GOULD'S FORMER POSITION. On Feb. 23, at Uxbridge, J. J. Gould, M.P., gave the following interview with a World reporter on the 3-ht made by the yeomen of Pickering against the Bell Telephone Company:

'I have assured these people who are trying to secure equal rights with other companies, that I shall give them my support. I should say, from the

that I shall give them my support I should say, from the investigation I have made, that these people have a grievance. Of course, I presume there are two sides to this question, as is usually the case, tho I have not heard the other side. I know the independent company ought to have the right to enter the Locust Hill Station, at least they ought not to be discriminated against. I know, in the case at our station, business men have occasion to call the depot agent a dozen times a day. I have promised these gentlemen that I shall support the proposition, if it comes up in parliament, in favor of equal rights to all telephone lines thruout the Dominion.

Not long ago the Bell Tele-In nowledgment of the condolences which have been received.

Thruout the day the Vatican was surrounded by crowds which increased toward night. Several thousand entered St. Peter's at Vespers and joined in prayers for the departed. Among these were many of the Italian officers, whose troops, shortly after sunset, were marched from the Vatican back to their barracks. At no time had their services been needed.

It is not the custom in Italy to wear the conventional emblems of mourning, and the crowd which, in consequence of the closing of many places of business, wanders the streets to-night, had more the appearance of an aimless holiday-making throng than one sorrowing for the death of the Pope. Into nearly all the churches, however, hundreds, not often seen in places of devotion, flocked to say a hurried prayer. Afterward they loitered outside reading the deep black-yedged proclamations of Cardinal Respight, the vicar of Rome, concerning the funeral arrangements, the meeting of the conclave and the church ceremonlals.

The quiet of the evening was broken.

Two amendments were proposed, one by D. Fraser striking out the compulsory features of the clause and simply conferring upon it an enabling power which it already posseses, the other by M. A. Mr. Henderson said the evil results of stock speculation were much worse than the evils of intemperance.

Evils of Speculation.

In making his motion, Mr. Bourassa said that at the close of the big financial slump in Toronto, the manager of the Bank of Commerce in that city declared such a crisis was necessary to check the epidemic of wild speculation, Mr. Bourassa thought that financial conditions that required such drastic correctives needed looking after by the government. Banks, even savings banks, he said, had advanced money to aid stock gambling, and many companies had suffered by their operations. If speculation was not a crime it was certainly the cause of crime.
