NO TIMES MONDAY
The Times will not be published on next Monday, Dominion Day.

BIRTHS AND MARRIAGES
The birth of thirty-three infants, twenty-one males and twelve females, and twenty-one marriages were reported to the registrar of vital statistics this week.

GOVERNMENT EXAMINATIONS
Next Tuesday in this city School Inspector William McLean will commence the government examinations for matriculation into the University of New Brunswick, advance in teachers' classification and for entrance into Normal School. Mr. McLean will have the assistance of several supervisors. It is expected there will be quite a large class in the aggregate. The usual number of withdrawals from teaching staffs throughout New Brunswick, due to the war, have not been taken into consideration, and the Registrar of Education is naturally concerned to the educational authorities.

THE REGISTRAR MUST HAVE THE INFORMATION

Law Will Be Invoked If He Is Not Notified of Births and Deaths

Neglect to register vital statistics is likely to cost the negligent person real money in the future. John B. Jones, local registrar of vital statistics, has been notified that, under the registration act, he is required to make prompt returns of births and deaths each month. A penalty is fixed for non-compliance and in order to protect himself, the registrar will have to see that the law regarding the registration of the statistics is observed, even if it is necessary to invoke the aid of the law in order to accomplish this.

The duty rests upon the parents of newly born infants to report the birth to the registrar immediately. In cases of death, the obligation rests upon those attending the person in their last illness. The physicians and undertakers are familiar with the law and usually observe it, but there is more difficulty with parents, especially in the case of the first addition to the family, as this requirement frequently is overlooked.

R. W. L. Tibbets, deputy registrar general, in a communication to the Canada Registration Board, calling his attention to section 86 of the registration act, which reads as follows: "It shall be the duty of every provincial registrar of births and deaths to return, certified under his hand and seal, to the central registrar a statement of return, certified under his hand and seal, of every person of fifteen years of age or upwards whose death is registered or notified to him during the month last preceding; moreover every such provincial registrar shall, at the same time make separate return to the central registrar, certified in like manner, of the number of deaths of persons under the age of sixteen years and of the number of births registered or notified to him during the month last preceding; and the information so communicated to the central registrar shall be recorded and made available by him in such manner as may be directed by instructions of the board."

THEIR GOLDEN WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. Francis McCafferty Married 50 Years Ago Today

Mr. and Mrs. Francis McCafferty are today receiving congratulations on the fiftieth anniversary of their wedding. On June 29, 1868, they were married by the late Rev. William Foley in the Cathedral of the Immaculate Conception. The bride of that day was Miss Teresa M. Cline, daughter of the late Elliot and Mrs. Richard Cline. Miss Ellen McCafferty, now Mrs. John Murphy of West St. John, was bridesmaid and the late Thomas O. Mullaly, also of Carleton, was groomsmen.

Mr. and Mrs. McCafferty have lived all their lives in St. John. Of eleven children born nine are living, but only four now here—Frank L. of The Times newspaper; George T., of Johnston's Hotel; Leck Lonsdale; Pamela B., editor of the New Freeman, and Gertrude H., of The Telegraph and Times. Edith is matron of the Canadian Officers' Convalescent Hospital, Mallock Bath, England; Stella is the wife of Dr. Forster Smith; Loretta is Mrs. Wm. G. Briggs, Burill of Bangor; Gerald in Boston and Herbert G. is a major in the American army at Camp Dix, New Jersey.

Mr. McCafferty in his younger days was prominent in business in the dry goods house of McCafferty & Daily, King street; also in dramatic circles, in Irish societies and in politics in the Liberal party, and has enjoyed a large measure of popular esteem. The happy anniversary is being quietly observed with the members of the family who are at home.

ONE SESSION PLAN ACCOMPLISHED MUCH

Banked fires in the afternoon saved the public schools 190 tons of coal and the school trustees $7,000 in the estimates placed upon the one-session plan of conservation by Dr. H. S. Briggs, superintendent of schools, in discussing the outstanding features of the term concluded yesterday. The really essential side of the argument, however, was not the saving in cash and fuel to the school but the release of that much coal for other needy cases and the continuance of school studies. If such steps had not been taken, Dr. Briggs feels certain the whole city educational equipment would have been closed down for a considerable period. The remarkably fine showing in promotions, health, grading mark averages and general efficiency which characterized the term's totals seemed to indicate that the coal-saving plan carried out was the best possible in meeting a national difficulty and yet keeping everything going.

