The Church of England Institute. The announcement that Rev. A. J. Town and was to lecture before the Church of England Iastitute, drew a crowded audience. His Lordship the Bishop of Neva Scotia presided. The lecture doalt ences, and through it all ran the whelesome advice to pastor and people, "Mind your own business." It advised the to look upon their church as their spirit ual home; to scorn the carrying of tales or speaking abread of the shortconiags of either the pastor or brethren, as one would scorr to repeat the peccadilloes of one's otro secular houschold, If worshippers were really worshippers, they aotice the manner in which the service ras read, the cut of the paster's gown, or the way in which their brethren actod The locture was couched in beakitiful made.-IIerald.
