A hard cough

that tears you every time it comes, yet persists in coming, usually disappears under the healing power of Robert's Syrup of Cod Liver Oil and Tar. The powerful effect of the oil having been removed, the extractive principles remain to build up wasted strength. Combined with tar this makes a wonderfully powerful corrective for the irritation set up by Coughs, Colds or Bronchitis. Use—

VOICE OF THE PEOPLELONDON'S DANGER PLACES.

To the Editor of The Advertiser:

It seems useless for the ordinary citizen to make suggestions that would protect dangerous places, or help minimize such dangers as are presented for the unwary public on every hand in and around London. Some three or four years ago I wrote the Humane Society of this city, while Rev. Mr. Heakes was secretary, and suggested that lifeboats with lines attached, also long poles with a triple hook at the end, or some such convenient means of help for drowning persons, be hung at all bridges and other places, so help could be rendered at once in case of need. I received reply that my suggestions would be placed before the society, and there it seems to have died, while since many have been drowned who might have had a chance if appliances had been at hand, instead of at the fire hall. The above idea is what has been practiced in England as long as I can remember, more than 30 years. The only lifeboat at the pump-house was thrown to the late Mr. For, but did not reach him. Not a rope could be procured, hose pipe being substituted, which proved useless. Appliances may or may not be of any use if handy, but their entire absence is certainly an invitation to continued fatalities. Everyone cannot swim, and if they could, many things may hinder them from jumping in to rescue drowning persons, such as weak heart, or a weak state of health, or lack of knowledge how to handle a drowning person. Many a good swimmer has been lost in trying to rescue another. Mrs. Thomson's letter and appeal in The Advertiser on Tuesday should not be allowed to fall on deaf ears. Yours, etc., R. S.

PENTECOSTAL REVIVAL.

To the Editor of The Advertiser:

I will esteem it a great favor if you will grant me space in your valuable paper to write a few words of defence for the Pentecostal movement.

The Prophet Isaiah says in the first chapter, "Who hath believed our report and to whom is the arm of the Lord revealed? I can give your request a good report of the above movement for the last five and a half years and if they will believe the report that I give them they will find themselves asking the same question as they did at Pentecost when the holy ghost fell upon the hundred and twenty. "What search this?" Being the son of an old-time Methodist minister I have from boyhood seen Christianity from a very real standpoint. My parents lived out in the home that they preached, and consequently I was drawn to the Lord Jesus Christ when but a boy. As years went by I began to see that our orthodox churches had not the same power as the apostles had when the church was first formed. There seemed to be nothing, but deadness all around, and church congregations were dwindling down as the ministers had gone to depart from the simplicity of the gospel. At the annual Methodist conference the great topic under discussion was how to hold the congregations and attract the young people. Very seldom was it, how can we get souls saved and born into the kingdom? I first came in touch with Pentecost at All Saints Church, Sunderland, filled with the spirit of God, and proselyted as in Acts 2, men and women joined with the spirit of God and proselyted under the anointing, speaking in other languages and sick and diseased healed. I have been privileged to see many cases of real miracles. If you want to see the genuineness of the movement visit the homes of Pentecostal people in your city and they will gladly witness to all that God has done for them. These things that you see and hear are spiritual not spiritualism, which is the Devil's counterfeit for the real power of God. The Apostle Paul says in I Corinthians 14, "But the natural man receiveth not the things of the spirit of God; for they are foolishness unto him, neither can he know them, because they are spiritually discerned." We have people from almost every denomination assisting both Pentecostal assemblies in London since my arrival here four months ago, and then found them to be a real God-fearing, spirit-filled people. Those who are fighting us are doing it in ignorance, and sooner or later they will discover that they are fighting against God. Rev. Edward Armstrong, who is coming to carry on the meetings, is a man who was a large part of the Pentecostal movement in the States, and gave up a handsome stipend so that he might be free to preach a full salvation and be guided by faith for many years now, and proved God for spirit, soul and body. As people are set for the defence of the gospel in this day and generation of ours when there is much of the wisdom of man mixed up with modern Christianity, I esteem it a privilege to witness to these people and share with them the reproach that false reports have cast upon them. The Jewish Sanhedrin, upon his arrival in Rome, "But we desire to hear of these things that thou speakst; for as concerning this sect we know that everywhere it is spoken against, and when they had appointed him a day there came many to him, to whom he expounded and testified the kingdom of God, both out of the law of Moses, and out of the prophets, from morning till evening. And some believed the things that he said, and some believed not. So, dear sir, I am persuaded of this way that it is according to truth, and Jesus said, "These signs shall follow them that believe. In my name shall they cast out devils; they shall take up serpents; and they shall drink any deadly thing; it shall not hurt them; they shall lay hands on the sick and they shall recover." I am yours sincerely, E. BRAMWELL REED, London, Aug. 23, 1917.