The school superintendent is naturally highly pleased with the school record of the term just ended and especially because the fuel menace was effectively evaded.

ST. JOHN MAN ON FIVE BOATS SUNK BY SUBS

Now He Wants To Fight, And He Will, Too

WITH THE 26TH AT VIMY

Charles Richards Invalided Home, Used Six Steamers to Cross the Ocean—Then Enlisted Again

It took six ships to bring Charles Richards of this city from London to New York. And five of them were sunk by submarines. But, undaunted, Richards is going to brave the return voyage at once, in order to have another go at the buns.

Walking into the offices of the British and Canadian Recruiting Mission, 250 West Forty-second street, New York, Richards enlisted in the Royal Engineers, and then told his story. It is related in the New York Globe as follows:

When the great war began, Richards, thirty-six years old and a native of St. John, N. B., enlisted in the Twenty-sixth New Brunswick Battalion and went across to France. After participating in various engagements he was severely wounded at Vimy Ridge, and when able to leave the base hospital was sent to London to recuperate. Finally, in the last stages of recuperation, he was put aboard a big transport which formerly had been a passenger steamer and bound for Canada.

How it Started

"About two days out from England," said Richards, "we were attacked just after dusk. The submarine wasn't the kind that ship's crew could get a shot at once in a while, but was one of this newfangled kind. It lay about eight miles off and bagged away with its big guns.

"Well, the first shot of the Hun was a hit, and we took to the boats. The ship went down at once. We drifted around, not very long, and up came a following steamer that picked us up.

"Hardly had we been shifted around in the new ship when she, too, fell victim to a submarine. It was just four hours after we had been picked out of the water that we had to take to the boats again.

"Three more times this was repeated in the next eight days. That made five ships sunk under us. It wasn't stretching to say that we lay about eight days on the water, but it was a long time. The subs didn't give us a chance. They never got close enough to scarp with, but they lay about eight miles off and bagged away with their big guns. At last, though, the sixth ship broke the charnel and came through without even seeing a sub."

Now He Wants to Fight

It was ten o'clock on the night of the eighth day out from England that Richards and his fellow shipmates met the rescue ship that was to bring them to shore at last. She was a small tramp cargo ship, making for a New England port. What with heavy weather and slow speed, her progress was slow. But she sailed safely through the new danger zone of the American coast and into port at last.

Richards, however, felt that his restful sea journey had fully restored him to health. Old friends at home would have to put off seeing him for another spell. He had other things to do. As soon as he set foot ashore he enlisted for New York, arriving today, made straight for the British recruiting station.

"Get me across in a hurry," he said to Sergeant McNeil. "The devil won't come close to you at sea, so you can't get a crack at 'em, so I want to face them on land."

FIRST MONTH OF AMUSEMENT TAX

Considerable Revenue Results—Theatrical Event in St. John Netted $226

With the closing of June the returns of the first month of the new amusement tax on New Brunswick theatre patrons goes on record. It appears the measure has been fairly successful and that considerable revenue has accrued to the provincial treasury. While amusements generally throughout New Brunswick are at an unprecedented low ebb, due chiefly to the daylight saving plan and the stringencies of war-time, it is felt the tax on theatre-goers will yield more generally in the fall and winter.

In the small towns and rural districts, where attendance is always small, the government naturally does not get much money, but in St. John, Moncton, Fredericton, St. Stephen, Woodstock, Campbellton and other places the returns will aggregate a substantial sum.

Perhaps the most notable instance of quick and large returns was the recent visit of a large travelling company to this city when the amusement tax on performances. The scale in this case ranged from two cents to twenty on each ticket. If St. John were more of a vaudeville town or had a stock company theatre, the ticket tax would reach a much larger total each week.

Inspector H. Anderson is already a fairly busy man, fitting about among the theatres, seeing that the provisions of the new regulations are being faithfully carried out. He is also kept active supervising theatres with rush orders of tax tickets on short notice.

GOING TOO FAR

For many years it has been the habit of children to resort to the Pettibill wharf on the arrival of a cargo of molasses and gather into vessels of all kinds the sticky sweetness as it worked out of the puncheons. This was not looked upon as stealing. But of late, becoming emboldened by impunity, the little ones have acquired a habit in some cases of filling eight quart milk cans to carry home. This is serious and renders the children liable to arrest.
