

The meetings at Carsonville and Corn Hill were fair, although when at the latter place the day was exceedingly stormy. I held two meetings at Donegal but failed to reach Waterford.

The meeting was very small at Bathurst, but those present promised a canvass for the cause.

I spent four days collecting at Dalhousie, Charlo, New Mills and Jacquet.

We had a fine meeting in Campbellton,—that fine Branch which has grown so rapidly under the zealous care of its President, and which gave us last year $95.00, notwithstanding the remarkable hard times. I hope to hear very soon of even an advance on that good contribution.

Belledune contains only a few Protestant families but they never fail to remember our cause.

I held two meetings at North Esk and Whitneyville and had a liberal contribution.

Harcourt meetings are always small, while at Bass River they are well attended. At the latter place our Society has lost a friend by the death of Mr. Miller, for many years its president. I think that the new committee will prove by their good works the good judgment of their electors at the last meeting.

The meetings at Kingston and Richibucto were of the usual character,—if not as large as I could desire, yet they always embrace people in the front rank of the Society's intelligent supporters. I am glad to see that the kind ladies of that old Branch have done so well this winter in their canvass.

The Buctouche meeting was fair but as yet I have seen no further returns than the plate collection. I hope however that the cause will not be forgotten.

Cocagne is a small Branch in the midst of a French community, but our meeting was again good and the subsequent canvass praiseworthy.

McDougall and Scotch Settlement, West. Co., has also done well, although our last meeting was small.

On this tour I was disappointed as to meetings at St. Andrews, St. Stephen, Millstream, Johnston and Waterford.

From October 1st to 8th I was engaged in the Branches
