

REVOLT HAS BROKEN OUT IN HAMBURG

Copenhagen, Nov. 7.—A revolt has broken out in Hamburg, according to a dispatch from the correspondent of the Politiken at Vambrup. Violent artillery firing was in progress in the streets of the city when the correspondent's informant was deported, the latter declared.

A strike of dock workers at Hamburg, involving 10,000 men, is reported by the Exchange Telegraph correspondent at Amsterdam.

SOLDIERS MUST PAY PROPER RESPECT TO MILITARY FUNERALS

Orders Draw Attention to Violations of Regulations.

Military headquarters had had the fact brought to its attention and men on parade in the matter of military funerals is being flagrantly violated, and a special request that "officers, soldiers and sailors" be reminded of the regulations which govern military funerals. It has been noted, continues "orders," that proper respect is not paid by officers and other ranks when military funerals are passing through the streets. Officers have been ordered to salute and walk quickly past a procession and men to stand at attention and remove their caps, which shows that they have not been properly instructed. Soldiers must pay proper respect to the body of a deceased in each case, and at the same time set an example to civilians.

THE WAR SUMMARY

WAR SUMMARY taken on m. m. m. m. New York, November 7.—The Associated Press this morning issued the following:

"Germany's hold on the Aisne from Rethel eastward to above Vouziers, which has remained firm while the rest of the enemy's front line was broken yesterday. French troops have thrown bridges across the river and are in close pursuit of the foe, who is abandoning vast quantities of munitions and material of war as he retreats toward the ever-narrowing path through Belgium to comparative safety.

Vervins has been captured. Rethel has been evacuated by the Germans, while the French are now approaching the vital railroad centre of Hirson. British forces are moving up toward Maubeuge from the southwest, and the Americans in the Meuse sector are within four miles of Sedan, where, on September 1, 1917, the decisive battle of the Franco-Prussian war was fought and Napoleon III. defeated.

Enemy Resistance Crushed. The forces of the Allies thus have been virtually crushing the last vestige of enemy resistance in Eastern France. German emissaries have been rushing from Berlin toward the battlefield to meet Marshal Foch and receive at his hands the conditions on which the allied nations will agree to a cessation of hostilities.

The German plenipotentiaries crossed the battlefield last night and were to meet the commander-in-chief of the Entente forces at dawn this morning. The approach of the German commission, however, did not bring about any abatement in the pressure against the enemy.

Everywhere along the front the converging forces of the Allies seemed, rather, to increase the weight of their sledge-hammer blows, and the past day, it seems, has brought confirmation of the statement made a few days ago, that the contending armies were locked in a battle which promises to be decisive.

German Fleet at Kiel. Sailors are reported to have mutinied and have seized the battleships Kaiser and Schleswig-Holstein. There has been serious fighting and several officers have been killed. The sailors are understood to be still in control of two ships, and it is reported that they will not surrender until a peace is arranged.

Entente troops have crossed the Austro-Hungarian lines at several points to take the places of the troops of the dual monarchy, so that the latter can be transported to their homes in groups. This is the first actual step toward carrying out the terms of the armistice between the Allies and Austria.

A critical situation has arisen between Germany and Russia. Diplomatic representatives of both countries have been recalled, and it may be that hostilities will be resumed. German Socialists are demanding the abdication of Emperor Wilhelm. The financial situation of the German Empire is said by experts to be desperate, and that the breaking point is near.

So far as known, Ghent has not yet fallen, but the place is closely invested by the Allies, and news that it has been captured may be received at any time.

THE LAMB MUST BE THE GOAT. [By E. E. The Gravel, Past Laureate, Team 2, District 1.]
Mary had a little lamb, who didn't try to do her bit.
To help to kill the Turks and Bulgars and Huns across the pond;
Now Mary's head was level, and she tried to do her bit.
She made comforts for the soldiers, and she also knit to fit.

So she took the lambkin by the ears, and gave it a good thrashing.
"Go thou and mingle with a band, or your middle name is 'Quadrant';
Get thee behind the enemy's lines, and have yourself to blame
If I remove your pedigree from my little hall of fame."

Then he beat it back to Mary, with his hand, and his glory.
But his effort, the quite heavy, did not fill her heart with glory.
And Mary said: "Oh, lady, your sacrifices have not hurt,
You'll have to do much better, like right back and sell your shirt."

Luck in odd numbers? Not according to J. G. Tennant. He and his side-kick, H. H. Kirby, were assigned to a block having 6 houses. The houses were numbered with odd numbers, and didn't even sell a postage stamp, while the friend Kirby sold just $1,500 worth of bonds from the "even" side of the street.

PEOPLE EXCITED BY RUMOUR BUT AWAIT OFFICIAL WORD ERE STARTING CELEBRATION

Report That Germany Had Signed the Armistice That Means Surrender, Received With Reserve by Crowds on the Street.

While there was wild excitement from noon on today on account of rumors that Germany had signed an armistice, the people waited for official confirmation before making any demonstration or even permitting themselves to give credence to news for which they had been anxiously waiting and hoping.

"What's it all about?" people asked one another. Clerks in stores, in banks, members of office staffs, waiters in lunch-rooms and restaurants, questioned persons of all ages, and the very latest bit of information, chafed because they couldn't get out to see for themselves.

"When The Advertiser puts out a bulletin saying this news that Germany has signed the armistice, I'll make official, then you'll see the biggest celebration break loose that ever you or I dreamed of," said a well-known citizen as he ate his pie course—this afternoon.

"I tell you," he continued, "they won't need to start organizing and drumming and shouting. It will go off with a bang that will be heard all over the city."

The lesson of "preparedness" has been so well learned since August, 1914, that quite a number of people were not going to be caught like foolish virgins with no flags and bunting should the "victory" cries prove to be the shrieks which coming events cast before them.

Some people dashed home at top speed to round up their patriotic exhibit possessions. More than one appeared at The Advertiser's tugboat along Gunnesse Union Jacks with which to start a parade going.

"The more cautious people said: 'Well wait and see.'"
