RIGHTS AND WRONGS OF WAR. Men as willing to die for the wrong as for the right—Results of Fighting Prove Nothing at All—International Ostracism Suggested for Offending Nations.

Not far from Hill 60, in the first battle of Ypres, thousands died when the Germans were marching toward Paris. Thousands more are daily dying now as the Germans resist pressure to withdraw from the Somme.

It is not at all an even chance that the men who die for the right will die for the right. It is even possible that the wrong should triumph and that the men who die for the right should die in vain.

In the very first days of the war the office spokesman of Germany admitted that the war was based on wrong. If there is such a thing as a world conscience, and there is any sanction to world opinion, Germany should not be left in doubt that no movement of the world will be acceptable without the righting of that wrong.

It is true that Germany has nothing to fear from the world in arms out of Europe. This country in particular is pledged to a firm neutrality, according to that international law which Germany's spokesmen says has been torn up and demands it shall be rewritten for Germany's profit and in Germany's sense.

Diamonds Never Have Decreased in Value

If you desire to own a Diamond, buy it now. It is unreasonable to think that Diamonds will decrease in value. They never have.

Even when the rich South African mines were discovered, the great demand for Diamonds kept the price up. Now that the output of these mines, which practically reduce the world's entire supply of Diamonds, are controlled by one syndicate, is decreasing alarmingly, especially in quality, there is reason to believe you will never be able to buy Diamonds as cheaply as you can now.

Sharpe's are offering particularly fine values in Diamond Rings at $25 to $450, and in Combination Rings, containing Diamonds with Emeralds, Pearls, Sapphires and other gems, at $12 to $50. Step in and see them. You will not be asked to buy.
