To General

Sir Arthur Currie,

Dear Sir,

I wrote you some time ago, at your request re employment, and received your promise of help. Up to the present however, I have been very unfortunate, being now out of work three months, and absolutely no signs of any change. I met you personally at Windsor Station three weeks ago, and received your permission to write you at Macdonald College, and received your answer and promise of help. I hope you will forgive my bothering you but under present conditions am forced to do so. Anything you might suggest or offer in the way of work, will be gratefully accepted.

Respectfully Yours

Charles G. Howell