AN ENGLISHMAN'S PROTEST.

To the Editor of The Advertiser:

You question in your editorial comments, "We wonder what our friend Mary Jane thinks of the people who made a frolic out of a local funeral." Should not the question have been, "What do our Chinese friends think of the Mary Jane Dick and Harrys who took part in the frolic?" When we first landed on your shores some years ago, Mr. Editor, one of the first things that impressed us was the polite, urbanity and courtesy of the Chinese as opposed to the rudeness and discourtesy of the average Canadian. We have dined in their restaurants, and witnessed at intervals their never-failing self-restraint under most trying circumstances. Students from our universities particularly have acted towards them in most objectionable manner at various times before the war, and committed acts and created disturbances which they would not dare do in a Britisher's restaurant! We were thankful to read your protest against the behavior displayed by the morbidly curious at the funeral, which must have distressed our Chinese citizens with our barbarism!

We pride ourselves upon our civilization, and what has it produced? Vulgar curiosity, impudence and irreverence!

Why, oh why, is Confucianism so sacred? That is the question that is troubling our mind. Personally, we appreciate his teaching, but there is still hope for us, Mr. Editor, for does not Confucius teach us that "his grace does not lie in falling, but in not rising again?" Tapping mouths, curious eyes and irreverence are not signs of sympathy or comradeship. The greatest tribute we ever had paid us in this country was in a Chinese restaurant. A friend with whom we were dining said to the waiter who was serving us and who had the privilege of helping to eat the former grasp of the English language, "You would do anything for this lady?" "Yes," he replied, "like a dog or a cat."

We were thankful that, in spite of racial differences and the disabilities we labored under in expressing ourselves, of being mutually understood, that a boy had recognized, and felt, that behind all the faulty phenomena occasioned by speech and acts, lay appreciation of the desire to help. If we imitate some of the plodding patience which characterizes their life amongst us it will be a good thing for the community. If the tragedy that has saddened their communal life tends in some measure to relieve the isolation that our national ignorance and prejudice subjects them to, then their friend's death may not have been in vain.

Personally, we have to thank them for many services pleasantly and cheerfully rendered with a quiet charm of manner which is the product of their ancient civilization and a tribute to Confucianism.

We who live in the spirit beyond the narrow confines of national prejudice are indeed wondering "what they think of us." Let us hope that the curious who trooped through the house of the departed at least learnt something of the beautiful art that influences the life of the Chinese and realized the mediocrity of the average Canadian home.

They have much to teach us—let us be receptive and learn. It would not hurt us to sit at the feet of wisdom for a change. "ENGLISHMAN," August 23, 1917, London, Ont.

Al Jolson heads the great popular list, singing "Tillie Tiwillow," his laughing-success from "Robinson Crusoe, Jr.," and a timely sensation is furnished by the newest comedian in the Columbia ranks—Billy B. Van, comic star of "Have a Heart," singing "Napoleon," cleverest topical hit of the show. Altogether, there are thirty popular hits listed, of a brilliance and snap scarcely ever equalled.

Fourteen great dances, including eight novelties; exquisite song-gems by Charles Harrison and Oscar Seagle; hymns by Rodchever; chime solos, marches, trios and instrumental novelties on drum-and-piano, accordion-banjo, accordion, xylophone and orchestra bells wind up a list that is bound to have a popularity unprecedented.
