatoon, Watrous and Regina. On their return they will reside on the groom's farm near Wilkie, Sask.

Saw a Zeppelin Raid

Sarnia Officer in Old London Writes his Experiences

The following is an extract from a letter dated Oct. 14th, received from Lieut. Neil Hanna, son of Hon. W. J. Hanna, who is in England. "Last night there was another air raid. I was in the Strand Palace Hotel at the time with a bunch of Canadians. Two bombs lit nearby, smashing all the plate glass windows in the Strand Palace (just the force of the explosion.) We ran outside to take a look and met every one running for our place. One bomb had lit in the street just beside the Lyceum Theatre, knocking chunks out of the buildings around. There were many wounded and we saw some dead there. A little farther up the street, a bus driver was lying on the road in bad shape from the loss of blood.

They had the searchlights, which are wonderful, on one Zepp and the guns weren't coming near it at all. That was about 9.30 and they were around for a long time after that.

About an hour later, as I was on my way home along Hay Market, a big machine with a big platform, carrying a gun, shot up the street at about 45 miles. I didn't get much of a look at it but the guns they use seem about the size of an 18 pr. or a little bigger. I think they are naval guns.

Luckily all the bombs in this raid dropped in the streets, but, at that, a great many more people than reported were killed.

My poor old landlady, her lady boarders and maid spent the night sitting up, but they still alive to tell it.

They're peculiar, but somehow or other the fact of being rather close, when one of those things explodes, does not lessen one's appreciation of their murderous and destructive power. Of the bunch that were killed last night, one, and one only, was a soldier.

They seem to be a combination of shrapnel and explosives, doing a combination job."

Dan McMurry's barn and outbuildings, 2nd line, Plympton, had a narrow escape the other day from being totally destroyed by fire. The work of filling the silo had just been completed, the engine had departed when Mr. Ewart observed smoke issuing from the straw stack, which is close to the barn. He instantly gave the alarm. Mr. McMurry, D. W. Brownlee and himself after much difficulty succeeded in extinguishing the fire.

Children playing with matches set fire to a straw stack of Theodore Vannatter, 10th concession, Bosanquet, the other day. His buildings were saved by the prompt aid of neighbors and threshers who were working in the neighborhood.
