Municipalities are finding it every day more difficult to rid themselves of corporations which they have enfranchised. The franchise-holding corpora tions, by means of legislation which they were able to secure in the Ontario legislature and with the powerful inflaence they are able to exert at a given point, are prepared to defy each and every attempt to dislodge them.

Nearly every municipality in Ontario has made the mistake of granting franchises extending over a long period of years. They have made the equally grave mistake of neglecting to insert in the charters a clause that would enable them to take over the franchise classic extending over the franchise classic extending over a long period of years. TUESDAY MORNING

A NEW DECEPTION.

In its efforts to prejudice public opinion in Brantford against municipal ones, T. H. Preston and his news paper have resorted to every available levice. They have defended the iniquious Conmee act. They have distorted statistics of public ownership of railways in order to give a back-handed siap to public ownership of telephones. They have deliberately misrepresented the estimates furnished by experts on the question of municipal development of Niagara power. The latter is a glaring instance of The Expositor's disregard of truth in its campaign against all forms of municipal ownership.

"A certain portion of the Toronto press," it says, "was clamorous at one time for the development and control by the city of Niagara power. Expert investigation was made and the result was a report from the city engineer that electric power thus produced would cost the consumer $65 per horse power per annum, or some such impossible figure."

The reliance that may be placed on The Brantford Expositor's "statement of fact" is shown by the following ex- graciously disposed to solve the labor tract from the city engineer's report: problem for the farmers of the North-

"Taking the highest figure, that is the one given in table No. 1, the horse-power at city limits will cost $18.96. Adding distribution losses and the expense of distribution, brings the total amount to $38.16. These figures show that the city should receive an average figure for power distributed sufficiently in excess of $38.16 per annum to prevent any possibility of loss. If we can find a market for 25,000 horse-power, I am of the opinion that this estimate can be reduced to $33."

State of the Manchurian Army.

The equipment of the Russian soldier in Europe and the equipment of his comrades in the far east is as different as it is possible to be. Those who are watching the progress of this war will do well to bear this fact in mind. No troops in the world—neither British, German, American or French—if left in the state that the Russians were at the beginning of this present struggle, could have stood in front of such a perfect military machine as the army of Japan. The shame does not lie with the soldier, but with the men who, to fill their own pockets, left the conscripts naked to their foes.
