the many lines there was considerable disorganization.

About 6 o'clock the cars were strung along king and Queen-streets near Yonge, for a considerable distance. There was, lowever, no interference with the power.

The auburban lines were reported suffering the most.

The origin of the storm is an evidence that it is equinoctial. The disturbance of the elements began in Texas Sunday night, and last night covered Pepusylvania and Ostario, thus travelling at a rate of 75 miles an hour. Its course was down thru Quebec and the Maritime Provinces, making the fourth heavy snowstorm in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick since the first of the month. Its limit in Ontario was not farther north than Parry Sound or west than the shores of Lake Huron. Between Lake Superior and British Columbia the weather is decidedly mild. Toronto received the heaviest part of the snowfall.

The heavy storm yesterday interfered with navigation, making it impossible for the Macassa to leave port at Hamilton, About a boat's length was all the distance a pilot could see ahead.
