THEY ALL DO IT.

"Say, Darkie, do you read the CANADIAN POULTRY REVIEW?"

"Suah, honey, suah. Couldn't git along without it nohow."

This is what they all say.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

A SHOW IN QUEBEC:

WE are informed that a large poultry association has been formed in Quebec City and that a local show was held there on the 27th and 28th of last month. We wish our Eastern friends a full measure of success.

MESSRS. GEO. HOPE AND-SON, who have been advertisers in the REVIEW for years, are now offering several specialties in cages, birds and pets. Their premises have been greatly enlarged and improved and present a most attractive appearance. Visitors to the city should not miss a view of the many handsome and curious pets to be found there.

EGGS TO NORTH DAKOTA.

We are always pleased to note shipment of either fowls or eggs to any distance, either in Canada or outside of our fair Dominion, as confidence is thus inspired between buyers and sellers at long distances apart. Mr. Wm. Hartrey, of Seaforth, sent a few days ago two settings of Minorca eggs, to North Dakota, which arrived quite safely, and Mr. Massie forwarded four pairs pigeons to a British Columbia breeder.

MR. BUTTERFIELD SICK.

We regret the illness of our good friend and popular judge, Mr. Sharp Butterfield. Mr. Butterfield was booked to judge the show at Winnipeg, but left home feeling quite under the weather and on his way had to give up at Toronto and return home. Prior to this he had been and still is in the doctor's care and now is pronounced much better and on a fair way to regain his wonted health and spirits.

MR. W. BARBER,

at whose house Mr. Butterfield stopped en route was induced to leave for Winnipeg at a moment's notice and the story of his travels and adventures are told elsewhere in his own words. We also present our readers with a very life like portrait of our very English friend with the "very Irish whuskers, be jabers." He is now ready to tackle
