AGRICULTURE.

PIGS.

Pigs need clean dry pens, and supply breeding sows with cut straw, chaff, or sawdust, for litter. OXFN.

Oxen, when at work under a hot spring sun, will suffer from the heat. Give them frequent resting spells, and water, with some bran stirred into it. THINNING.

No matter how how thoroughly the first thinning was supposed to be done, the probabilities are that too much fruit is still left, and that a second thining is needed.

MANURE

Should be turned over early in the month, so as to have it rotted as much as possible for use in hill or drill crops. Those who have heeded our advice, to cut all the straw and stalks, either for fodder or litter, will find the handling of the manure heap an easy task. Those who have not, will probably regret the failure, and resolve to do better.

POULTRY.

Many hens will now have laid out their litter, and become broady. Give sitting-hens clean neets of soft hay, and do not set a hen that is infested with vermin. Put such a one in a close coop lined with tarred roofing-felt, and apply grease to her legs and under the wings. Houses may be kept free from vermin by cleanliness, and using grease and kerosene oil on on the perches. SHEEP.

As the days become warmer, ticks will increase, and sheep will appear restless under their blankets. Give them shade on the cool side of a building, or put up a temporary shed in the field where they msy escape the hot sun of noonday. As the sheep begin to nibble the new grass, look out for seours in the lambs. If this appears, give a tublespoonfull of a mixture of peppermint water with prepared chalk, and a little ginger.

HOW TO BUY POULTRY

We all know when poultry comes on the table whether it is tender or tough; but few persons can tell when they wish to buy whether a chicken, turkey, goose, or duck is young or old. The following are given as rules by which poultry can be safely judged:

If a hen's spur is hard and the scales on the legs rough, she is old, whether you see her head will cerroborate your observation. If the under bill is so stiff that you cannot bend it down, and the comb thick and rough, leave her, no matter how fat and plump or some one less particular. A young hen has only the rudiments of spurs; the scales on the legs are smooth, glossy, and flesh colored, whatever the color may be; the claws tender and short; the nails sharp; the under bill soft; and the comb thin and smooth.

An old hen turkey has rough scales on the legs, callosities on the soles of the feet, and long, strong claws. A young one the reverse of all these marks. When the feathers are on, the old turkey-cock has a long tuft or beard; a young one but a sprouting one. And when they are off, the smooth scales on the legs decide the point, besides the difference in size of the wattles of the neck and in the elastic shoot upon the nose.

An old goose, when alive, is known by the rough legs, the strength of the wings, particularly at the pinions, the thickness and strength of the bill, and the fineness of the feathers; and when plucked, by the legs, the tenderness of the skin under the wings, by the pinions and the bill, and the coarseness of the skin.

Ducks are distinguished by the same means, but there is this difference, that a duckling's bill is much longer in proportion to the breadth of its head than an old duck's. A young pigeon is discovered by its pale colors, smooth scales, tender, collapsed feet, and the yellow long down interspersed among its feathers. A pigeon that can fly has always red-colored legs and no down, and is then too old for use.—Selected.

TWELVE HINTS FOR THE SEASON. The season for transplanting is at hand, and a few hants on the subject wili prove valuable to the inexperienced. 1. Never expose roots to the air one moment longer than is absolutely necessary. It is incomparably better to get trees or bushes well packed by a nurseryman than to take them from the nursery loose to carry them a mile or two. 2. If the roots and branches have been at all dried or shrivelled lay the whole tree or bush down in a trench made in good soil, and cover it with fine earth carefully shaken in so as to surround every fibre and branch. A day or two of this bed will partially restore the roots and branches to a healthy condition unless too far gone. 3. Be sure you have good, rich, deep soil for your tree or bushes. You cannot take them up every year to manure and crumble the soil again as with annual crops. Diga good wide hole for each, in proportion to size of tree, and fill with fine, rich surface earth, or the best you can get mixed with old compost, but no fresh manure. Make the earth a little higher than the level, as it will sink somewhat. Do not dig deep unless the ground is well drained, for water may lodge in the hole thus made. 4. Plant so that the soil will come no higher on the stem than it did before. Spread the roots and shake fine earth over them till they are covered; then shake the tree or bush twice or thrice gently up and downtill the mould comes in contact with every root; then press down the earth gently, but not rough stamping on it.
5. If you water atail, which, generally speaking, is not necessary, be sure that you do not use cold water for any tree, bush, or plant. If you have water that has stood in a tub or pond under a hot sun, good and well; if no, use warm-not hot water. It will help to heat the ground and give the tree a start. A great many transplanted trees, flowers, and vegetables get a back-set by drenching with cold water that takes them a month to get over, if they get over it all. Never mind what ignoramuses say or do in this matter of watering with cold water. Avoid it, 6. Planting in the afternoon, or even by moonlight, is much preferable to planting in the morning or heat of the day, especially if the plants, such, for instance, as cabbages, are in leaf. 7. If you have two bundles of trees from a nursery, and plant one in early Spring before the buds have begon to burst while the earth is yet cold, and lay the others unopened in the cellar for a month till the buds have burst even in the dark, you will find the second planting will far outstrip the first. Why? Because in the second case the earth is warm and the cold drought of seed-time is over. It is not too late north of 45 to plant apples or pears near the end of May if the trees have been kept back in a root house but further south the planting should of course be earlier. Goose-berries, raspberries, straw-berries, and cherries, which flower early, require to be planted much sooner than apples or pears. 8. When planting, give your tree or bush as good a shape as you can by judicious pruning, but by no means prune to close. Raspberries and grape-vines are planted as canes, but it is most injurious to reduce harwood trees to that condition. 9. Mulch all new planted trees and bushes with long manure. straw or litter, covering the earth with it to the depth of two or three inches as far as the roots extend, and let it lie loose and rough for a year. It will protect the roots from drought in Summer, and frost in Winter. 10. The cuickest way to kill a new transplanted tree is to water it frequently and copiously with cold water, leaving the earth to be caked by the water and baked by the sun. If you do not rather than water. In extreme cases of backward ness, water occasionally with tepid water, but always stir the soil to prevent caking after being watered. 11. If you plant forest trees, do not take them out of swamps or thick woods, as they have no bunches of fibrous roots in these localities. Get them either from open spots or from respectable nurseries, and not too old, or you will not have the right proportion of roots. 12. Finally, as you must give the same space and go to the same expense in planting, fencing, and tending poor kinds as good ones, be sure you get the best varieties to begin with. Eschew tree peddlers, many of whom will supply any variety of apples you want from the same bundle, their tree being generally outsized cr scallawags, bought cheap as the sweepings of nurseries, and carried so carelessly as to let the roots dry. There are, doubtless, reliable peddlers, but deal with none unless you know them to be such. FLOWER GARDEN AND LAWN.

The work here will be confined to what may b called "keeping," but it comprises a great variety of operations. The grass on the lawn should be mown when it needs it; those who make it a rule to mow regularly at stated intervals, make a mistake; in a hot, dry time, when the grass is making no growth, it is best let alone, else the roots may suffer. Edgings must be kept nearly cut. Shrubs and perenial plants should have the clusters out their object the strict fulfilment of the original conaway as soon as out of flower unless seeds are wanted. Dahlins, gladioluses, lilies and other plants will need stakes, which should be so placed as to show as litt'e as possible. Bedding plants in masses need pinching and cutting to preserve a uniform height; in ribbon planting the effect is spoiled unless the lines are kept distinct, which may be done by proper cutting.

DOHERTY & DOHERTY, ADVOCATES, &C. No. 50 ST. JAMES STREET, MONTREAL

TO THE ELECTORS OF THE

WESTERN DIVISION

GENTLEMEN.

Having received the unanimous nomination of the Reform Party of the City of Montreal, I beg to offer myself as a candidate for suffrages at the approaching election.

In accepting the nomination I do so with the firm purpose of protecting the interests of the city against any efforts that may be made to cripple and embarrass her trade or commercial prosperity If elected, I will support the Joly Administration, in its endeavour to carry out a system of economy and retrenchment.

I shall strenously oppose those measures in connection with the Railway Bill that have not for tract between the City of Montreal and the Directors of the Northern Colonization Railway Company, and the building of the terminus and workshops within the city.

I shall also oppose strongly all attempts at unnecessary taxation.

All measures calculated to further the education of the poorer classes will receive my hearty sup-

Differential Legislation I will oppose as I cannot see the justice of charging more for licenses in the City of Montreal than in any other place in the Province.

I shall also move for a bill having for its object the better protection of the working classes with contractors, making every contractor employed by the Government deposit a sufficient sum as a guarantee against fraud on their part in their engagements with their employees.

As your representative in Parliment Ishall act independently and I shall be found always ready and willing to support measures having for their object the good and welfare of our Province.

Your obedient servant,

J. McSHANE, JR. Montreal, 3rd April, 1878.
